Henlein, Arrest Ordered, Escapes to Germany; Chamberlain and Hitler Plan Second Parley

Sen. George Wins, Is 9th Court Foe to Beat Purge

Talmadge Is Second in Georgia Primary; Roosevelt Candidate Runs a Poor Third; N. Y. Test Awaited

Senator George was shown yesterday to have been renominated in Georgia's Democratic primary election on Wednesday, and the New Deal effort to remove from public life the nine Senators who led in the killing of the Court reorganization plan last year thus ended in complete defeat. All nine have won renomination.

With only two of the 150 counties in Georgia incomplete in their vote count, George, conservative veteran of 16 years in the Senate, was assured of 246 of the 410 county unit votes in the State, 40 more than the 206 needed for nomination.

But the rejection of President Roosevelt's purge in Georgia, where he had made a personal plea for defeat of Senator George and former Gov. Eugene Talmadge and the election of Lawrence S. Camp, was more devastating in the poor showing made by his favorite. Camp ran a poor third, while it was Talmadge, fiery foe of the New Deal, which he called a "madhouse," who did any pressing of George. Talmadge obtained 148 county unit votes, while Camp was given only 16.

Scene Changes to N. Y.

The combined popular vote of the two men denounced by the Chief Executive exceeded 240,000, while the young Federal district attorney whose nomination and election he had urged, could count only some 8,000 ballots.

Political interest centers next in the New York Congressional primary next Tuesday, when Representative John J. O'Connor, whose repudiation by the Democratic voters has been sought by the President, will ask renomination.

O'Connor, chairman of the powerful House Rules Committee, is opposed by James H. Fay, a deputy collector of internal revenue indorsed by both the President and Mayor Fiorello LaGuardia of New York City.

O'Connor incurred the Presidential wrath by bottling up the President's Government reorganization bill and for his failure to obtain committee action on the wage-hour bill which subsequently was enacted.

O'Connor's Defeat Asked

When the President called for his defeat he retorted with the charge that the Chief Executive was seeking to become a dictator. Mr. Roosevelt was said to have considered further punitive measures but decided better when informed that O'Connor's renomination is virtually assured.

Georgia's final setback for the Senate "purge" followed closely the renomination of Senator Millard Tydings in Maryland, despite active and open efforts by the President to bring about nomination of Representative David J. Lewis, and renomination in Connecticut of Senator Augustine Lonergan, who had been accused by many Democrats of not being sufficiently loyal to the New Deal.

Others who had fallen under the same accusations but had been successful in the State primaries or

Gallup Poll Accuracy

The American Institute of Public Opinion forecast Senator Walter F. George, of Georgia, would receive 46 per cent of the popular vote in Wednesday's primary.

GALLUP

Latest figures from all but one county in Georgia give the victorious Senator George 44 per cent of the popular vote, just 2 per cent under the institute estimate.

In the past few weeks Dr. George Gallup, director of the institute, has rolled up a marvelous record of scientific sounding of public opinion. The Senator Barkley victory in Kentucky within 2 per cent; the Senator "Cotton Ed" Smith victory in South Carolina within 2 per cent; the Senator Millard Tydings victory in Maryland within 1 per cent.

Roosevelt Returns to Watch Crisis

Hurries to Capital to Get Reports From Hull on Foreign Tension and Map Course of America

By William V. Nesslv.

President Roosevelt returned to the Capital last night in an atmosphere of tense concern over warlike developments in Europe, to direct in person this country's course through the crisis.

No sooner had his train stopped at Union Station, than Secretary of State Hull and Secretary of War Woodring hastened aboard and for 20 minutes laid before him in the seclusion of his private car a picture of the foreign situation as it has developed, a picture based on confidential reports of the Government's envoys in the trouble centers.

The grave attitude held in Capital circles was manifested also in other activities, including these:

Acting Secretary of the Navy Edison called on industrialists and their labor groups to "spare yourselves the sedative of wishful thinking" and devote themselves "to the part you will play if trouble comes."

Great Britain was revealed to have obtained licenses for the export of 400 observation and training planes ordered from manufacturers here.

Senator Borah, of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, on his way back to Washington, insisted the United States should keep "hands off" the European turmoil.

A Congressional drive for quick passage of a war referendum law was announced by the National Council for Prevention of War.

Following the conference aboard the train, the President and Secretory Hull drove to the White House, where the discussion continued. Following the Secretary's departure, it was presumed Mr. Roosevelt would go over the reports in greater detail, before he and Hull confer again today.

The President also will meet with the Cabinet today, but hope for some public expression from him on the delicate problems confronting the Government was eliminated when it was announced the regular Friday press conference had been canceled.

Decision will be reached during the day on whether the President will be able to keep an appointment to speak at Poughkeepsie, N. Y., tomorrow, in celebration of the one hundred fiftieth anniversary of the first constitutional convention in America. Should the address be delivered, it was pointed out by observers, the occasion would be a fitting one for a declaration of foreign policy to the world.

Diplomatic circles have keenly sought some indication of what

Cheltenham Riots Quelled By Guards

Outside Police Respond to Call in Uprising at Prince Georges County Reformatory

About 125 inmates of the Cheltenham School for Boys, Cheltenham, Md., 25 miles south of Washington, staged a demonstration last night that caused Supt. B. B. Sunderland to summon riot squads of police from Marlboro and the State police station at Waldorf.

The trouble began at lunch time when inmates hurled tableware at each other. At dinner time the inmates refused to sing grace.

Later, Sunderland said, demonstrators gathered in an outdoor play yard and smashed benches and shattered windows. Calls were made for police aid and four carloads of county and State officers, armed with shotguns and tear gas responded.

Meanwhile, attendants succeeded in quieting the disturbance and in herding the boys into a cottage, where Sunderland, flanked by police, cautioned against further outbreak.

The reformatory has a population of 420 youths. It was the scene of two riots about a year ago.

Princeton Varsity Fullback Dies After Practice

Princeton, N. J., Sept. 15 (AP).—William B. Lynch, 22 of Birmingham Mich, varsity fullback on the University of Princeton 1937 football team, died unexpectedly tonight in Princeton Hospital.

Dr. Harry R. McPhee, team physician, said death was due to a heart attack.

Dr. McPhee said Lynch, a 200-pound senior, collapsed shortly after 6 o'clock as he entered the field house after a jog which concluded Princeton's no contact football practice.

To Confer Again

Special Cable to The Post.

Berchtesgaden (Friday), Sept. 16. One of the most dramatic meetings in diplomatic history occurred yesterday when, in a mountain chalet above this town, Neville Chamberlain, prime minister of Great Britain, conferred for 2 hours and 35 minutes with Adolf Hitler, the German dictator, in a desperate effort to save the peace of Europe and the world. Chamberlain entered an airplane for the second time in his life at Heston and flew the bulk of the distance here.

The crisis resulted from the long standing dispute between Germany and Czechoslovakia as to the disposal of 3,500,000 Sudeten Germans in Czech territory; the danger to peace increased during the past 72 hours by the death of both Sudetens and Czechs in shooting affrays, and in the possibility the angered Fuehrer would dispatch military aid to the Germans across the Czech frontier.

Annexation Demand

With the official communique last night proving of a noncommittal character, informed persons concluded that Hitler demanded what amounts to inclusion of the Sudetens within the Reich, with a plebiscite to establish the desire of the Sudetens to come in, or—to be held later—to confirm a fait accompli. The communique states there was a "full and frank exchange of views," and Chamberlain is returning to London today, and that there will be another meeting of the two statesmen later, at another place, presumably Berlin.

[Full text of the official announcement as reported by the Associated Press was:

["The Fuehrer and Reichschancellor today had a discussion with the British Premier at Obersalzberg in the course of which an extended, frank exchange of views on the present situation took place.

["The British Premier returns to England tomorrow to consult the British cabinet. A new conversation takes place within a few days."—Editor's note.]

Tentative Agreement

Chamberlain and Hitler began their negotiations only a few hours after a proclamation by Konrad Henlein demanding Sudeten inclusion in the Reich had begun to reverberate. This proclamation read, "Heim Ins Reich" (Home to the Reich). If there was any further need for violence, this single sentence had filled the need. His demand was apparently the inclusion within Germany of a vaguely delimited slice in Czechoslovak territory inhabited primarily by Germans. Presumably there is to date no definite plan as to how the territory is to be delimited—possibly by exchange of population.

This town is full this morning of conflicting reports as to additional developments in the negotiations. It is clear Chamberlain began by ask-

Surprise Move Of Hitler Sends Briton Home

Chamberlain to Confer Over Unexpected Proposals; Parliament Will Be Summoned

By Joseph Driscoll.

Special Cable to The Post.

London, Sept. 15.—Prime Minister Chamberlain, who flew out to Berchtesgaden today to urge peace upon Chancellor Adolf Hitler, is flying back to London tomorrow to seek the approval of his cabinet for certain fundamental proposals regarding Czechoslovakia which Der Fuehrer unexpectedly presented to him at the very outset of their historic meeting.

This is a complete reversal of plan and almost as startling as Chamberlain's melodramatic decision yesterday to take to the air to impress Hitler with the possibilities of peaceful negotiation and the dangers of provoking another world war in which France, the Soviet Union, Great Britain and possibly the United States would be arrayed against Germany.

Chamberlain's original schedule called for him to stay at Berchtesgaden for about three days. His decision to return to London tomorrow does not involve a breakdown in the conversations with Hitler, which so far as they have gone are said to be satisfactory.

[The Associated Press reported informed observers envisaged three principal possibilities of the Chamberlain-Hitler conference.

Hitler may have suggested a pact among Britain, France, Ger-

Berchtesgaden Parley Failed, Berlin Believes

But Hitler Would Have Marched Over Border Yesterday but for Visit, Some Nazis Say

By the Associated Press.

Berlin, Sept. 15.—Prime Minister Chamberlain's decision to return tomorrow to London surprised the German foreign office and raised doubts there tonight he would come back.

Officials feared his decision might mean the British Prime Minister and Hitler soon recognized they could not see eye to eye on the Sudeten minority question at their Berchtesgaden conference.

Foreign office authorities who talked with officials at Berchtesgaden were under the impression Chamberlain came armed with nothing more than Britain's and France's readiness to support a plebiscite in the Sudeten region of Czechoslovakia under international control.

But in German eyes the plebiscite already is superseded by Konrad Henlein's proclamation demanding secession of the Sudeten areas. Hence to Germany the only question remaining is whether Britain and France would stand aside, if and when Germany comes to the

Warrant for Henlein

By the Associated Press.

Prague, Czechoslovakia, Sept. 15. The Czechoslovak government tonight ordered the arrest of Konrad Henlein on a charge of treason after the Sudeten German chieftian broadcast a proclamation that his followers wanted union with Germany.

A high Sudeten German leader in Berlin disclosed later that Henlein had made his way safely to Germany.

The Prague government, moving swiftly to put down civil strife in Sudeten territory, coupled its sudden action with an order extending martial law to 16 Sudeten districts where sporadic, minor disorders continued.

[The United Press said the official Germany news agency, D.N.B., reported tonight that the Sudeten town of Eger was occupied by a strong Czech military force and that telephone communication with Germany had been cut off. The D.N.B., in a dispatch from Hof, Bavaria, said efforts to reach the German consulate at Eger by telephone failed.—Editor's note.]

Runciman Going to London

This turn of events, apparently ending all present possibility of settling the Czechoslovak-Sudeten dispute, preceded by a few hours announcement that the British mediation mission was returning to London to confer with the British government.

A brief communique announced that Viscount Runciman, head of the "unofficial" British mission, and his principal aide, F. T. A. Ashton-Gwatkin, would fly to London at the behest of Prime Minister Chamberlain, who conferred today with Reichsfuehrer Hitler. Their departure was set for noon tomorrow.

President Benes issued an order adjourning Parliament which, although not meeting, technically was in session and ready to receive a proposal for reorganization of the government.

This action tended to support the opinion in government circles that chances of settling the minorities dispute had virtually disappeared.

Henlein's Family Vanishes

Henlein's wife and two daughters have disappeared from his home at Asch, near the German border.

The high Sudeten leader in Berlin, reporting Henlein was safe, declared that "Czechs, like (late President Thomas) Masaryk and (President Eduard) Benes did not hesitate to leave the country during the World War when they were agi-

The European Situation Now

Paris, Sept. 15.

IN THE fortnight preceding Chancellor Hitler's address at Nuremberg the people of the world worked themselves up into an almost hysterical expectation that the Chancellor would pronounce the fatal verdict for peace or for war. He did not pronounce the verdict because, in fact, he has no such supreme power as world opinion then attributed to him. Mr. Chamberlain has now gone to Berchtesgaden. And again the world will be tempted to believe that the consequences of the interview will necessarily be decisive for peace or for war. This, too, is almost certainly a much too simple and therefore a misleading view of the real situation.

* * * *

The controlling consideration immediately is still what it has been for months, namely, that Czechoslovakia will not be invaded if it is clear to the German government be-

40-Cent Wage Promised by One Industry

Storage Battery Workers to Get Maximum Under Federal Law; Andrews Calls Conference

By Robert C. Albright.

The storage battery industry, employing some 8,000 workers, yesterday slashed wage-hour law red tape by promising a 40-cent wage floor, the maximum the new Federal wage and hour division is empowered to impose.

Hopes rose at the Labor Department that other higher paid segments of industry may follow suit. The basic wage under the law automatically taking effect October 24 is only 25 cents an hour. Industry committees can recommend adjustments up to 40 cents.

Meanwhile, Wage-Hour Administrator Andrews called a conference of State labor officials on October 18 to discuss compliance and enforcement of the law which becomes operative six days later.

200,000 to Be Affected

An estimated 200,000 persons in manufacturing industries now receiving less than 25 cents an hour will be affected on that date, while another 1,200,000 working over 44 hours a week will have their hours reduced.

News of the storage-battery industry's action reached Andrews as the division's first industry committee (for textiles) met organization delays. Donald M. Nelson, chairman of the group, conferred with Andrews and postponed the first meeting subject to his call. Andrews said the division does not yet have the staff to "service" its committee. Nelson said he would return in from ten days to two weeks.

Appointments Delayed

Appointment of two industry committees for tobacco was also delayed. Andrews said he probably will appoint an industry committee for cotton garments coincident with the tobacco appointments.

The 21-man tobacco committee was under fire from Francis J. Gorman, president of C. I. O.'s United Textile Workers, who charged in a letter to Andrews that the high-wage sections of the industry were not given a voice on the committee.

Andrews said he had not received the letter, and declined comment on it. Gorman complained that only two of the seven labor representatives are practical textile workers. He charged neither the Northern cotton workers nor the dyeing and finishing division of the industry were given representation. Earlier, David Dubinsky, of the Ladies Garment Workers, had protested inclusion of knitted underwear in the committee's scope.

Industry Wires Decision

The storage battery industry's action was wired to Andrews by L. B. F. Raycroft, president of the National Battery Manufacturers Association, following a request by Andrews for industry committee suggestions.

Raycroft wired that by unanimous action of the association's directors in Akron, he was "instructed to notify you that the storage battery industry wishes to take immediate steps, under the act, to set the minimum factory wage for the storage battery industry, at 40 cents per hour effective October 24, 1938. I request your prompt advices as to the proper procedure to follow in making this action effective on the stated date and to settle such other questions as arise under the act.

Andrews said "it will be very easy to take care of them." While a committee must be appointed, as for other industries, he said the association's action will simplify the task.

He declined to speculate on possibilities of similar action by other industries, but said if there are other industries which can well afford to do it, it would be helpful."

Average Wage Is High

The average hourly wage in the electrical machinery, apparatus and supplies industries was 74.7 cents in June, according to Labor Department economists. Storage battery wages are said to be slightly above the average for that industry.

There are some dozen industries that likewise pay a higher average than 74 cents, but it was pointed out that the average figure "does not tell the whole story" and there may be some factories or some branches that pay less than 40.

Industries now averaging as high or higher wages than storage batteries were said by Labor Department statisticians to include blast furnaces and steel works, cash registers, engines and turbines, automobiles, locomotives, shipbuilding, beverages, printing, petroleum, chemicals, explosives and rubber tires and inner tubes.

Senator Barkley Little Concerned About Failure of Purge in Several States

By the Associated Press.

New York, Sept. 15.—Senator Barkley (Democrat), Kentucky, Senate majority leader, voiced little concern today over defeat of several primary election candidates who had received the indorsement of President Roosevelt. Barkley, returning from Europe, said he expected "things will go along pretty much as they did in the last session" of Congress.

BARKLEY

"I don't see that it makes a whole lot of difference, because every member of Congress is going to be governed by general conditions in the United States," Barkley said.

He was silent on the question of a third term for Mr. Roosevelt, but said the budget, Federal relief and continuation of the WPA would depend on business recovery, national income and the war situation in Europe.

The Senator said he would oppose increasing taxes in the lower brackets in an effort to balance the budget.

Lynchburg, Va., Sept. 15. (AP).—Notified that Senator Walter F. George, of Georgia, had been renominated in yesterday's primary, Senator Carter Glass, of Virginia, sent the Georgian the following telegram:

[When President Roosevelt spoke at Barnesville, Ga., calling for George's defeat, the Senator told Mr. Roosevelt "I accept the challenge." He said the President replied: "God bless you, Walter. Let's always be friends."—Editor's note.]

Secretary Ickes has declined an invitation to speak on pollution in the Potomac River before he Izaac Walton League, of Alexandria, he revealed yesterday, for fear it might be deemed "an invasion of the free State of Virginia."

Presumably, Ickes had in mind resentment of Virginians raised when some New Deal officials backed William E. Dodd, jr., against Representative Howard Smith in the recent congressional primary. Smith won.

Asked whether Alexandria officials had applied for PWA funds to reduce pollution he said they had not.

"There is a God-given right, you know, to do what you want with your own sewage," he added.

New York, Sept. 15 (AP).—Thomas G. Corcoran, close adviser of President Roosevelt, asked whether he had anything to say about Senator Tydings' renomination in Maryland, replied.

"I never have anything to say. Professionally I am deaf, dumb and blind."

Montpelier, Vt., Sept. 15 (AP).—The campaign expenditures of Gov. George D. Aiken (Republican), renominated at Tuesday's primary, totaled 30 cents, according to a statement filed with the secretary of state today. The amount represented postage on petitions requested by supporters.

Inflow of European Capital Gives Morgenthau No Concern

Flight From War Scare Has Been Heavy, Says Secretary, but He Sees No Cause for Worry Over Unbalancing of Credit Structure; Roosevelt Gets Facts Today

Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau yesterday reported a heavy influx of foreign money to America. He said the United States "is the financial center of the world and can resist the kind of nervousness that people with money fear."

"If foreigners want to send their money here for refuge we are glad to take care of them," said the Treasury Secretary. Other officials viewed foreign wealth invested here as a potential source of purchasing power for war-threatened European nations.

Morgenthau and heads of other Federal agencies today are expected to turn over to President Roosevelt confidential financial information reflecting the effect of international tension on the dollar, foreign currencies and the securities markets.

"No Cause for Alarm"

Possible effects of a European war on this country's financial and economic status also is expected to be one of the subjects explored at today's Cabinet meeting.

Meanwhile, Secretary Morgenthau said the foreign money flight to this country was "a very pleasant worry to worry about" when asked if the current "hot money" problem was the same as in the winter of 1936, when the fugitive capital flight to this country caused concern. He said there was no cause for alarm.

Minimum fluctuations of foreign exchange rate accompanying the transfers has resulted from the international monetary agreement of 1936, Morgenthau said. The $1,800,000,000 stabilization fund also has been a factor for stability, said the Secretary. He said the United States is not risking its own money. When purchases are made for a foreign country, reimbursement in gold or in dollars is required within 24 hours.

Morgenthau said the Treasury is seeing "that no group should manipulate the dollar to the disadvantage of the American businessman. I think the record speaks for itself."

Although the volume of the foreign money influx was not disclosed, more than $250,000,000 in gold was purchased in the first two weeks of September, according to Treasury figures.

Bank Credits Stable

Morgenthau said he is in constant contact "with the best financial brains of the country," but he said no steps have been decided on to cope with possible credit expansion resulting from the flow. Bank loans in recent months apparently have not been influenced by the reservoir of funds available.

Experts generally expected many of the foreign investments to be recalled if the war scare subsides. The Johnson act bans United States loans to foreign debtors, and it was pointed out that in event of war foreign money here may be used as a source of purchasing power.

Subject to the President's call is the Federal Reserve Board's vast store of confidential data, and the Security and Exchange Commission has ready for White House scrutiny figures on the recent stock market liquidation growing out of international tenseness.

Under the securities and exchange act of 1934 the President has power to close the stock exchange. The SEC has been watching closely the course of security prices from day to day. After war was declared in 1914, the New York Stock Exchange was closed for a number of months.

Prairie Dogs Join Rats as Carriers Of Plague Fleas

The National Institute of Health has definitely established within the last month that the innocent-appearing prairie dog is a carrier of the dread bubonic plague, Dr. Clifford E. Waller, Assistant Surgeon General in charge of domestic quarantine, revealed yesterday.

Improved methods of detecting infection centers, he explained, have shown that prairie dogs are to be classed with rats, ground squirrels, marmots and woodchucks, as plague carriers.

In order to lighten the indictment against these animals, Dr. Waller pointed out that they become actual carriers only if infected with fleas which are the real carriers. Certain species of fleas are known to be carriers, but investigators are not yet ready to hand the unsuspected species a clean bill of health.

The National Health Institute for some years has conducted an energetic campaign in the West against the bubonic plague, since unless kept under control it can become a pneumonic plague like the "Black Death" that caused such havoc in the Middle Ages.

Second-Choice Votes May Win For O'Conor

Outcome Still Uncertain, However, With Struggle for Unbound Delegates Faced at Convention

By James D. Secrest.

Attorney General Herbert R. O'Conor appeared the likely winner in Maryland's closely contested Democratic gubernatorial primary election last night on the basis of first and second choice votes, but it was still uncertain as to whether the outcome will be known before the convention September 28.

Irregularities in Allegany County, a demand for a recount in Queen Annes, and tardy official tabulations in other counties and Baltimore City left the result in doubt, although the election was held four days ago.

Mayor Howard W. Jackson, while trailing O'Conor in both the official and the unofficial returns, was still hopeful of overcoming the lead when delegates begin to vote as they please on a third ballot.

Still Short of 75 Votes

While the unofficial estimated convention strength of the attorney general varied from 62 to 74, no count assured him of the necessary 75 votes for nomination.

The Associated Press, on the basis of early official returns, gave O'Conor 20 votes and Jackson 39, but it added to this Baltimore's 42 votes, on the strength of complete but unofficial returns, thus giving the young gubernatorial aspirant 62.

Coupling these official returns with safe estimates in other counties, the Associated Press gave O'Conor 72 votes, or only three short of a majority, and Jackson 56.

Sasscer Backers A Factor

Meanwhile, it appeared that Lansdale G. Sasscer, while out of the race for governor, may play an influential role in the choice between the major contenders. On the basis of second choice votes in Prince Georges County, which he carried by a large majority, it appeared likely that he would command the county's seven votes on the third ballot.

An official count at Upper Marlboro yesterday showed that the majority of Sasscer's second choice votes went to Comptroller William S. Gordy, jr., who ran a poor third. With his elimination at the convention, the Prince Georges County delegation will be uninstructed although under obligation to Sasscer.

The second choice votes on Sasscer ballots were marked: Gordy, 3,340; Jackson, 702, and O'Conor, 727.

The final official count of first choice votes in Prince Georges was: Sasscer, 9,838; O'Conor, 1,368; Jackson, 1,153, and Gordy, 304.

Eastern Shore Counties

Two counties on the Eastern Shore also were being watched with interest by both the O'Conor and the Jackson camps because of their second vote selections.

Wicomico, with five votes, appeared in the O'Conor column on the second ballot, while Worcester, with four votes, will swing to Jackson, although O'Conor won the majority of second votes on the Gordy ticket. Jackson, however, had almost a 2-to-1 lead over O'Conor on the first ballot.

As Jackson aides demanded a recount in Queen Annes County, which went to O'Conor on the basis of unofficial returns, supporters of the Attorney General in Anne Arundel County threatened to take similar action if the county's votes proved decisive in a close contest.

Allegany's seven votes, which may decide the contest, meanwhile were held up while election board officials summoned judges and clerks from three precincts to straighten out a tangle resulting from a lack of understanding of the second choice balloting.

Jackson Holds Montgomery

O'Conor counties assured by official returns are Charles, Caroline, Howard, Kent and St. Marys, with three votes each, and Wicomico, with five. Counties in the Jackson column are Cecil, Talbot and Worcester, with four votes each, Calvert with 3, Harford with 5, Somerset 4, Frederick 6, Dorchester 4, Carroll 15, and Garrett 14.

Unofficial returns give O'Conor Baltimore County and Queen Annes as well, while Jackson apparently is safe in Montgomery and Washington Counties.

Gordy, with 16 votes, and Sasscer, with 13, will be eliminated on the first two convention ballots.

The possibility that the outcome of the gubernatorial primary may not be decided before the convention has aroused considerable interest in the meeting.

Usually a cut and dried affair, the convention may become a tug-of-war for unbound delegations if neither of the major contenders gets a majority on the first or second ballot.

Eugene J. C. Raney, campaign manager for J. Millard Tawes, announced last night that Tawes had clearly won the Democratic nomination for comptroller of Maryland.

Reports from the counties, Raney said, showed that Tawes definitely had won 79 votes in the convention. According to Raney, Tawes carried these counties: Allegany, Anne Arundel, Calvert, Cecil, Frederick, Garrett, Montgomery, Prince Georges, Somerset, Talbot, Washington, Wicomico, Worcester, Caroline, Charles and Carroll.

In addition, Raney reported, Tawes was leading by 3,000 votes in Baltimore County but had not won a majority of the votes cast. He was also leading by 100 votes in Queen Anne County and "was sure of second choice" in Harford County, carried by Daniel H. Carroll, Raney said.

It was also learned that P. Watson Webb, candidate for the same office, has been credited with winning Dorchester, Howard and Kent counties and that he has been conceded St. Marys County.

The Gallup Poll

Few Voters Advocate Benefits as Large as California's $30-a-Week Movement Demands.

By Dr. George Gallup,
Director, American Institute of Public Opinion.

New York, Sept. 15.—The movement in California toward the $30-every-Thursday pension, which helped to defeat Senator McAdoo in the Democratic primary, raises the question whether a new brand of Townsendism is about to sweep the country.

GALLUP.

To test the attitude of the public toward this new pension drive, the Institute has conducted a nationwide cross-section survey which reveals that the majority of Americans have relatively conservative views of the amount of money that should be paid in individual old-age.

Although the principle of Government pensions is immensely popular, as Institute surveys have shown for three years, the median sum favored today by voters who approve of pensions is $40 a month for a single person, $70 for a husband and wife. When compared with a similar Institute survey conducted in 1936 these figures indicate, however, a trend of sentiment toward higher pensions. In the earlier study the median sum favored by voters was $30 a month for a single person, $50 for a couple.

The California pension plan calls for total benefits of $120 a month per person. The Institute survey indicates that only a relatively small group of voters throughout the country advocate payment of any sum as high as this.

In actual figures only one person in every 14, or 7 per cent, advocates payment of $100 a month or more to a single person.

The sums mentioned by voters may be grouped as follows:

Amount Per Single Person	% Favoring Pymt. of this Sum
Under $30 Per Month	18%
$30-$50 Per Month	53
Over $50 Per Month	24*

*Includes 7% who favor payment of $100 a month or more.

The study shows, moreover, that the large majority of persons who approve the pension principle think benefits should be paid only to the needy aged, not to all old people who happen to be unemployed regardless of their economic status. The actual vote was: Pay Pensions to All Old People, 21 per cent. Pay Only to Those in Need, 79 per cent.

With official census figures clearly indicating that the average age of the American people is increasing, public opinion on the pension question will be of growing importance. Some estimators maintain that in less than 30 years there will be twice as many persons past the age of 65 as there are now. In view of the ageing population it is significant to examine the variations of sentiment by age groups in the Institute survey.

These show that while voters under 30 years of age approve of the pension principle by about the same majority as persons of 50 and over, nevertheless there is a slightly larger vote for pensions of $30 to $50 as one proceeds up the age scale. This straw in the wind seems to indicate that pension demands will widen as the average age of the population increases in coming decades.

Outlaw Fort Falls In Philippines

Manila, Sept. 16 (Friday) (AP).—Four Moros were killed and four Philippine soldiers wounded, one officer critically, when an army detachment captured a Moro outlaw fort in Lanao Province yesterday.

The dead included a notorious Moro outlaw named Misalang, and his wife and mother. Other Moros in the fort escaped.

New York City was chosen as the 1939 convention city. Atlantic City, N. J., and San Francisco also were bidders.

The organization declined to take action on the group health movement which has stirred considerable controversy. Two resolutions, which bore group health implications, were referred to the executive council for consideration.

Another measure referred to the executive council was a resolution requesting unemployment compensation for dismissed Federal employes.

A burst of fireworks closed the convention when David G. Glass, of Washington, president and organizer of the federation, rose to denounce as "an infamous lie" reports that he had "peddled secrets of the executive council." Glass had been removed as a member of the council.

'Funny Money' Under Eye Of Treasury

Morgenthau Hints View California Plan Is Another 'Short Cut to Utopia'

The Treasury, Secretary Morgenthau disclosed yesterday, has embarked on a study of California's proposed "$30-every-Thursday" pension plan to determine what effect it might have on Federal finances should its adoption by California encourage the plan's sponsors to attempt to apply it on a national scale.

The proposal, in the form of an amendment to California's constitution, is to be submitted for ratification in the November elections. Sheridan Downey, formerly counsel for the Townsend-plan movement, running on a platform indorsing the scheme, recently defeated Senator William G. McAdoo for the senatorial nomination.

Secretary Morgenthau said that the results of the Treasury's study would be made public in a formal statement, the inference being that he viewed the proposal in the same light as President Roosevelt, who criticized it directly, placing it in the same category as the plans he has characterized as "short-cuts to Utopia."

The proposed California amendment requires the payment of 30 $1 warrants, each week, to any citizen of the State who has reached the age of 50 years, and is not employed. Each week the holders of such warrants must affix a 2-cent special stamp, which he buys, with real money, from the State. He does not receive $30 in cash. At the end of the year the warrant bears stamps to the value of $1.04, and will be redeemed by the State for $1, the extra 4 cents defraying the cost of administration.

Thus, it is contended by the plan's proponents, the warrant "liquidates itself," but just how it can liquidate itself is not explained. Opponents of the proposal argue that it would seem that the users of the warrants do the liquidating.

Under the amendment the Governor is authorized to appoint an administrator at a salary of $7,800 and four assistants each with salaries of $7,280, all payable in warrants to carry out the scheme.

It is provided that the warrants shall be accepted in payment of taxes, licenses or any other obligations due the State and all purchases made by warrants are exempted from the sales tax, from which California derived $90,000,000 in revenue in 1937.

Amnesia Victim Still Seeks Wife

J. Paul Spence, 23, of Elizabeth City, N. C., amnesia victim who was identified through efforts of the Washington police late last month, yesterday wrote officers he expected to find a job soon, and was still seeking to contact the wife he married shortly before he disappeared in February.

In a letter to L. W. Rank, public relations officer, Spence said he would be "forever grateful" to the police, and newspapers, for helping learn his name. He said he had been in "sort of a daze" since he left Washington, but that he expected to clear things up eventually.

$387 Cash Is Stolen From Cafe Cashier

Two envelopes containing $387 in cash and a $20 check were stolen from the cashier's cage at the Pomona Cafeteria, 1307 E street northwest, shortly before the establishment closed last night.

According to Elsie Smith, the cashier, the envelopes were taken when her back was turned momentarily. She told police the only customers at the time were two men, one of whom had asked for change a moment before.

'Happiest Man' Camps in D. C. On Wheelbarrow Trip South

Johnny Hendricks Goes Where Spirit Moves Him to Sell Whirligigs Which He Makes on Principle of Antique Drills; Florida Is Now His General Destination, but He May Change.

Johnny Hendricks, 64-year-old wanderer, south bound through Washington with a wheelbarrow and supply of whirligigs, said last night he was the happiest man in the world.

Johnny Hendricks woke from a sound sleep to tell his story at his tent camp near Wisconsin and Oliver street northwest. He called out a cheerful welcome from the tent, and a minute later stepped out barefoot, picked a whirligig from the willow branches that apparently grow wild on his wheelbarrow, and started to talk.

Dulcimer Stolen

Twirling the whirligig, and throwing his head back, he said "I'm the happiest man you ever saw." He has been feeling like that ever since 1895, and even the drastic changes in his life in the past year haven't changed his saying.

A year ago he camped near the highway bridge, and some one stole his fourstringed dulcimer, which he made, and which in turn gave him "sometimes as much as $6 a day" for 10 years, ever since he lost his job as weaver at a cotton mill in South Carolina, and started walking through the country.

With his dulcimer gone he fell back on the whirligigs, constructed, he said, on the principle of antique drills.

Might Work on Farm

Just as his method of earning a living changed, his method of transportation is entirely different than a year ago. At that time he was using a baby carriage. Early this summer he traded the carriage for the wheelbarrow near Newark, N. Y. Later a boy gave him two extra wheels for the back, he added branches for displaying whirligigs, and now when the wind is right his machine sails down the highway.

Johnny Hendricks said he was going "wherever the spirit moved him" in the general direction of Florida. He may stop at his home, 352 Hapton street, Rock Point, S. C., and he might like to get on a farm and start plowing.

He thinks a bigger job than plowing may call him though. While he had the dulcimer he considered himself a missionary, preaching out of his memory of the Bible as he read it in a log cabin school.

Now, he explained, his job is that of "spiritual detective," to watch for whatever might upset the will of God, or the safety of his country.

Girl, With Spleen Removed, Improves

The splenectomy performed Tuesday on 17-year-old Helen Elizabeth Beck apparently had been successful today, in correcting a blood deficiency from which she had suffered since childhood.

Her physician, Dr. John R. Cavanagh, explained the girl showed marked improvement yesterday. He said, however, that because of the severity of the operation there still can be no final assurance that she is out of danger.

Railway Labor Asks Voice in Legislation

Transport Parley Here Assailed for Leaving Employes and Public Out of Councils

The Railway Labor Executives Association last night attacked the Association of American Railroads as "stupidly presumptive" for attempting to seek legislation "without granting representation to either the 1,000,000 or more employes or the public," and charged that the two-day transportation meeting held under the auspices of the United States Chamber of Commerce "was called for the purpose of propaganda."

The statement was issued following the close of a transportation conference among representatives of railroads, insurance companies, shippers and water and air transportation groups, who met to formulate a program designed to cure financial and economic ills of the railroads. The conference, which today appointed a continuing committee, expects to submit its program to Congress next January.

The Association of American Railroads at Wednesday's session suggested revision of the rate-making rule, consolidations, loans to railroads, repeal of land-grant statutes, and elimination of grade crossings with the Federal Government bearing the expense.

Yesterday's meeting was also held behind closed doors. In the morning session the conferees selected a steering committee headed by Harry A. Wheeler, president of the Railway Business Association. The other members are Samuel T. Bledsoe, president of the Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe Railroad; W. H. Day, chairman of the National Industrial Traffic League; Charles W. Chase; S. M. Oliver, counsel for the National Association of Mutual Savings Banks; Chester H. Gray and Carlton Putnam, president of the Chicago & Southern Air Lines.

At the afternoon meeting the conference appointed a continuing committee headed by Arthur M. Hill, chairman of the Atlantic Greyhound Corporation. Hill said his group will meet again September 30 to begin formulating a definite railroad rehabilitation program to submit to the next session of the transportation conference and to Congress.

Writer of 'Old '96' Wins $65,295

Camden, N. J., Sept. 15 (AP).—A 10-year court fight brought $65,295 to 62-year-old David Graves George today for the "Wreck of the Old '96."

A final decree, ordering the Victor Talking Machine Co. to pay George that much as the author of the ballad, was handed down by Federal Judge J. Boyd Avis in United States District Court.

The money was half the royalties on the sale of more than a million records. George got only half because the "Prisoner's Song" was on the other side. The case had been fought up to the Supreme Court.

Tennessee G.O.P. Launches Battle To Win State

Knoxville, Tenn., Sept. 15 (AP).—Tennessee Republicans launched a militant campaign today, nominating Howard Baker, of Huntsville, for Governor as a running mate for Harley Fowler, of Knoxville, Senatorial nominee.

More than 2,000 Republicans formed a harmonious organization to nominate Baker without opposition to oppose Prentice Cooper, of Shelbyville, Democratic nominee, and Roy Wallace, of Loudon, running as an independent, in the November 8 election.

The convention adopted a platform bitterly condemning the New Deal and pledging State and national political and legislative reforms to protect the independence of individuals, and the rights of the States from Federal domination.

Fowler will oppose Tom Stewart, of Winchester.

Merchant Finds Man Who Will Sell Him an Eye

Richlands, Va., Sept. 15 (AP).—Success tonight rewarded M. O. Warner's search for an eye—the blind merchant announced he had "closed a deal" for the purchase of an optic.

Warner, who has operated a store here for the past 20 years, withheld identification of the man he said had agreed to sell him a left eye and asserted he would seek immediately the services of a specialist in an attempt to have the organ grafted.

Other than to say that the prospective seller was an "out of the State man," and not a convict, Warner declines to discuss him.

The merchant, whose eyes were affected by a premature explosion at Konner's Rock, Va., while he was working as a contractor, had offered a "reasonable sum" to any convict who would sell an eye.

Riley Takes Lead In California

San Francisco, Sept. 15 (AP).—Ray L. Riley took the lead from Philip Bancroft for the California Republican Senatorial nomination today when complete reports from the August 30 primary were tabulated.

The tabulation included official figures from 32 of the State's 58 counties. Riley had 294,114 votes and Bancroft 293,529. For days Bancroft had been leading but straggling returns gradually whittled down his margin.

The complete official vote probably will be needed to determine the winner, who will oppose Sheridan Downey, Democrat, advocate of the $30-a-week pension plan.

Va. Judge Stays Birth Film Ruling

Richmond, Va., Sept. 15 (AP).—Judge Julien Gunn held in abeyance today his decision on the showing of the film, "The Birth of a Baby," after hearing several witnesses testify in City Circuit Court for and against the commercial use of the moving picture.

The question of whether the film should be permitted to be shown in Virginia commercially came before his court on an appeal from the action of the State censorship board rejecting it.

Henlein Sought As Traitor, Safe in Reich

Czech

tating for independence from Austria.

"I am sure every Sudeten German will understand Henlein is right in following these same tactics."

Should Henlein be caught and convicted on the treason charge, he would face a possible sentence of life imprisonment.

Three thousand persons who fled troubled Sudetenland arrived here today. Other groups were reported making their way across the frontier into Germany. The Red Cross helped many of those here find temporary refuge in public buildings.

The newspaper Erzgebirgsche Generalanzieger in Berlin said Prince and Princess Max Zu Hohenlohe-Langenburg, recent hosts to Viscount Runciman, were among "refugees" streaming across the Czechoslovak frontier into Germany today.

The newspaper said the prince declared he had been the target of Czech threats since he entertained Lord Runciman, head of the British mediation commission in the Czechoslovak-Sudeten dispute, at his Rottenhaus estate several days ago. It added hat the prince "feared for the safety of his life."

Czech "Terror" Reported

One thousand "refugees" poured across the frontier into Albernhau and Ehrenfriederdorf, in Saxony, the newspaper said. It added that some, from Goerkau, a town near Prince Zu Hohenlohe-Langenburg's estate, reported Czech police had been terrorizing the population since Monday.

The Vienna edition of the Voelkischer Beobachter, Hitler's newspaper, issued an extra carrying reports that Slovak and Ruthenian soldiers belonging to Czech army regiments stationed near the frontier had crossed the border into Upper and Lower Austria.

The newspaper said an unannounced number of the soldiers came singly and in small groups and handed over their arms to German authorities. It added that this part of the border was occupied by Slovak and Carpatho-Russian regiments, which, they said, did not want to fight for the Czechs.

Treason Trial Planned

The cabinet for several hours studied Henlein's proclamation, in which he told "this civilized world" that the Sudeten Germans "want to return to their home in the Reich."

The cabinet decided firmly to submit the evidence to the public prosecutor with directions to bring action against Henlein under provisions of the act for the protection of the republic—the law with which Czechoslovakia defines treason.

Henlein's proclamation had been issued at Eger, Sudeten German city within 3 miles of the German border, and was first presented to the German Official News Agency and then was broadcast by German radio stations in Vienna, Leipzig and Dresden. This procedure brought contents of the proclamation to the Sudeten area effectively.

It was understood several other Sudeten party chiefs faced prosecution under the same law of the republic.

Official government reports listed at 29 the number of persons killed in fighting between Sudeten Germans and Czechoslovak gendarmerie since Monday night, when Reichsfuehrer Hitler made his angry speech at Nuremberg promising help to the Sudetens.

The government tonight clamped martial law tighter upon Sudeten German cities, adding the communities of Reichenberg, Rumburg and Schluckenau—all near the German frontier in northwestern Czechoslovakia—to the area under the control of troops.

It also placed the City of Warnsdorf, on the German frontier, under martial law after reports circulated that Sudeten Germans were gathering at nearby Komotau for a march on Warnsdorf.

The march failed to materialize, but at Warnsdorf windows of Jewish shops were smashed. Swastika banners flew in the streets of Komotau and large numbers of residents, fearing new disorders, fled to Prague.

The extension of martial law brought approximately two-thirds of the 3,500,000 Sudeten Germans under military rule.

Officials in Prague tonight said they had no reports of any new disorders in Sudeten German regions, but a general strike in Reichenberg, one of the largest industrial areas in the country, gave the authorities new worries.

All shops and factories were closed but street cars and some other public services still were operated.

Belgrade Anti-Hitler Riot

Belgrade, Yugoslavia, Sept. 15 (U.P.).—Dispatches from Zagreb tonight said thousands of anti-German demonstrators broke through police cordons and smashed windows of the German tourist office in the center of the city, shouting "Down with Hitler and Fascism." The mob paraded the streets until dispersed by police reinforcements.

Chamberlain To Confer With Hitler Again

Hitler

ing Hitler to state exactly what he wanted, and it's nearly clear the Fuehrer outlined the principal points of his program definitely. In German quarters it was said there was a tentative "agreement in principle"—probably revolving about the plebiscite thesis—which Chamberlain is to report to his government, as well as to Paris.

The conferees, it is understood, failed to go into much detail, though Hitler presented a dossier of complaints concerning the treatment of Sudetens. Dr. Gauss, co-adviser of the German foreign office cooled his heels at the Grand Hotel throughout most of yesterday, a fact which showed the negotiations did not progress as far as the fine points of an agreement.

Talk Friendly

The conversation, it is asserted, was friendly. Spokesmen for both sides expressed qualified "pleasure" with the results and say there is reason for "limited optimism." Yet in German quarters the "necessity of speed" is emphasized and the fear is expressed that when the Fuehrer's proposals are placed in the hands of the "legalists" in London and Paris, the delay will be "intolerable."

Chamberlain is scheduled to depart for London at 9:30 a. m. (3:30 a. m. E. S. T.).

Unverified rumors from Berchtesgaden on the details of the negotiations between the prime minister and chancellor should be accepted with the greatest reserve. It seems probable Chamberlain has agreed tentatively—pending the approval of the British and French governments—to Hitler's proposal for a plebiscite of some sort or other.

Phone to Duce?

Chamberlain's pilgrimage to Hitler's mountain retreat seems to have decreased immensely the dangers of war.

Among the reports is one that immediately after the conference there was a long telephone conversation between the Chalet and Rome—Hitler reporting to Mussolini.

The battle gray Lockheed Electra in which Prime Minister Chamberlain and his entourage left London yesterday morning touched German soil at Munich airport at 12:30 p. m. Thus the crossing was made in 3 hours and 50 minutes.

Met by Ribbentrop

When Chamberlain descended from his plane he was welcomed by Von Ribbentrop. Smiling, Ribbentrop went through the gesture of the salute which caused so much criticism when he, as Ambassador to London, used it in his audience with the King. The prime minister lifted his soft felt hat and smiled in return. The two men, who had known each other under other circumstances, shook hands heartily.

Ribbentrop's opening words—in English—were: "I greet you in the name of my fuehrer and my country." After Chamberlain had thanked his welcomer, there was an exchange of commonplaces concerning the weather and the flight. Besides several Swastika flags, a couple of large Union Jacks flew from the Munich airport. A small group of Germans assembled, hailed and saluted in the Nazi manner and cheered. A handful of British subjects present indulged in conservative handclapping.

The public ovations occurred as the party drove through the streets of Munich, at the Munich station and at the villages along the winding railway up through the Bavarian Alps. As Chamberlain lunched with Ribbentrop in the special dining car, he could hear from time to time the heils and cheers from without.

There was a colorful reception at the Berchtesgaden station, where the special train arrived at 4:05 p. m. The Bavarian mountaineers used their well-tried voices to roar out a welcome to Chamberlain.

On the station platform the prime minister was met, among others, by Dr. Otto Meissner, state secretary at the chancellery. Again there was a caravan of Schutz Staffel cars. In the driving rain the small group of Germans and the British mission entered those cars and were driven to the Grand Hotel, where quarters for Chamberlain and his party had been arranged.

Surprise Move Of Hitler Sends Briton Home

London

many and Italy to guarantee peace. He may have demanded a plebiscite.

He may have told Chamberlain that outright annexation of Czechoslovakia's Sudeten fringe was the only way to avoid war.

In any event, most sources believed Hitler had made such far-reaching proposals that Chamberlain could not commit himself without approval of his own and possibly the French government, the Associated Press said.—Editor's Note.]

The crucial cabinet meeting with Chamberlain will be held either tomorrow night or Saturday morning. Over the week-end, Premier Daladier and Foreign Minister Bonnet, of France, are due in Downing street to talk over the new development.

Some time next week, Chamberlain hopes to resume his conversations with Hitler.

Prior to Chamberlain's decision to rush home, arrangements had been made for the recall of Parliament next week to hear the results of the prime minister's talks with Hitler. Parliament may yet get together, but no full-dress debate is anticipated if Chamberlain still intends to renew his confidential tea chats with the German chancellor.

Today's meeting at Berchtesgaden is described in Whitehall as "very friendly." The best conjecture is that Hitler asked Chamberlain to say yes or no as to whether he favored self-determination for the Sudeten Germans by means of a plebiscite in Bohemia.

Hostage Plan Rumored

[Ward Price, Daily Mail correspondent close to the Nazi regime, wrote today that Germany is sending a strong note to the Czechoslovak government immediately threatening that if attacks on Sudeten Germans continue, Germany will arrest Czech residents of the Reich and hold them as hostages for better treatment of Sudetens, the United Press said.—Editor's Note.]

Chamberlain, remembering the uproar in 1935 over the deal between Sir Samuel Hoare, then foreign secretary, and former Premier Laval of France, for the partition of Ethiopia, would desire indorsement by his cabinet and by Parliament before he consented to any deal for the partition of Czechoslovakia.

The situation was complicated further tonight when it was reported Viscount Runciman, the unofficial British mediator in Prague, was returning to London to consult Chamberlain. The Runciman scheme for reorganization of Czechoslovakia into a system of cantons along the lines of the Swiss confederation has been rejected by the Germans. The next step, if Runciman and Chamberlain are prepared to go that far, is to bring pressure upon Prague to yield to Hitler's demand for a plebiscite in Bohemia.

Will Hitler Ask More?

But first of all, Chamberlain, in his chat with Hitler, was believed to be seeking assurance whether Hitler would be satisfied with what he could extort now, or whether he would attempt to nibble away at Hungary, Rumania, Lihuania, Poland and the Ukraine, to strengthen his war machine for a westward fling at France and Britain, to reverse the verdict of 1918.

Not without significance is the visit to London of Maxine Weygand, inspector general of the French army, who was the right-hand man to Marshal Foch in the World War. It is denied that Gen. Weygand has visited the war office, where French and British military experts have been co-ordinating their general staff plans. The Weygand mission is said to be in furtherance of a French proposal for an international police force to patrol Bohemia pending a plebiscite. Britain and France, perhaps even America, would be invited to send impartial observers.

While hoping for peace from the Hitler-Chamberlain conversations, the British government and Lloyd's underwriters proceeded today with their precautions against the sudden outbreak of war.

The meeting of Lloyd's in the city decided to give 48 hours notice of the termination of all contracts covering war risks. It was explained that contracts made in the past have included a clause covering war risks, but with a provision for the cancellation of the war risk clause on 48 hours' notice. It was resolved to take advantage of this loophole, as from this midnight, so that those concerned will not be covered on war risk after Saturday night.

Activity in Whitehall centered around the officers of the Imperial Defense Committee, where the chief cabinet ministers studied war plans with such defense experts as Viscount "Tiger" Gort, chief of the imperial general staff, and Admiral Sir Harold Brown, director-general of munitions production. It is presumed the secret conclave discussed mobilization of the air force, navy and army on short notice.

Two million gas masks are now in storage for London's populace and thousands more are being manufactured daily. Air raid wardens have speeded up their work and door-to-door canvassing is under way to fit householders with masks which will be supplied free if war comes.

Half a million sand bags were transported by trucks through London today, for barricades and shelters against shrapnel from the air.

Before the respite afforded by Chamberlain's flying trip to Germany, officials of the German embassy had begun to pack their baggage. Secret archives of the embassy are already prepared for shipment to Berlin.

King George VI looked grave and worried as he returned to Buckingham Palace this morning, after an overnight trip from Balmoral Castle. He was cheered by small crowds along the route from the railroad station. His first visitor was Sir John Simon, chancellor of the exchequer, and acting head of the cabinet in the prime minister's absence. Sir John informed the king of the lines which Chamberlain anticipated his talk with Hitler would take.

Later the King received Lord Halifax, Sir Thomas Inskip, defense co-ordination minister, and Sir Samuel Hoare, home secretary, who is in charge of air raid precautions.

With the King's approval the Archbishop of Canterbury has proclaimed next Sunday a day of national prayer for peace.

Among the hundreds of people who went to Westminster Abbey today to pray for peace at the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier was a pleasant, neatly-dressed woman, Mrs. Anne Chamberlain, wife of the prime minister. She knelt for two minutes in prayer, recognized by few of her fellow intercessors.

Despite the absence of the prime minister, police had to keep the curious throngs moving in Downing street again today. All that most of them saw was No. 10 and the painters at work decorating the drab residence. A few saw Mrs. Chamberlain go for a morning walk. She smiled acknowledgment when some women waved handkerchiefs, clapped hands and shouted: "Good luck to Mr. Chamberlain."

Say it with a Clear Skin

NO man or woman wants to have a finger poked at them or receive sympathy because of an unhealthy skin appearance.

Some skin troubles are tough to correct, but we do know this—skin tissues like the body itself must be fed from within.

To make the food we eat available for strength and energy, there must be an abundance of red-blood-cells.

S.S.S. Tonic builds these precious red cells. It is a simple, internal remedy, tested for generations and also proven by scientific research.

You, too, will want to take S.S.S. Tonic to regain and to maintain your red-blood-cells . . . to restore lost weight . . . to regain energy . . . to strengthen nerves . . . and to give to your skin that natural health glow.

Take the S.S.S. Tonic treatment and shortly you should be delighted with the way you feel . . . and have your friends compliment you on the way you look. There is no substitute for this time-tested remedy. No ethical druggist will suggest something "just as good."

S.S.S. Tonic stimulates the appetite and helps change weak blood cells to strong ones.

Conflict Fears Eased in World Finance Marts

War Commodities Drop on N. Y. Exchange as Peace Stocks Regain Wednesday Losses

By the Associated Press.

New York, Sept. 15.—If the world's financial markets are sensitive barometers of world affairs, general war in Europe is further away tonight than it seemed yesterday.

News that Chamberlain and Hitler might be discussing not only solution of the immediate Czechoslovak crisis, but a long-time plan which would reconcile ambitions and commit Europe's four mightiest nations to keep the peace, made a market impression today upon the world financial communities.

War Babies Recede

Stocks and bonds hit by the war scare went up again.

Commodities which rose on threat of war, such as wheat, went down; those which go down when war looms, such as cotton, went up.

The flight to the dollar by frightened foreign capitalists wavered, and the dollar fell a bit in terms of the British pound and the French franc.

Bankers in New York publicly offered a large issue of securities they found prudent to hold back yesterday.

Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau's statement the United States' vast gold hoard will be used as necessary to meet eventualities reassured financiers here and abroad.

Few doubted that general war in Europe is still possible; financiers thought it less likely. But armaments go on and nonferrous metals, such as copper futures, lead and zinc rose in price. Shipping still faces potential danger, and American and European underwriters today took steps to cancel existing rates on war-risk insurance for maritime freight.

In brief, today's reactions in the various financial centers were as follows:

New York—Stock market calmer; leading shares up $1 to $4; bonds higher on a broad scale. Cotton was higher with improved trade and foreign demand; copper futures, export copper, tin futures, lead and zinc all higher. Underwriters offered $25,000,000 Atlantic Refining Co., 3 per cent debentures at 99, postponed because of yesterday's war fears. In the local foreign exchange market the British pound closed unchanged at $4.80⅞, the French franc 2.69¾ cents, .00⅛ higher.

Prices Rise in London

London—A wave of buying hit the stock exchange, precipitating a near squeeze early; later prices eased off some but held up pretty well at the close, with United States corporate securities still in demand although mixed. German and Czechoslovak obligations jumped up as much as 7 and 8 points, respectively. After the market close, traders jammed the "shorters court" (curb) market executing New York buying orders. Gold (has been climbing on demand from hoarders) was off 8 pence an ounce. The American dollar closed 1¼ cents lower at 4.81 ¼ to the pound.

Paris Bourse—Trend higher, some issues up nearly 10 per cent.

Prieto, Ex-Premier Of Spain, Dies

Burgos, Spain, Sept. 15 (AP).—Manuel Garcia Prieto, Marques de Alhucemas, for six years (1917-1923) prime minister under the former Spanish monarchy, died today at San Sebastian. He was 78.

The marques, a lawyer, diplomat and liberal monarchist, entered the cabinet in 1905 as minister of the interior and held various portfolios until he became premier in 1917.

He was ousted by the coup engineered by Primo de Rivera in 1923. He then retired to private life except for two months in 1931 when he was minister of grace and justice in the last monarchial cabinet, headed by Admiral Juan Bautista Aznar.

Women Spur Chamberlain on Peace Mission

Briton Asked Hitler's Aims, Averted War, French Say

By the United Press.

Paris, Sept. 15.—Prime Minister Chamberlain's conference with Reichsfuehrer Hitler at Berchtesgaden today was believed in high French government quarters to have definitely averted the immediate risk of war.

Coincident with Chamberlain's arrival in Germany to confer directly with the German Fuehrer, a government statement was released explaining the nature of the British premier's trip.

It was said Chamberlain was prepared to ask Hitler directly:

Whether he wishes only to help the Sudeten Germans.

Whether he has even wider aims extending beyond the Sudetenland to the domination of all of Czechoslovakia.

The government statement made it clear Chamberlain had a "free hand" in the discussions, but pointed out there is an unwritten promise on the part of the British not to make and decision without consulting France.

This understanding, therefore, made it obvious, the government said, that the Berchtesgaden talks were purely informative.

It was learned Premier Daladier, who telephoned Chamberlain last Tuesday proposing the direct approach to Hitler, had originally proposed a three-cornered meeting between Daladier, Chamberlain and Hitler.

The British government decided there was no chance of such a meeting and preferred to have Chamberlain go alone to see Hitler. Daladier at first was understood to have suggested former Premier Stanley Baldwin make the trip, but Chamberlain preferred to go himself.

It was understood the talk was planned to be twofold: First, an exploration of the possible means of a peaceful liquidation of the Sudeten German minority problem in Czechoslovakia; and, second, a widening of the conversations tending toward a general settlement of major European problems.

The latter were understood to include the questions of colonies which Germany has demanded as a readjustment of the post-war split of her colonies among the victorious allies; and an air pact, which France long has advocated.

Meanwhile a strong bloc of French political opinion, which has been veering away from the principle of supporting France's treaty obligations to Czechoslovakia, sought to cement this position.

Former Premier Flandin, who attacked the government's position in an article in Le Journal, proposed France denounce all its mutual assistance treaties and refuse to become involved in any armed engagements unless France herself were attacked.

Japanese Drive On Hankow; See Entry by Oct. 10

Shanghai, (Friday) Sept. 16 (AP).—Japanese military authorities today reported continued advances along both banks of the Yangtze River less than 100 miles southeast of Hankow.

Chinese advices from the zone of fighting said the Japanese were making utmost use of artillery and aircraft to conserve manpower and were holding back from large-scale infantry assaults.

Chinese reported the invaders hoped to reach Hankow before October 10, a Chinese holiday which commemorates establishment of the republic.

There were unconfirmed reports the Japanese wished to announce on October 10 the establishment of a new unified government in Japanese-occupied areas—a new "central government of the Republic of China," which would include the present Japanese-sponsored Nanking and Peiping regimes.

Polish Entry Wins Balloon Race

Liege, Belgium, Sept. 15 (AP).—Poland was declared winner today of the twenty-sixth James Gordon Bennett ballon race, which started here September 11.

With the Polish Polonia II the only balloon unreported of nine starters, that country's L.O.P.P. entry was credited with floating the longest distance—990 miles to Trojan, Bulgaria. The winning entry was piloted by Antoni Janusz.

Japan Seeks A Stronger Anti-Red Pact

Konoye Sees Saionji, 88, Last Elder Statesman, and Says He Fears Communists in China

By the Associated Press.

Tokyo, Sept. 15.—Premier Prince Konoye said today the Japanese cabinet agreed on strengthening the Japanese-German-Italian anti-Comintern Pact.

The premier made the statement after a conference with 88-year-old Prince Kimmochi Saionji, last of the elder statesmen. Konoye visited Saionji for the first time since August 26, 1937, just after the outbreak of the Chinese-Japanese war.

It was reported the premier outlined the progress of the war and discussed plans to deal with the Chinese problem after the expected fall of Hankow and Japan's friendship with Germany and Italy in the European crisis.

A German-Japanese pact, an agreement for mutual exchange of information on international Communist activities and for joint action on "necessary defense measures" was signed November 25, 1936. On November 6, 1937, Italy became the third party to the pact.

Komoye said the cabinet had agreed on how to strengthen the three-power pact because Japan expects communist influence on the Chinese nationalist government to increase steadily.

The premier said he did not believe the fall of Hankow would mean the end of the war in China. He added that the Tokyo government intends to issue a statement classifying the regime of Gen. Chiang Kai-Shek as a provincial administration.

Domei (Japanese news agency) quoted the premier as saying:

"It is necessary for us to make every effort to make other powers abandon their alleged assistance to Chiang Kai-Shek while continuing a policy of respect for third power interests."

100 Bodies Found In Persian Flood

Teheran, Sept. 15 (AP).—More than 100 bodies were recovered today after floods wrecked most of the town of Nahavend, between Mamadan and Kermanshah, in southwestern Iran, Persia. All government buildings in Nahavend were reported destroyed.

Britain Reinforces Palestine As Arabs Hail Hitler, Duce

By the Associated Press.

London, Sept. 15.—A broad scale movement of British reinforcements to troubled Palestine was announced here today simultaneous with reports Egypt was taking defense precautions in North Africa in conjunction with Britain.

Although officials declined to disclose the exact number of troops going to Palestine, it was estimated 8,000 men were involved in the transfer to the Holy Land where many Arabs are hailing Reichsfuehrer Hiler of Germany and Premier Mussolini of Italy as their "hope" in the Arab-Jewish dispute.

The colonial office announced two cavalry regiments and a battalion of the West Yorkshire Regiment were being sent to Palestine, along with three battalions from India.

A British regiment stationed at Cairo was ordered to stand by and an estimated 3,000 Egyptian troops left for Mersamatruh, strategic point in the wastes bordering Libya, Italy's North African colony.

King Farouk of Egypt is on a tour of the defenses along the western desert. Egyptian War Minister Hassan Sabry Pasha, is conferring with British authorities here.

Intensification of military precautions was reported from Malta, British "Island Gibraltar" in the Mediterranean. An infantry regiment was standing by, and three cruisers and a destroyer flotilla returned suddenly from the British fleet's eastern Mediterranean cruise. Ammunition was distributed this afternoon to artillerymen and engineers on the island.

Hitler and Mussolini were brought to the fore in Palestine following the Fuehrer's Nuremberg speech Tuesday in which he said Arabs in the Holy Land were "defenseless and left in the lurch."

President Back To Chart U.S. Course in Crisis

Roosevelt

course the United States might be expected to follow in case war should break out in Europe.

Mr. Roosevelt's return direct to the Capital from Rochester, Minn., where he had gone for the operation on his son, James, interrupted his previous plans to go back to his Hyde Park home. During the trip from Rochester to Washington he was in frequent telephonic touch with Secretary Hull.

The warning by Assistant Secretary Edison that industrialists should devote themselves to preparedness for trouble was made in a speech prepared for delivery on his visit to the Westinghouse Electric & Manufacturing Co., at Pittsburgh.

Asking the question, "How close is war?" he continued:

"Go home and spare yourselves the sedative of wishful thinking. Science has annihilated time and space. The broad moats of the Atlantic and Pacific have narrowed to the dimensions of an inland sea. In the valleys of the Monongahela, the Allegheny and the Ohio lie great industries that will determine the fate of our national life. The Navy can only be as ready as you are ready.

"It is my fervent hope that the next meeting of your board of directors, your executive committees, your labor groups will be devoted to questions of preparedness—to the part you will play if trouble comes."

"Ships Unsurpassed"

Declaring "our new ships cannot be surpassed in any navy," he cautioned that "in times of peace and particularly when no naval building is under way, industry must largely bear the torch of progress in engineering . . . Ever since the present building program started in 1933, we have been hard at work incorporating in our new ships the tremendous advance in engineering design which had taken place in the preceding years."

"I think," he added, "you all will agree with me that after due consideration of the situation as it exists abroad today, realizing, as you are especially qualified to realize, the enormous difficulties of suddenly putting a naval program into production, that the rebuilding of the navy which started in 1933 constituted a real act of foresight and statesmanship."

The National Council for Prevention of War declared passage of a provision for a referendum before war could be carried on by the United States would be sought as the first act of the new Congress.

Representative Louis Ludlow (Democrat), of Indiana, author of the referendum resolution in the last Congress, said he would press for passage. Ludlow, incidentally, declared the flight of British Prime Minister Chamberlain to confer with Chancellor Hitler was "about the finest thing ever done by anybody at any time in the history of the world."

The Chamberlain-Hitler conference tended to bring some easing of tension in diplomatic circles, pending outcome of the talks designed to find a solution of the Czechoslovakian-Sudeten problem.

Allies' Failure to Live Up to Treaty Is Blamed for Czech Crisis

By John Bertram Oakes.

THE CRISIS that has burst upon Europe is result not of the post-war ettlement of 1919 but of the failure of the victorious powers to live up to it.

That was the opinion expressed yesterday by the man who had more to do with the fixing of European boundaries after the war than any other Amercan expert: Dr. Isaiah Bowman, world famous geographer and now president of Johns Hopkins University.

"The Allied nations held out hope of two vitally important developments that in 1919 we had every reason to believe would be accomplished," said Dr. Bowman, who was chief territorial specialist in the American delegation to Paris headed by Woodrow Wilson.

"Those two developments were disarmament and, if necessary, revision of post-war treaties. Refusal to disarm and to revise the treaties under changed conditions were two prime factors in European unrest. Now we are faced with the unhappy outcome."

Asked by The Post to explain why the experts of 1919 permitted the inclusion of over 3,000,000 Germans within the Czechoslovakian Republic, Dr. Bowman pointed out that—so far as he recalled—no one at the Paris conference pushed the question of tacking the Sudeten area on to Germany.

"Of course we realized that trouble might result from conflict of nationalities inside the new republic," Dr. Bowman stated. "But minority rights—with respect to language, education and government—were guaranteed by treaty.

Speaking with the precise tones of a scholar, Dr. Bowman added that "Too often it is forgotten that we" in 1919 were making a treaty for conditions existing in 1919 and in an atmosphere charged with genuine fear of the might of Germany."

"It's very easy to say now that we should have foreseen the future," he remarked with some feeling. "It's easy to say now that the Sudeten lands should have been wrenched from their historic connection with the crown of Bohemia and added to a homogeneous Germany.

"But who was giving Germany anything in 1919? Any proposal to add to Germany's territories would have been utterly unthinkable in that era when the world feared the resurgence of German power. Remember, the Germans had been almost at the gates of Paris less than a year before. We felt that a safe Germany was a weak Germany.

"We made a good map of Europe at the Paris conference. It fitted the conditions of 1919—and the Versailles Treaty, through the League Covenant, provided for territorial revisions should the necessity arise. It is hardly the treaty's fault that when the conditions of 1919 were altered, the nations of Europe failed to make revisions as provided.

"In forming the boundaries of Czechoslovakia, the Wilsonian principle of self-determination had to bow before considerations of national defense and economic resources and historic tradition. On each of these counts, the German populations of Bohemia should have been—and were—included in Czechoslovakia.

"Self-determination was by no means the only guiding principle. It was important, but even more important, was the necessity that the new states live—'viable' was the term on everybody's lips that spring in Paris.

"And for Czechoslovakia to live, it seemed necessary to include certain economically or strategically important areas that contained large minority populations.

"The German area of Bohemia includes mines and industries that had long been economically as well as politically dependent on the lands to the east and south. It was only natural that the ancient frontier should be respected and the area retained for Czechoslovakia.

"In any case, it is absurd to assume that in any part of Central Europe, a frontier can be drawn exactly separating nationalities. Even if the whole atmosphere and mental outlook of 1919 had been totally disregarded, even if we had desired to increase the German territories beyond their 1914 limits—even then we would have been unable to add the Sudeten lands to Germany without including a goodly number of Czechs.

"It may be unfortunate that 90 per cent of the border lands of the Czechoslovak Republic are inhabited by people who are neither Czechs nor Slovaks. But Germans, Poles, Ruthenians and Magyars all had to be included in the new state if it was to have any economic or strategic strength—that is, any viability."

"It wasn't so obvious in 1919 as in 1938," Dr. Bowman concluded, "that the various treaties would eventually be thrown into the discard. When people ask me why we couldn't look ahead 20 years, I always reply, 'Can you forsee the political situation in any section of Europe as it will be—not 20—but two or three years from now?' "

As for the immediate rights and wrongs of the current Czech-German dispute, Dr. Bowman said with a smile, "At a time like this, a university president isn't the man to deliver an opinion; you'd better ask Secretary Hull."

At the same time it was pointed out that the relief occasioned by the mildness of Hitler's long-feared address earlier in the week had lasted only a day, being swept away by the outbreak of fighting in the Sudeten area and declaration of martial law by the Czech government.

Secretary Hull said in his press conference:

"The historic conference today between the prime minister of Great Britain and the chancellor of Germany is naturally being observed with the greatest interest by all nations which are deeply concerned in the preservation of peace."

Ludlow, predicting there will be no war, added:

"If peace is to reign and civilization it will be due in large deluge is to escape the threatened measure in my opinion to this bold and unprecedented move of the British premier . . . If there had been a Chamberlain 20 years ago to cut the deadly maze of diplomatic red tape and proceed by direct action we might have been spared the horrors of the last World War."

Senator Borah, leaving Poland Springs, Mo., where he had been for a rest, expressed the belief this country could remain out of a general European war. He declared the course to follow is to use "every reasonable and honorable means to keep out of these European conflicts and controversies—and I firmly believe it possible to keep out," but he added that "no one would undertake to prophesy what may happen in Europe."

The State Department announced meanwhile that arms export licenses totaling $1,152,293 had been issued Great Britain in August. This compared with only $11,500 in July and provided in part for the export of 200 observation planes and 200 training planes great Britain has ordered from American manufacturers.

The department did not disclose how many planes the $1,152,293 covered, nor the ultimate cost of all the planes.

While the British licenses represented almost one-half of the total granted for the month, the second largest recipient was Russia which obtained permission to import from this country $485,514 worth of airplanes. Yugoslavia, also in the theater of war was third with $307,700, for military aircraft.

Licenses for only $179,249 of airplane shipments to Japan were issued in August, ocmpared with $1,125,492 worth in July. The licenses granted in August were to enable manufacturers to complete contracts previously signed with Japan.

Secretary Hull in June urged manufacturers to stop shipping planes to countries that bomb civilian populations.

Sudeten minority's aid "to restore order."

Some Nazi spokesmen openly admitted that if Chamberlain had not decided to come to Germany Nazi troops would have marched across the Czechoslovak border today.

This they said need surprise no one, for Hitler's closing speech at Nuremberg Monday made it perfectly clear he would not stand for further harm to come to the Germanic minority in Czechoslovakia.

These sources said they considered virtual cival war to exist in the Sudeten regions giving Hitler reason to make good his threat.

Town's Water Seen Unsafe

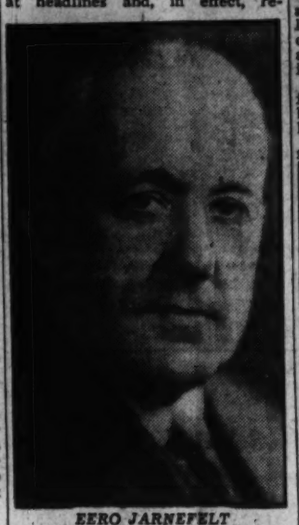
Fincastle, Va., Sept. 15. (AP)—Dr. James Gordon, Botetourt County Health Officer, said tests disclosed four of every five public water sources in Fincastle—a town of 500 persons with no active governing body—were unsafe for drinking purposes because of pollution.

U.S. More Worried About War Than Finland, Envoy Declares

Eero Jarnefelt Back After 2-Month Trip to Home; Predicts Peaceful Solution

Belief the central European crisis will end in conciliation instead of conflict was expressed yesterday by Eero Jarnefelt, Minister of Finland to the United States, who returned Tuesday to this country from a two-month stay at his summer home in Finland.

Back at his post in the Finnish legation at 2416 Tracy place yesterday afternoon, Jarnefelt took a look at headlines and, in effect, responded with a reproving "tsk, tsk."



EERO JARNEFELT

"Yes, it looks very bad here," he said. "From the headlines it looks like a very difficult situation, but I believe conciliation will follow."

Jarnefelt said there is "more war talk in the United States than in Finland."

"Of course, the situation has grown more acute between Czechoslovakia and Germany than it was at the time I left Finland," he said. "But over here you are more excited over a war scare than we in Finland."

Finland's position in the European picture is in the audience, he insisted. Whatever action Sudeten Germans, or Germany itself, may take will have little effect on Finland, he added.

"Finland's policy has been rather to adhere to the policy of the Scandinavian countries and keep out of the affairs of Central Europe," the envoy said. "We have no interest at stake in the present crisis, with the exception of our obligations as member of the League of Nations."

The minister said war in Central Europe would affect interests of Finland in about the same proportion that a war between two small South American countries would affect interests of the United States.

"Right now the European situation is a very burning question," he stated, "but it is near a climax."

Finland is keeping "hands off," he added, and preparing for the 1940 Olympic games to be held at Helsingfors.

"We are a peace loving people and are satisfied to sit on the sidelines," Jarnefelt said. "Business conditions in Finland are excellent and we are going to keep on paying our war debt."

The minister has been on leave from the legation here. He disembarked in New York Tuesday from his summer home near Helsingfors.

WE ASKED 1000 MEN TO RATE THIS WHISKEY

Here is the astonishing result: In their opinion Old Quaker—now 3 years old—is worth an average of over $1.00 more a quart than its actual price.

We asked 1,000 men to rate 3-year Old Quaker. One of them (right) was John A. Irwine, New Jersey business man. His word-for-word opinion follows:

"I'm sure I hit the right price when I say close to $4.00 a quart. Man—tell me where I can get it for less! It has what I call bouquet—it sure tastes slick, all right."

Here is the answer we received from 1,000 men who didn't know the age, name or price of the whiskey they were trying.

These 1,000 men rated 3-year Old Quaker as worth an average of $1.39 more per quart than its actual price.

Please Repeat This Trial

We say—don't accept our opinion that 3-year Old Quaker is one of America's greatest whiskies. Don't take the judgment of these 1,000 men that it's worth over $1.00 more a quart. Make your own trial.

Compare it with any other brand. And may the best one win. If it's Old Quaker—you've probably discovered a way to cut your whiskey bills one-third. 3-year Old Quaker is now on sale. Try it today.

500 Attend Dinner for Gov. Myers, Who Will Return to Cornell Post After 5 Yrs. in U. S. Job

Governor William I. Myers, retiring head of the Farm Credit Administration, was guest of honor last night at a dinner of more than 500 employes of the FCA in the Cardiman Park Hotel. The dinner was a farewell as Governor Myers is returning this month to Cornell University, where he will head the department of farm management and agricultural economics.

Governor Myers spoke briefly, expressing his appreciation, following a brief introduction by H. B. Vincent, jr., president of the Farm Credit Club, which sponsored the dinner.

In recognition of his five years as governor of the FCA, the club presented an agate-base desk set to Myers.

Myers was appointed governor of the FCA in November, 1933, when Henry Morgenthau, jr., left the post to become Secretary of the Treasury. He came to Washington in the fall of 1932 to aid Morgenthau in the drafting of farm legislation dealing with credit agencies.

The Farm Credit Chorus, composed of T. L. Fossick, Livingston Vann, Henry E. Amos and W. R. Slemmons, sang "Cornell, Alma Mater" and "Auld Lang Syne," accompanied by Miss Edna Rosenheim at the piano.

Cosmopolitan Club Hears Bank Chief

Every employe of a corporation from the president down to the office boy should be a member of the "public relations" staff of that corporation, according to Willard G. Barker, president of the Morris Plan Bank. In a talk before the Cosmopolitan Club at the Carlton, Barker told the members that the heads of each organization should start with themselves.

Henry S. Owens, a member of the club, presented to President J. L. B. Murray the Owens trophy, which will be placed in competition among the golfers of the club. The first contest for the cup will be held at Congressional Country Club Thursday.

Winchester Council Asks Armory Bonds

Winchester, Va., Sept. 15.—Members of Common Council last night voted to petition Corporation Court to issue bonds in the sum of $33,000, to match a Federal grant for construction of an armory.

A special meeting is to be held Friday afternoon to take final action on the ordinance. The council is moving against time since the election must be held prior to September 30, according to an opinion expressed by PWA officials in Richmond, if Federal funds are to be obtained.

Joint Fair Planned

Winchester, Va., Sept. 15.—Future Farmers of Middletown and Stephens City, Va., and members of the Junior Farmers Club of Frederick County have decided to hold a fair this fall at Stephens City. Heretofore, the fair has been sponsored solely by the F. F. A. chapters.

Benefit Party Starts

Winchester, Va., Sept. 15.—Members of the four volunteer fire companies tonight opened a three-day yard party for the benefit of the tuberculosis fund of the District Nurse Association. Co-sponsoring the event are the Lions Club and the Chamber of Commerce.

Aylor Heads Teachers In Frederick County

Winchester, Va., Sept. 15.—R. E. Aylor, principal of Stephens City High School, has been elected president of the Frederick County Teachers Association for the session which got under way today. Stewart Bell, principal at Gore, Va., was elected vice president.

The teachers were informed by Supt. Leslie D. Kline that the county school board has ruled that parents may permit children 12 years and older to remain out of school for a two weeks period to assist with operations on the farms and in orchards.

Stanwyck's Starlets

Seven screen starlets, Frances Mercer, Vicki Lester, Eleanor Hansen, Ann Evers Catherine O'Quinn, Whitney Bourne and Linda Terry, play the roles of Barbara Stanwyck's debutante friends in RKO Radio's "The Mad Miss Manton." Henry Fonda co-stars with Miss Stanwyck.

Legion Convention Excites Hollywood

Touring the Studios, by Remote Control, on Eve of Veterans' Conclave; Capitol Celebrates 11th Birthday Anniversary Week of September 23; Notes of Stage and Screen

By Gerald G. Gross,
Substituting for Nelson B. Bell.

JUST for a change, let's take a stroll through some of the Hollywood studios and find out what's going on at the present time. Taking them in alphabetical order brings us first to:

Columbia—Where Kit Guard, whom you old-time movie fans will remember as the pug-faced trainer in the late H. C. Witwer's prize ring series of films, has just been added to the cast of "Homicide Bureau." "In Early Arizona,"—no relation to the Roadside Theater hit—has gone into production with Franklyn Farnum, one of the famous Farnum brothers, in a prominent role. Charley Chase's latest comedy, "The Sap Takes a Wrap," has been completed and Gloria Blondell, Joan's sister, has the feminine lead. Say, this is getting to be old home week; Ethel Clayton, who was box-office tops two decades ago, also has a part in the comedy.

Merto-Goldwyn-Mayer—Joan Crawford LeSueur visited her famous aunt on the "Shining Hour" set and bought ice cream cones for the company with money she'd been saving in her penny bank. Director Norman Taurog thinks that Bobs Watson, the Pee Wee of "Boys Town," is a remarkable actor for a 7-year-old. Chances are you will think so, too. Clark Gable is smoking out of a box of cigars sent him by the President of Cuba. Una Merkel is going about under one of those new fall hats, postage stamp size.

Monogram—Louise Lorimer, New York stage actress, has been signed to play Jackie Cooper's mother in "Gangster's Boy," now in production. Wallace Fox will direct "Gun Packer," the first in a series of eight westerns starring Jack Randall.

Paramount—Yesterday, this desk is informed, "the greatest aggregation of personal appearances by stars ever presented in a theater in any city in the world during a single week" (whew) began at the Los Angeles Paramount Theater in conjunction with the showing of "Sons of the Legion." Coinciding with the American Legion's national convention, the in-the-flesh programs will present Legionnaires Bob Burns and Jack Benny, George Burns and Grace Allen, Dorothy Lamour, Bing Crosby, Ray Milland, Fred MacMurray, Akin Tamiroff, Bob Hope, Betty Grable, Gail Patrick and Donald O'Connor.

Martha Raye will be mistress of ceremonies of the "Sons of the Legion" celebration. Olympe Bradna will be hostess at a gala breakfast Sunday. Bob Burns and Jack Benny will divide the master of ceremonies duties at a banquet Monday.

• • • •

RKO—Lorna Lynn, 4-year-old actress who scored a hit on Broadway in Jed Harris' production of "The Doll's House," is preparing to come to work under a long term film contract. Lucille Ball is recovering from a swollen nose and cut lip suffered when she did her best to make a riot scene in "Affairs of Annabel" appear realistic.

Twentieth Century-Fox—The invalid at this studio is Douglas Fowley, who had a three-inch gash torn in his hand in a fist fight staged for "Inside Story." Henry Fonda caught a 7½-pound catfish between scenes in "Jesse James," which is being filmed on location in Pineville, Mo.

Universal—Deanna Durbin is rounding out her first week of classes at the studio school. Constance Bennett helped chase a fly that buzzed in the microphone and spoiled a scene in "Service de Luxe" the other day.

Warner Bros.—Miriam Hopkins has been signed to a two-picture contract, the first to be "We Are Not Alone," a James Hilton best seller. John Garfield is being mentioned for the title role in "The Story of Haym Solomon," based on incidents in the life of the Revolutionary patriot. Previously considered possibilities for the part were Paul Muni and Claude Rains. Jack L. Warner, production head, tore up the contracts of Priscilla and Rosemary Lane as a result of their work in "Four Daughters." In their place they got nicer ones. Warners' will entertain 15,000 Legionnaires and their families at the opening of the convention Monday. Kay Francis leaves for Europe in October upon completion of "Women in the Wind." Then 'twill be farewell to pictures, marriage to Baron Erich von Barnekow and a honeymoon abroad, maybe to be caught up in a war.

They're getting ready to add another candle to Loew's Capitol birthday cake. Next Friday the former Fox Theater will become 11 years old and, in celebration, Carter Barron & Co. promise: "My Lucky Star," starring Sonja Henie; the Chester Hale Capitol Dancers, if you please, launching an extended stay here; Stan Kavanagh, the juggling comedian; Roy Campbell's Singing Ambassadors, stars of vaudeville and radio; Starnes and Anavan in dance novelties; "lunacies of a new kind" by Barr and Estes; a special Phil Lampkin overture, and other features which are still in the arrangement stage.

• • • •

Gingerbread and stuff: The Boro in Bethesda, on Sunday and Monday, will show that novelty called "The New Gulliver," in which Gulliver is the only human actor and 3,000 puppets comprise the rest of the cast . . . "Four Daughters," which premiered last night at the new Silver, will open next Friday at the Earle . . . September 23 also is opening day at the Metropolitan for "Secrets of an Actress," with Kay Francis and George Brent . . . Ina Claire stars in "Generals Need Beds," a new comedy by Lewis Meltzer which will play Washington before opening in New York early in November . . . Hallowe'en night will probably witness the premiere here . . . the desk had two distinguished visitors yesterday, Alan Hale and Campbell B. Casad . . . look for some surprising slants on the former, beak-buster of "Valley of the Giants," in Sunday's column . . . Mr. Casad, advance man for the play "You Can't Take It With You," reports that the Frank Capra movie of the Hart-Kaufman comedy, far from hurting the play's business in New York, resulted in a $3,000 increase in the gross during the first week.

From England

Mary Maguire, writing from England where she is currently working in a picture for 20th Century-Fox, says that she is bringing back to Hollywood three lengths of tweeds that were handwoven in Scotland especially for her. They will be made into three suits, the colors being dusky purple, brown and blue, and of such muted, harmonious shades that jackets and skirts will be interchangeable.

The Pimpernel and His Love

Wrestler on Hoof Sampled by 'Angel'

Little Bobby Jordan, the innocent-eyed "Angel" of the "Dead End" kids, weighs 115 pounds with his clothes on. But he knows how to protect himself. He has to as a member of that gang. That's why he knew exactly what to do when a 260-pound wrestler fell into his lap as he sat ringside at the wrestling bouts with the other kids.

Bobby promptly bit the behemoth. "He tasted kinda' funny," Bobby observed when the incident was over.

In Hollywood

With Hedda Hopper

Hollywood, Calif., Sept. 15.—Wasn't it funny that on the very day the papers announced Pola Negri's disappearance and fear that she was being held in a German concentration camp, a friend, who had just returned from four weeks in Berlin, was telling me she saw Pola's latest picture in Berlin and on the Europa coming home. If Pola had been quietly whisked away, I'm certain her movies would also have been banned immediately.

Glenda Farrell is an old softie for any fast talking salesman. She bought three vacuum cleaners from them. I suspect she gets pointers for her "Torchy Blane" character with the cleaners.

George Jessel and Noel Coward had many conferences during George's trip abroad. They may produce plays together in New York this fall.

Ginger Rogers isn't a bit superstitious. Oh, no! Whistles in her dressing room, but won't put her shoes on a shelf above her head.

• • • •

Now that comedians go in pairs, why not W. C. Fields and Stan Laurel? They'd be a riot.

• • • •

Helen Broderick says every time she plays a meanie she doesn't like, she remembers some new draperies or furniture she'd like to buy, then bites into scene as though she loved it. I bought a Long Island home and furnished it once using this method. Played the most villainous females ever seen. Loathed them. Later sold the place for $40,000.

Edith Head, Paramount designer, wrote from Paris that she met Eddie Horton in Schiaparelli's buying his mother a red dress, and Eddie put the blame on me.

"I had to get it for her," he said, "because on the boat a woman asked her to show her the red dress she'd read about in Hopper's column."

• • • •

Mercy, how news travels! Edith went to Antoine's and got herself one of those new hairdresses. And when she emerged said she looked exactly like Claudette Colbert's French poodle, only poodle is pretty.

Hazel Forbes is godmother to Clara Bow's new baby, which isn't named yet. Harry Richman is godfather of first one. They're sure of having a tube of tooth paste and walking stick when they grow up. When Clara takes off 15 more pounds she's coming back on the screen.

What are we coming to? Bob Taylor bought Barbara Stanwyck a tennis court. And now Nelson Eddy has built a stone fireplace for Dorothy Lamour. Aren't there easier methods of warming our stars?

Firebug Sought In $50,000 Store Blaze

Kitt Music Company Ignited in 3 Places; Police Exonerate Two Employes

A pyromaniac who caused $50,000 damage in the Homer L. Kitt music store when he fired the building in three places after two earlier failures was sought by police and firemen last night.

Earlier Fire Marshal Calvin Lauber and police questioned two men, employes at the music store, last night, at the First Precinct Station. Capt. Harvey Callahan and Marshal Lauber agreed the men were not implicated, but checked on the chance a lead might be uncovered.

Marshal Lauber said the fire was started at three points in the store, in the basement where sheet music is stored, near the front door, and in second floor draperies. He said two other fires were started in recent weeks on the premises, one on the first floor of the adjacent building, the upper floors of which are occupied by the Kitt firm, and another in trash behind the store.

He declared everything pointed to a "fanatic" who started fires.

The first alarm was turned in at 5:32 a. m. yesterday and a second alarm a few minutes later brought nine engine companies and three trucks to the scene. The blaze raged through the basement and first two floors for more than an hour, destroying $15,000 worth of sheet music, and a number of expensive pianos and other musical instruments.

Private S. C. Morey, attached to the Twelfth Engine Company and working with No. 4 Truck, was cut on the hand by falling glass. He returned to duty after treatment at Emergency Hospital. Seventh Battalion Chief Watt, who led firemen into the basement, was overcome by gas, treated by the rescue squad, and remained on duty.

Officials of the music store said most of the loss was covered by insurance. The store opened for business yesterday, and lessons were given in the fourth-floor studios.

Fireman Wright's Teeth Found in Debris of Blaze

Private Charles A. "Buck" Wright, attached to No. 16 Fire Engine Company, had one of the best steak dinners he ever ate last night.

Earlier he hadn't been sure he would be able to handle a steak. Wright lost his false teeth while fighting the fire at the Homer Kitt Co. early yesterday. A thorough search recovered the teeth from beneath a pile of trash swept up after the fire.

Tired Waiting, Car Goes for Stroll in Park

A daylight mystery in which a car, apparently without motive power, dashed across K street in the middle of the 1300 block northwest and into Franklin Park, was puzzling park police yesterday.

The car, owned by Raymond R. Brown, 4425 Greenwich parkway northwest, was parked at the north curb. Pvt. C. P. Apfelbeck, of the park police, said it swung from the curb, careened across the street through heavy traffic.

It missed a bus, and a lamppost by inches, jumped the south curb, and came to rest against a small magnolia bush. The owner appeared a moment later, found his car unscratched, and was told there was nothing he could get a ticket for. Apfelbeck suggested a second car might have bumped the parked car hard enough to start it moving.

Paderewski Film To Reopen Belasco

The Belasco Theater, alternately light and dark during the last few years, will reopen Wednesday with the first Washington showing of Paderewski's first and only picture, "Moonlight Sonata," Jack Thoman announced last night.

Charles Farrell and Marie Tempest appear in support of the famed pianist, who plays Chopin's Polonaise in A Flat Major, Liszt's Second Hungarian Rhapsody, Beethoven's Moonlight Sonata and other classics. Although the film was made in France, all dialogue is in English.

Belasco, said Thoman, will operate continuously from 4:30 to 11:30 p. m. on week days and from 1 p. m. on Saturdays and Sundays.

Colored Barber Held On Numbers Charge

United States Commissioner Turnage yesterday held William Hooper, 46, colored barber, of 486 L street southwest, for the grand jury on charges of writing numbers and possessing slips. Bond was set at $1,500.

Similar charges were placed against William Rosenberg, 33, 2633 Sherman avenue northwest, yesterday by the police vice squad. He was held in $1,500 bond for a hearing before the commissioner next week.

Court Attache Quits

Resigning his position as an assistant clerk of the District Court, where he was assigned to Justice James M. Proctor, Robert E. Lee Goff has joined the law firm of Bowen & Kelly, it was announced yesterday.

The New Yorker

By Leonard Lyons

New York, Sept. 15.

SUCCESS: At the Stork Club last night Brian Ahearn entered in company with Eddie Moran, who wrote the movie, "Topper" . . . Before going to Hollywood, where he now is a successful writer, Moran had been one of New York's legion of hopeful but hungry . . . He seated himself at the ringside last night and greeted Arthur Brown, his friend . . . "Where are you staying?" Brown asked . . . Moran exhibited his hotel key—the Waldorf Towers . . . "Pretty swanky, eh?" Brown asked . . . "It's not that," Moran confessed. "It's just that the Waldorf is the only hotel in town which isn't holding an old trunk of mine."

• • • •

LAMENT: Enrico Caruso, jr., still hasn't succeeded in finding a singing job for himself . . . "This is what always happens," he explains. "My father's name opens all doors to me . . . My voice closes them."

• • • •

AGE: Moriz Rosenthal, dean of American concert pianists, left New York yesterday to vacation in Atlantic City . . . Before entraining, the venerable musician first completed a series of exercises to keep himself in shape . . . He did some jiu-jitsu, and then boxed—with Tommy Farr.

• • • •

AMBITION: Two years ago Jean Smith traveled from Houston, Tex., to Broadway intent upon a singing career. She canvassed the theatrical agencies without avail . . . "I'll give you a job," Louis Shurr, the agent, offered, "but it'll be the kind of a job I think you're suited for. I need a secretary" . . . Miss Smith took the job—but never conceded that her employer's talent judgment was quite accurate. That's why—although Shurr still doesn't know it—Jean Smith now has an additional job. She's singing, these nights, at Tony's on West Fifty-second street.

• • • •

CHATTER: The Photo magazine will publish its first full-length article in a forthcoming issue. It will be in connection with a spread about Roosevelt and Farley. The editors purchased the 2,500-word manuscript from Bob Kintner and Joe Alsop, the Washington columnists . . . Prince Mike Romanoff returned to New York last night . . . Ruth Aarons, the world's table-tennis champ, will essay Jai Alai at the Hippodrome tomorrow . . . Margie Hart, New York's No. 1 strip-teaser, has had another conflict with Lic. Com. Moss . . . Benny Goodman, working on a percentage basis, will play the title role in the movie version of "Young Man With a Horn."

The Federal Diary

By Scott Hart.

THE MOON WAS SHINING brightly above the sleepy inlet and spearing through the heavy tropical growths in the gardens of La Fortaleza, outside San Juan, when, two months ago, DAISY RECK appeared. Many in the crowd that danced on the balcony overlooking the inlet knew her and, indeed, we were of the impression that the Interior Department press section had sent her down there to write of the proposed tourist boom the island is wanting.

But today we called the press section to hear that she is on leave, is still in the tropics and intends TO WRITE A BOOK!

• • • •

THE TRADITIONAL IDEA of the 1,000-watt gum-chewing blonde stenographer doesn't obtain in the Federal service. The stenographer is among the Government aristocracy, is much sought by many departments and agencies, and when a good one appears on the scene—be she blonde, brunette, redhead or sandy-hair—her chances are good from the start. At this moment, the Government wants stenographers. Interestingly, male stenographers most always can be placed.

The males are wanted, often, for duty in foreign lands where women would be unsuited either under the conditions of climate or general environment.

UP FROM THE VIRGIN ISLANDS has come GOV. LAWRENCE CRAMER, who lives down there in a beautiful house overlooking a more beautiful harbor. Some time ago the Governor was agitating the idea of opening up the tourist trade to boom business in St. Thomas (and to make Americans conscious of their opportunities on home ground). It is difficult to interest private capital until the ground is set—and how will the ground become set until some money is spent to make it that way?

In any event, he lunched yesterday with active Nelson A. Loomis, of the United States Travel Bureau, and we hear that his interest in the matter is just as active as ever.

• • • •

WE DEBATED THE IDEA recently of whether Federal attorneys really want to have civil service status. Now, one of their number calls in to say that, in his opinion, inclusion is most desirable to those attorneys in the $2,000 to $4,000 salary group. They like, it was said, the idea of tenure and the evening-time consolation of retirement checks.

• • • •

"Uncompahgre," "Targhee," "Snoqualmie," "Siskiyou," "Siuslaw," "Nezperce," "Kootenai," "Mendocine" . . . All of which are neither pig Latin, the names of breakfast foods nor typographical errors. The words are names of National Forests—set down here to make you understand the tribulations of Forest Service stenographers who, on arrival to work, are ordered to take a quick letter to "Uncompahgre," or "Snoqualmie." It's a hard world.

Dr. Lewis Merriam, of the Brookings Institution, should know that his recent work on "Public Personnel Problems" is being devoured by Government chiefs . . . Uncle Sam's servants are the greatest of week-enders: One interesting group, led by a pretty Florida girl in the Social Security Board, every so often chases up to Pennsylvania to get week-end lodgings in farm homes, to ride the farmers' horses, swim in the farmers' mill ponds and eat all the stout farm cooking. Otherwise, the Camping Club of the renowned IDRA goes to the Catoctin recreational demonstration area in northern Maryland for two days and a night of dancing, hiking, photography and fun. Their next junket is October 1 and 2.

• • • •

NOTE TO THE POLITICIANS: The Government Printing Office is being rushed for copies of "The Constitution of the United States Annotated," which analyses under each article, section and clause of the Constitution approximately 5,500 Supreme Court cases interpreting that document and its amendments. In the GPO's best-seller lit, it runs a fair second to the tome telling veterans how to get benefits.

• • • •

The Civil Service Commission can make them stop talking politics (and we have heard very few of them talking it) but it can't stop them from talking about the war—the threatened one.

At Berchtesgaden

The meeting of Chamberlain and Hitler at Berchtesgaden this week is more than a conference between the heads of the two most powerful nations of Europe. It is also a meeting between completely divergent philosophies of life, two rival and perhaps irreconcilable systems of government.

It is of the essence of the democratic dogma that there can be unity in diversity; that men and nations need not see eye to eye on all matters to live in peace and harmony with one another. At Berchtesgaden, the British prime minister is obviously seeking to apply that philosophy in the realm of international affairs. Although the details of his plan for the solution of the Czechoslovak problem and for the appeasement of Europe have not yet been revealed, there is no secret regarding the belief on which it is based. It is the democratic belief that men are reasonable and can be persuaded to act in the interests of humanity.

To be sure, even in democracies, the state possesses force which it can apply when persuasion fails. At Berchtesgaden Chamberlain has behind him the great weight of Britain and the British empire, an aggregation of potential force far superior to that possessed by the Third Reich. But whereas Hitler alone is in a position to commit his nation, Chamberlain cannot do likewise. Before it can become effective any plan the British prime minister may have with respect to the European situation, must win the consent of his cabinet, of the British Parliament, of British public opinion and, last but not least, of the governments and peoples of the far-flung dominions. Chamberlain is thus hemmed in by a thousand limitations on his freedom of action; Hitler is free to act as he sees fit.

The immediate advantages, therefore, would appear to be entirely on the side of the German dictator and that is why the British premier may feel it necessary at this time to propitiate him. But even though democracies are necessarily slow-moving when it comes to a matter involving peace or war, they can exercise tremendous force once they have closed their ranks. That was proved at the time of the World War. Today it remains a fact of incalculable importance which no dictator can safely ignore.

Loss To The Service

Gov. William I. Myers of the Farm Credit Administration is leaving Washington to resume his position on the teaching staff of Cornell University. When his impending retirement became known some months ago, The Post expressed regret at the loss of a trained and competent official who had courageously resisted attempts to introduce the spoils system into the organization which he has headed. Dr. Myers also deserves high praise for the firm stand he has taken in favor of a non-subsidized, self-supporting system of agricultural credit.

The Government service—especially the newer departments and agencies created as the result of emergency conditions—have benefited greatly from the assistance given them in their formative stages by trained individuals drafted from outside Government ranks. In the great majority of cases, however, men of this type tend to return to private employment just at the time when they have gained enough administrative experience to make them exceptionally valuable to the Government.

The reason for the rapid rate of turnover is no secret. Governor Myers states quite frankly, indeed, that he is leaving "because there is no career in Government service in the top positions." So long as that situation prevails, men who, like Dr. Myers, feel that they must make financial provision for the future, will not lightly relinquish relatively secure private positions for uncertain political appointments.

However, it is not essential, as Dr. Myers asserts, that "under our democratic form of government the top appointive positions must necessarily change with the Presidents." On the contrary, there is no valid reason why the present undesirable system should not be reformed. Except for a limited number of policy-making positions, every official in the Government service should be brought under the merit system and assured continued tenure of office so long as he is capable and honest. Such an extension of the merit system is one of the most important and desirable of the recommendations made by the President's committee on reorganization of the administrative establishments.

Certainly the partisan affiliations of an expert heading such an organization as the Farm Credit Administration should not concern anybody provided he does his work in a competent and conscientious manner. To dispense with the services of an official who has proved his worth, moreover, merely because a new administration has come into power is without justification. It is one of those atavistic manifestations of the spoils system that impairs the efficiency of a democratic form of government and tends to discredit it in the eyes of those who make results rather than methods the main test of institutional values.

If War Comes

The imminent threat of war in Europe has been reflected in sharp and erratic fluctuations in stock and commodity prices in addition to causing pronounced shifts in exchange rates. Such upheavals emphasize the fact that our domestic economy could not escape shocks resulting from a major conflict in Europe whether we should decide to preserve our neutral status or become active participants in the combat.

People are asking whether war would raise or lower the level of prices, stimulate or depress our foreign trade, cause a collapse of stock market prices or result in a speculative boom. Of course, questions phrased in such broad, undiscriminating terms are unanswerable. They take no account of the fact that war creates increased demands for certain commodities while it diverts buying from accustomed channels. Furthermore, the political and economic exigencies of war result in many unpredictable changes in the scope and character of industrial activity.

Under present circumstances interest in the economic developments that followed the declaration of hostilities in 1914 is intense, although it is realized that conditions today are radically different from those prevailing 24 years ago. In 1914 the United States was heavily indebted to Europe and the outbreak of war resulted in widespread liquidation of European holdings of American securities, followed by closing of the Stock Exchange.

Today, however, many foreigners are seeking harborage in the United States for their funds. Indeed, large amounts of European capital have recently been entering this country as the war clouds have become more menacing. Nevertheless, there remains the possibility that American securities owned by the citizens of nations at war would be sequestered and eventually liquidated following the outbreak of hostilities, with seriously depressing effects upon our security markets. All these contingencies create a state of justified anxiety regarding the future, which interferes with normal trading.

There is also great uncertainty regarding the effect of a war in Europe upon our export trade, especially upon the prices of various important export commodities. In 1914 we were for a considerable time surprisingly indifferent to or unaware of the possibilities of a boom in the prices of certain commodities necessary for the conduct of war. At present, predictions regarding the effect of war upon our foreign trade are especially difficult because of the existence of the neutrality act. If enforced, it might necessitate a sharp cut in our exports to belligerents.

Then there is the Johnson act banning loans to countries in default on debts owing this Government. Since the great expansion of our export trade with Europe during the World War was largely financed with the proceeds of loans sold to Americans, the Johnson act would undoubtedly greatly restrict buying here for war account.

However, there is a widespread belief that the United States would be indisposed to enforce laws compelling us to remain passive spectators of a major conflict between European democratic countries and dictatorships. Then, too, there is always the probability that, despite a firm determination to remain neutral, we should find ourselves inextricably involved in any major conflict of European powers. In that case the country would be placed on a war-time basis, necessitating far-reaching adjustments of our industrial relationships.

The many incalculable factors affecting the export trade in cotton are emphasized by the New York Journal of Commerce which points to the great differences between the conditions in the cotton market in 1914 and at the present time. In case of war, Government loans and price-pegging policies would prevent such an initial collapse of cotton quotations as occurred in 1914. On the other hand, great quantities of cotton pledged to the Government constitute reserve stocks that could be liquidated so as to prevent the dizzy rise of prices that resulted from the last great war.

All these random speculations are further qualified by uncertainty as to the duration of a possible conflict and the extent to which countries involved would be dependent upon American supplies. The desire for national self-sufficiency has not been without results. Moreover, stores of basic commodities have been accumulated in some countries partly for protection in case of war.

The economic disorders created by a European war would undoubtedly bring gains to some favored individuals and groups, and might even for a time seem to be a boon to a country able to sell its surpluses for war-time consumption. But experience gained during the World War has shown that in the long run the wastage and loss of organized destruction has to be borne by all the countries closely connected by industrial and financial ties. Temporary advantages are heavily paid for in course of the subsequent readjustments incidental to a return to peace time living conditions.

Lesson Of The Purge

Failure of the "purge" is the third major defeat for President Roosevelt since his landslide re-election in 1936. His first setback, of course, was the collapse of his plan to make over the Supreme Court. Then Congress rejected his bill to reorganize the executive branch of the Government. Now the voters themselves have emphatically rejected his bid for one-man control over the Democratic Party.

If the attempt to eliminate "yes, but" Democrats from Congress had been successful in any single instance, the President might have considered his efforts worthwhile from his own viewpoint. But the results of the primaries, from Iowa to Georgia, offer him no such consolation. Indeed, there are strong indications that some candidates groomed by the Administration to defeat legislators out of sympathy with part of the New Deal were actually weakened by the President's support.

At least nine Democratic Senators seeking re-election have had their loyalty to the New Deal questioned in their primary campaigns. In some cases their opponents received only tacit approval from Washington. Others had to fight the active opposition of Administration stalwarts. And the President himself engaged in vigorous campaigns against Senators George and Tydings. Yet all nine of these independent legislators have been renominated. Three who were so devoted to the President as to support his Supreme Court plan have been defeated.

To a casual observer these results might suggest a sweeping repudiation of the New Deal. Actually, however, they carry no such implication. The Gallup polls, which have so accurately forecast failure of the "purge" in one State after another, also indicate that the President had the support of 56 per cent of all American voters last month. It is not the New Deal as such but the technique it has employed in some particulars which the people have effectively repudiated.

If the President is disposed to examine the record realistically he may learn a valuable lesson which he missed at the conclusion of the court fight. For the major reverses of the Administration have come about when it has challenged basic principles of American government.

The court bill was beaten because the people would not countenance encroachment upon independence of the judiciary. In the case of the reorganization bill the issue was less clear-cut, but its failure certainly grew out of a widespread conviction that it would dangerously enhance the powers of the Chief Executive. Similarly the "purge" was an unwarranted encroachment by the President upon the people's right to choose their own representatives without interference from any Federal official.

Out of these experiences comes the suggestion that, despite the popularity of the New Deal, the people will not tolerate undemocratic methods of obtaining its objectives. When the President has jeopardized well established principles of government, on the apparent assumption that the end justifies the means, he has met with stiff resistance.

In these days of widespread personal government, that is a most encouraging sign. If its significance is fully realized at the White House, the Administration is not likely to be diverted from grave national and international problems by further ill-advised assaults on our system of government.

Poisoning A People.

From the Hong Kong Press.

It is an open secret that for many years the Japanese have been responsible for almost all the narcotic trade in China and since the hostilities began just a few days under a year ago this traffic has been increased almost tenfold. It is estimated that in Shanghai alone between two and three tons of opium have been smuggled into that city since the military operations on the China coast were begun. The greater part of this contraband is from Dairen, Tientsin and Jehol, while some of it comes from as far away as Persia, where the Japanese have their agents. The customs authorities have seized about $1,000,000 worth of the opium that has been brought into Shanghai, but since the Chinese customs are prevented from functioning in the Yangtsepoo and Hongkew sections of the harbor, the Japanese have been able to land their cargo at will, and among the goods brought ashore have been vast quantities of opium. A general estimate reveals that for every ounce seized at least five ounces reach dealers and consumers, and one of the greatest sensations on the opium and narcotic fronts was the disclosure of undisputed evidence that the Japanese army at Nanking is selling opium to the public through its so-called "special service department."

Nature is lavishly blessing the United States with bountiful crops, and trouble looms in the offing.

Radio Interlopers

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Is there anything more aggravating these days than to be all primed for one's favorite radio program and, after dialing the proper station, to hear the announcer spout, "Thanks to the sponsors of the Such-and-Such program, their next half hour of entertainment has been bought by the Maryland-Lewis-for-Senator campaign," or words to that effect.

For the last three consecutive Sunday evenings now our family has had to shut out the radio station which carried another of our favorite programs because Maryland's Senator Tydings had purchased the time for political purposes.

Our family has been consistent listeners to both these programs ever since their inception on the air. The question arising in our minds is how much longer is the Federal Radio Commission going to allow both radio stations and politicians to deprive the public of its enjoyment.

Have we come to the point where there is no privacy in a little enjoyment of one's favorite radio entertainment? If such is the case, the public may as well return their radio sets and seek entertainment that is not suppressed. F. F.

Roosevelt Popularity

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Months ago writing you a letter, I commented about Europe. No peace was possible, and the past events have affirmed. I am expressing another opinion. This communication refers to President Roosevelt and the recent primary elections.

By an overwhelming majority, the public is still behind the present White House incumbent. He can have a third or as many terms as he may choose. Twice was he elected by almost the whole Nation. Consistent and sincere intentions are in his favor. Any other candidate would sink like Hoover and Landon.

I see no significance in the primaries which vindicated some recalcitrant Congressmen. Look at the U. S. Supreme Court. For a time, it resisted the necessary reforms. The President finally won out. It concurred more favorably. Congress will act likewise. The rubber stamps of the invisible power have been exposed. Until the 1940 campaign, the constituents watch them. W. E. MARSHALL.

Political Allegory

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Aristotle in his critique of Capt. Coe, says Senator Tydings is like the man who rocked the boat the lusty rowers were trying to take to port through the gale. He is depicted as a "yes-man" of big business, serving the interests of the selfish few. Since Maryland voters have erred on so big a scale this is worth inquiry.

Aristotle made a comparison he might have carried further; for looking at the same scene which prompted his vivid picture, those of opposite political complexion see different visions. They see the rowboat as a power craft labeled "America" but so clogged with expensive crew, "bureaucracy," there's no room for passengers or useful cargo.

The craft's engine trade-marked "Business," looks sound. It stands idle because none of the rowers (pronounced both ways) know now to get it going. As a result they "prime" it through the gale with oars, driven back 2 feet by natural forces for every foot artificial headway. Angrily they charge this is because the boat rocker, a non-rubber stamp, wants to swamp the craft through a foul conspiracy with "vested interests," makers of life rafts, whose "yes-man" he is.

Where, you may ask, have our oarsmen been? Out at Barren Island, where for six years 12,000,000 unemployed, subsisting on short rations, pledges of economy and banished depressions and magic cures, have been shouting: "Hurry, saviors. We're perishing. We can't subsist on stimulants and I O U's forever. We need sound recovery."

Moved by this cry a stout gentleman in spectacles and silk hat, impulsively hurling his oars at the stalled engine, recites from a speech entitled: "To Hell With Business, a New Deal for the Underprivileged and Long Live Reforms." This works for a time, but when new groups of unemployed, lately rescued, are seen swimming toward Barren Island, he tosses the speech overboard.

The man who tried to tell the others the engine wouldn't run because the spark plugs were fouled is now offered oars but is still called harsh names, dubbed obstructionist and traitor, while the Barren Island millions (ever gullible but less vociferously so) chip in with polite applause. WALTER BAHNSEN.

A 'Bribe' Refunsed

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: As it is conceded that moral courage is superior to physical courage, allow me to call your attention to one of the most heroic acts known to American history.

On the eve of an election, in which the Administration engaged, the Administration tendered the bribe of a potential bridge to southern Maryland. The citizenry refused the bribe and rebuked the would-be bribers.

Just how tempting was this bribe can be known only to those familiar with the topography and conditions in southern Maryland. But those people were offered immediate returns, incident to labor and material of Southern Maryland to be used in the construction of the bridge, shops, etc. Then, they would reap the benefits incident to the diversion of traffic from No. 1 highway, north and south.

I estimate the value which would inure to southern Marylanders at a total of perhaps several millions of dollars, from labor, materials, increased values of realty, etc.

Let us insist that the bridge at Morgantown be erected, if for nothing else, as a monument to those heroic southern Marylanders who refused to take a bribe and who had the courage to rebuke the bribers. Virtue and courage should be rewarded. G. G. MOORE.

Washington, Sept. 13.

Hand That Fed Them

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Maryland voters bit the hand that fed them. When banks went broke, thousands out of work, mills were running 28 per cent of capacity, with bumper crops and poor foreign markets, President Roosevelt, with the New Deal, came to their aid. Baltimore City has received or approved $228,908,154 of Federal benefits; Montgomery County $12,327,379, Prince Georges County $12,251,721.

Maryland has more than 4,000 workers over its quota through the good graces of personnel officers, friends of the President. So no more appointments can be made for a few years without their approval.

Senator Tydings did not want the President to visit our State, but did not object to or mention the 74 corporations, many Nation-wide, whose aid and money helped him in his campaign to defeat the New Deal. JOHN RIGGLES.

Seabrook, Md., Sept. 14.

German And Czech

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: As news comes of growing civil discontent in Bohemia, a person of democratic scruples cannot help but sympathize with the Sudetens in their effort to liberate themselves from the yoke of a hated alien regime. One is reminded of our own struggle for freedom from the tyranny of the British crown. There is this difference, however, which makes the Sudeten case even stronger.

We and the British were of one race, one language and one culture; while an insuperable gulf lies between the racial and historical backgrounds of Czech and German in Bohemia. Who can blame the Germans if they finally, in desperation, assert their right of self-determination?

L. G. FREEMAN.

Washington, Sept. 14.

Hull And Mexico

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The Post's recent editorial on Mexico lacked none of the authority nor correctness of factual statement that customarily marks its expositions of Mexican affairs and United States-Mexican relations.

Secretary of State Hull requires and is entitled to every sort of moral and material aid that can be marshaled to back him in what he is doing. For the task that has been forced upon him by the international banditry of the Cardenas government is not only weighty, but various and complex in its ramifications. He has against him sentimentalists in and out of the Administration.

These believe that Cardenas should be permitted to keep on running wild, at our expense, to make Mexico a second Russia, Italy or Germany, combining the worst features of all three forms of government in those countries. He has against him a completely unreasonable, irresponsible American-hater in Mexico's Palacio Nacional. He has against him financial and political factors in Mexico which may be expected almost irresistibly to work against the success of his insistences that Cardenas stop stealing American property and arrange to pay for what he already has stolen.

But, one is glad to believe, he has for him a virtually unanimous United States press and public. These are commencing to see one thing clearly and also another, which is almost equally important to be realized nationally, less dimly day by day. The first is that in proper defense of the dignity of his own country and the rights to which it is entitled in its dealings with other nations the Secretary could have done no less, after long and patient expostulation, than accept the repeated challenges to that dignity, to those rights, contemptuously hurled at his feet by Cardenas. The second is that the Secretary is battling as much for the well-being of Mexico and its people as he is for his own nationals who are being stripped of their possessions below the Rio Grande.

We already have seen the economic consequences to Mexico of Cardenas' irrational, impractical and internationally lawless courses. Mexican capital and enterprise are in reality the economic backbone of the country. For in aggregate they hugely exceed the foreigners' investment stake there. In saving Americans' property from being pouched and eventually distributed among high-up grafters in revolutionary governments, the Secretary will be rendering the same service to unfortunate Mexicans, engaged in little or big enterprises, who are at the mercy and under the guns of Cardenas and his official holdup men.

It amounts to this, in reality: The substantial elements of Mexico, who are unable to fight for themselves, are having their fight waged for them by Washington. Without Washington, and unless Washington stands firm for their rights and for its rights, their cause is lost; and with it such face as we still possess in Latin America.

Mother Goes Window Shopping

THE ART of window shopping demands a subtle technique if the quintessence of enjoyment is to be extracted. The method of procedure as practiced by Mother is a paradox of complex simplicity!

The night must be a perfect one, glamorous, romantic, in spring, or spicy in early fall, neither too hot nor too cold; for temperature and the elements play vital parts in the ultimate success or failure of the project.

At the dinner table Father makes tentative suggestion to Mother that it's about time for the semi-occasional visit to the picture show. This elicits enthusiastic response. Even the children are interested in the prospective parental adventure. A scurry into the living room produces the evening paper—part of it. After intensive search, the movie page is produced from behind the bed in Junior's room. (The movie news is printed on the back of the comics, which it is Junior's custom to examine while dressing.)

After careful consideration of casts and titles with meticulous weighing of meager descriptive reviews, the film is chosen.

Dishes are stacked hurriedly, plans are made for the care of the younger children, and Mother breathlessly gets her hat and coat and slips into another pair of shoes. It's almost time for the first show, and Father would rather not go at all than to enter the theater in the middle of the feature, while second performances end entirely too late to fit into the comfortable habits established by the passing of the years.

Junior has made plans for the use of the car, but a measure of mild insistence upon the part of Mother and Father as to possible property rights occasions a rearrangement of the schedule. A sputtering motor cuts short last-minute instructions to the children.

Mother had known that the seats would be 66 cents, but it doesn't look as if the picture could be worth as much as that. The posters aren't anything out of the ordinary, and you can't tell a thing about a picture from its name! And when you've seen Mack Penney once—well, you've seen Mack Penney! Mother turns to Dad with a suggestion.

"Tell you what. Let's just look at the shop windows for a bit and then go home and dig in for a quiet evening."

Mother's voice is persuasive. "The children will be in bed and you can read the last installment of the story you were reading in The Weekly Roast. It came this morning."

"M-m-m-m. Let's see what's on at the other houses first."

A conscientious tour is made of the nearby shows. Not one looks promising!

After introductory rites, the window shopping proper gets under way. Thoroughly and minutely each window in the several blocks that constitute the heart of the downtown shopping district is inspected and its contents volubly commented upon in excited feminine chatter, to an obbligato of masculine grunts.

"M-m-m-m!"

"Dad, you need shirts. Do you want more white ones or some colored ones for a change?"

"M-m——"

"Wouldn't sister be adorable in that blue organdy with the pin tucking?" Mother almost loses her balance in vain attempt to catch the figures upon a guilefully reversed price tag.

"Oh! a bicycle—brother's birthday. Isn't it a beauty?"

"M-m——" Father's tone betrays a somewhat livelier interest, but no answers are expected to this running fire of comments, for they are not really questions.

Mother is able to walk calmly past a jewelry store, with merely a momentary jerk at the heart, even if a tea ensemble with tip tea kettle is displayed there. For an instant, but only an instant, she envisages herself as the high priestess of the tea table, pontificating at the solemn rites behind an embattlement of silver. But she must be taken firmly by the arm and forcibly ushered past a florist's presentation, for there she becomes maudlin and starts babbling to the flowers!

Well! There's the car! Father slips an arm through the window that is inadvertently but invariably left open in the otherwise tightly locked vehicle, and opens the door.

With a sigh of satisfaction and relief Mother wiggles herself into the comfortable grooves of the worn upholstery in the corner of the seat she claims as hers. The ache in her feet subsides and she plunges into a complacent reverie on an evening well spent.

As he starts the car Father is patiently silent. Can it be that he has not wholly enjoyed the nocturnal expedition? Mother is beset by qualms of conscience. It's later than she had thought. There'll be no time to read that installment, after all. Mother has a bright idea.

"That picture's on for the remainder of the week. If you'd really like to see it—Listen—we'll go tomorrow night, sure!"

Fair Enough

Italy's Oppression

There are points of confusion in the acts and utterances of Hitler and Mussolini.

Hitler declares a passionate sympathy for the oppressed Sudeten minority in Czechoslovakia. He is particularly indignant because they have been forbidden to sing songs of disloyalty to the nation of which they are unwillingly a part. He is furious because they were forbidden to wear white socks, which were the identification mark of a seditious society organized by his agent, Konrad Henlein.

• • • •

BUT IN THE TERRITORY which Italy carved out of Austria at the close of the World War, as her price for betraying the German Kaiser, there are still 250,000 Austrians who are captives of a foreign conqueror and whose human rights have been ruthlessly denied.

Mussolini forbade and suppressed the singing of German songs, even innocent folk songs, in the captive Tyrol before Czechoslovakia found it necessary to put down disorderly demonstrations against the government, in which the singing was not an exercise of innocent pleasure but a warlike situation.

Mussolini, literally, even forbade the captured Austrians in his conquered territory to yodel, and they also were forbidden to speak their native language. Their children were compelled to study the Italian language; signs in the native language of the country were removed from the territory and replaced by signs in Italian.

• • • •

ONLY THREE YEARS AGO captive Austrians of the race which Hitler described as "not created by God to be victimized by a foreign power as a result of the Versailles reconstruction of states" were literally, physically, dragged off from their homes, impressed into the army of "a foreign power" and sent to Abyssinia. It would appear that this was a fairly close approach to victimization by a foreign power of captives as truly German as the Sudetens of Czechoslovakia.

Czechoslovakia has fought no foreign wars and, far from attempting to victimize the Sudetens in any manner, even remotely approaching the Italian brutality toward the captured Tyroleans, has preferred to excuse the Sudeten Germans from service in her armies because the treacherous movements which Hitler promoted among them made them untrustworthy.

MUSSOLINI ALSO forbade his captive Austrians to wear white socks as a badge of rebellion and stamped out efforts to adopt other marks of identification on their hats, coat lapels and neckties. He has been doing this for 15 years.

For many years after the war the Sudetens enjoyed the benefits of orderly government in Czechoslovakia, while Germany was shaken by recurrent disturbances, and throughout that time the Sudetens were glad to be protected from conditions in Germany. At no time since the end of the war have the captives in Italy enjoyed similar benefits.

The Sudetens were treated as citizens. Mussolini's Austrians were treated as captives. Lately, as a matter of policy, they are less firmly opposed but they are still denied rights which the Sudetens have never lacked. They, too, are and always have been forbidden to sing the Horst Wessel song and Deutschland Uber Alles and, unlike the Sudetens, at this moment, they are required to conduct their affairs in a language foreign to them.

THE SUDETENS never were any more German than Mussolini's quarter of a million Tyrolean captives. They were subjects of Austria-Hungary before the war and it was the same "Versailles reconstruction of states" which placed the Tyroleans within the new boundaries of Italy.

If a few Sudetens have been killed in disorders provoked by Hitler through Henlein, many more of those whom Hitler embraces as blood brothers were shot by Mussolini Blackshirts, police and border patrols as they attempted to effect personally anschluss by going over the hill on foot, especially at the time when Italy was attempting to gather up the more troublesome individuals for shipment to a war in Ethiopia, more than 3,000 miles away. Others perished of exposure and accident while in flight.

• • • •

MUSSOLINI'S WORD on the Sudeten crisis is that Czechoslovakia must give the Sudeten territory to Germany. By the same principle, Mussolini then must give back to Hitler, as the executor of the deceased state of Austria, the territory which he received and the 250,000 Austrians who are now being "victimized by a foreign power as a result of the Versailles reconstruction of states." And if he doesn't give them back, Hitler must rescue them. In fact, he should rescue them first, for these defenseless and forsaken brothers of the Reich, as he calls all such, really do know something about brutality and insult.

Rhoda Singer Goes Back to Job Today

Rhoda Singer, who was dismissed from the Conciliation Service August 15, will retain her position in a temporary capacity, the United Federal Workers of America announced last night.

Following several conferences between Conciliation Service heads and officials of the Federal union, it was agreed Miss Singer would continue in a temporary capacity until a new position is open, a statement from the Federal Workers said. She will return to work today.

L. J. Bernard Promoted To New Treasury Post

Lawrence J. Bernard, a special assistant to the general counsel, Treasury Department, has been promoted to the position of assistant general counsel, it was announced yesterday.

A native of Duluth, Minn., Bernard obtained his law degree at Stetson University, Fla., practiced law in Florida for four years, and in 1933 came to Washington as an assistant to the general counsel of the NRA. He went to the Treasury Department in August, 1935.

His Imperial Socks

(A Tokyo newspaper reports that the Emperor is especially observant of thrift during the present times. His "shirts and hosiery are no different from those sold everywhere, and, moreover, they are washed and worn again.")

To the Chinese laundryman, my patronage I indite. I'm the Emperor of Japan—and he's my humble parasite. He rinses my shirt of stains and dirt, does this conscientious wight. Scrub, scrub, he toils by day and night.

My soldiers ravage his land; his brothers they put to bloody flight. I lend them a helping hand by keeping my hosiery neat and bright. Peace, peace, a dirty shirt's a fright.

In his thrifty, smiling way he mends my socks, both left and right. Far off from battle's fray, I show of charity the height. He's bland and stout; his shirt-tail's out; he has no bark nor bite. High, high, I fly my martial kite.

I pay him yen or taels; I know he adds the bills up right. If my invasion fails, at least I've shown my dreadful might. Toil, toil, for the Chinese laundryman! Thrift, thrift, for the Emperor of Japan!

What Price Isolation?

By Raymond Leslie Buell

Our Stake In The Crisis

(Mr. Buell is president of the Foreign Policy Association. The following is from an address given yesterday at Swampscott, Mass., before the Savings Bank Association of Massachusetts.)

SHOULD GERMANY attack Czechoslovakia, the result will probably be a world war which may result in Hitler's downfall and Germany's defeat. The only possible chance for German success is for Hitler to overpower Czechoslovakia in a terrific blow before the French and British have time to mobilize. But this chance seems remote, for the Czechs undoubtedly can hold out alone for more than a month. Moreover, during the past few weeks France has quietly mobilized two million men. Should France and Russia go to the aid of Prague, Britain will inevitably be drawn in.

As yet the German army is not ready for a first-class war. Despite Hitler's recent boasts, Germany is more vulnerable to blockade than in 1914. It does not have the foreign assets, the merchant marine, or the navy which Germany had before the last war. Despite the four-year plan Germany must still import about 30 per cent of its raw materials; and it cannot possibly produce the oil or the cotton needed for a war of long duration.

Moreover, the German cities and the German army are now exposed to air attack. The Austrian provinces will also prove a liability should war come, since the Austrians have not taken kindly to Nazi rule. Germany has no allies upon which it can count; Italy has been significantly quiet during the recent crisis; Japan is bogged down in China. Hitler must know that neither the German people nor the Nazi party can stand a second unsuccessful war.

While these signs point against war in the near future, the world continues to live in grave danger. Hitler's emotions may override his reason, and he may attack Czechoslovakia the next time a Sudeten German is killed in a riot. Moreover should Lord Runciman return home without having negotiated a settlement, Hitler may believe that Britain will wash its hands henceforth of Central Europe. The British may indeed attempt to stay out of a clash over Czechoslovakia; but the fact is that the Czechs are going to fight for their own country; and if they can fight alone for a month, the result will probably be a world conflagration. Britain is coming to realize the danger, and its policy seems to be stiffening daily.

WHILE THE chances are still against war, the whole world seems moving into a period marked by a declining standard of living, economic insecurity, and the growth of totalitarianism, in probably every country. Today the world is spending about a billion dollars a year upon armaments. Except for Soviet Russia, every government is supporting this arms burden by deficit financing. These arms expenditures are inevitably at the expense of the general living standard; and deficit financing, if it does not involve the danger of ruinous inflation, involves the danger of totalitarian control. So long as the danger of war exists private capital will hesitate before making new investments under a free economy.

But without investment, employment cannot be maintained or increased. If such conditions persist in the democratic countries, a movement will sooner or later arise for a closed economy, operated by dictatorship. A totalitarian state, such as exists in Germany and Italy, can literally compel the investment of both private and public capital by means of regimentation and emotional appeals. Under a totalitarian system an internal inflation can produce results, temporarily at least, which are not possible under a free economy, which rests upon the basis of voluntary investment. Consequently, if international insecurity continues to undermine the basis of private enterprise, the result will sooner or later be some form of state capitalism imposed by dictatorial controls.

Thus the whole world is confronted either by the danger of a new war, or of a general breakdown of liberal civilization.

• • • •

THERE IS only one means of escaping from this dismal future. This is for the liberal powers to increase their military and economic forces until they have a clear superiority over the totalitarian dictatorships. Having established this superiority and demonstrated a determination to resist further acts of aggression, these powers should then offer to negotiate a settlement removing the legitimate grievances of "have not" countries.

As far as Czechoslovakia is concerned, such a settlement cannot envisage the return of the Sudeten Germans to Hitler. These German colonists have always formed part of the kingdom of Bohemia. Many of them would be mistreated if given to Germany; and the military and economic security of Czechoslovakia would be undermined by the cession of the Sudeten territory to Berlin.

The solution of this problem lies in a form of autonomy coupled with a five-power guarantee of the independence of the Czechoslovak state. If Britain, France, Germany, Italy and Russia would guarantee the frontiers of this state, subject to what minor revisions are deemed necessary, Czechoslovakia would give up its exclusive alliances with Russia and France.

Germany will accept a negotiated settlement of this and other questions only if the liberal powers demonstrate strength and unity. By themselves Britain and France will have a hard time in keeping up with Germany and Italy. But the United States, with its vast resources and its powerful navy and air force, could hold the balance of power, if it wished to do so. We can withdraw from the world if we are prepared to accept a declining standard of living, and accept ever-increasing government controls which threaten our system of free enterprise and democracy.

But no great power has been able to withdraw from the world in the past; and it is not likely that America will do so in the future.

BUT THE surest way to keep from being pulled into war, the surest way to restore a competitive economy, is for us to use our vast power in averting the outbreak of conflict and in bringing about world reconstruction. Secretary Hull is doggedly pushing forward his important trade agreement programs; but world trade will revive only when there is a political appeasement.

I believe it is possible for the democracies and dictatorships to live together at peace. But the first step in this direction is for the democracies to demonstrate their superior force and unity. The United States could make a great contribution toward peace if Congress would amend our present neutrality act and give the President power to impose munitions embargoes against states who embark upon aggressive war, having refused to accept any form of reasonable compromise.

The United States in many ways is the world's strongest power. Our economic and political welfare is bound up with the international situation, even though we are in no danger of attack. If we properly used our great power, we might yet assist in preventing the outbreak of a new world war.

On The Record

Interview With Henlein

IN THESE DAYS we are very much in the dark about the immediate international situation, but still a few things can be presumed, or deduced, I think.

First of all, the idea of a plebiscite in Czechoslovakia should be, in my belief, completely discounted. A plebiscite under prevailing conditions would only be an invitation to civil war. The plebiscite idea was not launched by any responsible circles in any government. In fact, it would be worth while to find out exactly who was responsible for the press campaign that broke all over the world after Hitler's speech. I suspect that the influential little groups of near-Fascist or pro-Fascists in London and Paris, who have a great deal of power and easy access to certain news services and certain European newspapers, are responsible for it.

Their irresponsibility can only be matched by their ignorance. Anyone who knows Czechoslovakia and the make-up and distribution of its nationalities, knows that there is no "Sudetenland" that is populated exclusively, or up to 90 per cent, by German-speaking people.

The German-speaking people do not live in a continuous chain of territory. The largest German-speaking district is around Eger, where there are some 850,000 of them. There are another 800,000 in the extreme north. There are 400,000 divided into three zones in southern Bohemia and northern Moravia, and in these blocks and others, Czechs have lived from time immemorial—and not since 1918, as the Germans say. In some places the Germans constitute up to 90 per cent of the population, in some less than 50 per cent, and in the whole "Sudetenland" nearly a third of the population are Czech.

What would become of this minority, if they were absorbed into Hitler's Reich? They would not be given the tolerance, the civil rights, the cultural autonomy that the Germans enjoyed under even the old arrangement in Czechoslovakia, to say nothing of the autonomy that they are promised, in various cantons, and the exact proportional representation they are to be given under the arrangements lately proposed by the Czech government.

And if Hitler proposes to be the "protector" of all German-speaking inhabitants of Czechoslovakia, then he might as well take over the entire country, for there is hardly a district where Germans do not live, including the capital city of Prague.

Either Czechoslovakia must exist in its present form—made after two years of study by experts—or it will not continue to exist at all. And my authority for this statement cannot be held to be prejudiced. My authority is Konrad Henlein himself, who until he became an agent of Hitler's Reich, bent not on "liberating" Germans, but on power politics, admitted the necessary integrity of the present Czechoslovak boundaries.

• • • •

Mr. Henlein, in two important speeches made in October, 1933, only three months before Hitler became the German chancellor, not only recognized the historic necessity of Czechs and Germans living in harmony within the present boundaries but asserted that that harmony could only be achieved by the exercise of democratic principles.

Remember that when he made these speeches, Czechoslovakia had been a sovereign state for 15 years and Mr. Henlein, a citizen of it. He said:

"The welfare of the Sudetens is indissolubly bound up with the welfare of the Czechoslovak republic. We stand, in principle, and unanimously, for loyalty to this state. For more than a thousand years Germans and Czechs have lived together in these lands, and always their fate has been common, in times of distress, and in times of prosperity.

"We feel too vividly the power of historical traditions seriously to consider any kind of territorial revision . . . It would be to deny historical facts if we did not recognize that this territory, despite its colonization by two nations, has always been subject to a common development. For hundreds of years it has been constituted a political and economic unity, to affirm which is the duty of the Sudeten German Front. Our cultural unity remains unchanged by this fact, and what we are demanding is its essential recognition and our natural, just, and therefore organic part, in this scheme of things."

Not only did Mr. Henlein recognize the historic and economic basis for unity inside Czechoslovakia, but he affirmed the democratic and republican principles of the state, and based his claim for more justice upon them. He said:

"Democracy is of especial value for the Sudeten people because it is the only possibility for so constituting the administration of the state that the Sudeten peoples can come to expression in it. It is our fundamental conviction that both fascism and national socialism lose the natural condition for their existence at the borders of our state, and cannot be carried over to apply to our situation."

But this is not all. Even as late as April of this year, in his famous Karlsbad speech, laying down the eight points of the Sudeten program, Henlein uttered no word of secession and plebiscite, and actually the Czech government has conceded seven of the eight points, refusing only the demand to make an autonomous government on National Socialist principles—refusing it on the very ground that was so clear to Mr. Henlein five years ago.

In other words, it is not the Sudeten people who are spontaneously demanding incorporation in the Reich, but the Reich itself that is directing them so to do.

A plebiscite which would admit the right of secession is no more justified than a plebiscite to admit the right of secession of the South from the North would have been in the United States in the 1860s. If the principle is admitted it lays every state in the world open to disintegration. And if the principle is admitted that one state has the "right" because of this or that grievance, or this or that "ideology" to organize revolutions, revolts and uprisings in other states, then the whole world is laid open to revolution.

Now, whatever the fascintern of parlor whites may be thinking about the idea of a plebiscite, it seems reasonable to presume that governments, and foreign offices are not playing with any such preposterous notion. Certainly, no reasonable person can believe that a "plebiscite," however managed, can record anything of value in the condition of mass hysteria obtaining now in the Sudeten territories, where the population is armed with weapons smuggled in from Germany.

Nor has any reasonable person forgotten Austria, where Mr. Hitler prevented one plebiscite, because he knew it would go against him, and called another—getting 90 per cent of the votes, for whatever they were worth.

As an expression of genuine desire they were worth precisely nothing. As an expression of fear, of terror of the concentration camps, tortures and prisons which awaited any one who might indicate his opposition to the trend, they expressed a great deal.

As to Mr. Chamberlain's visits to Berchtesgaden—which the more defeatist have been quick to interpret as a visit to Canossa, a sort of Schuschnigg-Hitler interview, with the British Prime Minister prepared to hand Czechoslovakia to Hitler in return for a promise not to make war—although this column has been extremely critical of the Chamberlain policy, and entertains no enthusiasm for it whatsoever, and does not agree that it has, up to now, been "realistic," still we do not think that Chamberlain, or any other honorable Englishman, will thus double cross her allies.

Mr. Chamberlain, if he were contemplating what would certainly go down as one of the dirtiest deals in history, would hardly set the stage for it; do it as spectacularly as possible; call the attention of the world to the fact that Great Britain was retreating all along the line.

Mr. Chamberlain is a bad showman, but no one is that bad a showman. The British know what prestige is.

And I am inclined to accept the official version of this very un-British procedure, namely, that Chamberlain doubts whether Hitler has been adequately informed of the seriousness of the situation by the frivolous and dubious Mr. Ribbentrop, and thinks it essential that negotiations should proceed with the boss and not with his advisers.

• • • •

And let us by all means keep before our minds what was pointed out in this column on Labor Day, that the Sudeten-German problem really has nothing to do with the crisis in Europe. Hitler is not aiming at Czechoslovakia except incidentally. He is aiming at France, and through France at the rest of Europe. If Czechoslovakia goes, then the Franco-Soviet pact also is gone, and the whole Danubian basin is gone, and France will be surrounded on three sides by Germany, Italy and a Spain that will be merely an outpost of both of them. Her days will be numbered. And it is one of the most ironic facts of modern history that the high finance and powerful capitalists, who have traditionally supported nation and empire, are today so scared of their own workmen that they are as blind as bats. They have become the most wishful thinkers in the world and the worst patriots.

• • • •

Meanwhile the Czechs stand where they have stood, with a consistency to make the great powers feel shame. They have offered great concessions; they will risk invasion; they will quell armed rebellion, and they will negotiate, but first they have to have some one with whom to negotiate, and Mr. Henlein and Mr. Kundt refused

Flesh no longer clings;
And the intimate, the close,
Grow precocious wings.

Anachronism

A letter from the Executive Mansion in Washington begins:

"To the Heads of Departments in the Service of the General Government:

"I deem this a proper time to especially warn all subordinates in the several departments and all officeholders under the general Government against the use of their official positions in attempts to control political movements in their localities. Officeholders are the agents of the people, not their masters . . . They have no right as officeholders to dictate the political action of their party associates or to throttle freedom of action within party lines by methods and practices which pervert every useful and justifiable purpose of party organization."

You're right; it was circulated by Grove Cleveland on the eve of the primaries for the off-year Congressional election in 1886. Back in the horse-and-buggy days, you know.

Today And Tomorrow

By Walter Lippmann

yond all possibility of doubt that an invasion would provoke a general European war. And the controlling consideration ultimately is also what it has been for months, namely, that Czechoslovakia will have the support of France and Britain against invasion provided that the Czech government continues to prove both that it is willing to redress the grievances of the Sudetens and that it is able and ready to defend its authority within and without the frontiers of the Czechoslovak state.

In other words, if the Czechs disintegrate as the Austrians disintegrated no power on earth can save them from destruction; if, on the other hand, they are able to combine as they have thus far, a policy of conciliation toward the German minority with a demonstration that they can maintain law and order within their frontiers, they will survive. Only by proving their own authority can they compel France and Britain to stand by them. And if France and Britain stand by them the chances are that they will not be attacked.

Although the ways of dictators are not wholly predictable, the justification for taking this view is as follows: Among the Nazis an invasion of Czechoslovakia can be contemplated only if it is reasonably clear that France and Britain would stand aside. In the days preceding the Nuremberg speech the problem, therefore, was to convince Hitler that Britain and France would not stand aside. His speech showed that for the time being he was convinced. But the question then was whether the democracies could and would remain as firm as they are at the moment.

The answer to that question depends on what happens inside of Czechoslovakia. If there is an insurrection of the Sudeten Germans which the Czechs are unable to control with authority and without brutality, public opinion in Britain and France will turn against them and will consider the maintenance of Czechoslovakia a lost cause. If that happened, if there were civil war in Czechoslovakia, Hitler could intervene without the risk of a European war.

But if, on the other hand, the Czechs are able to demonstrate that they know how to govern, that they have a genuine state which is able to maintain internal peace, they will deprive the Nazis of the opportunity, the occasion and the reason for intervention. As long as there is peace and order within the Czech frontiers, and at the same time a willingness to negotiate for the redress of grievances, Britain and France could not disinterest themselves even if they wished. For them to stand by and let a disintegrating state be conquered is conceivable; it happened in the case of Austria. But for them to stand by and let a living state be beaten to death, to become before their very eyes the victim of a naked aggression, is not now conceivable. Their vital interest and their national honor would both be totally involved.

WAR CAN BE AVOIDED, we may then assume, as long as the Czech government can maintain its authority against a potential insurrection provoked in part by the grievances of the Sudetens and in large measure by agitation from Germany. In the first instance, the Czechs must save themselves or no one can save them. But there can be no relaxation of the tension, no amelioration of the crisis, unless and until the British can induce Hitler to withdraw his support of the insurrection and let the negotiations in Prague begin.

Unless Mr. Chamberlain can persuade Hitler of that there may be no war immediately but there will certainly be no peace for a long time to come. Europe will remain in a state of mobilization until someone's nerves crack up, and there is an irreparable incident with consequences that no one can control.

British diplomacy has thus entered a third phase. In the first, Lord Runciman was sent to Prague to mediate. In the second, which culminated over the week-end, the British made it clear to Hitler that war could not be localized. In the third phase, which has just opened, the British, having persuaded Hitler not start a war, must now persuade him to permit a negotiated peace.

Thus, in spite of the profound anxieties of the past week, the cause of peace with honor is by no means lost. The desire for peace is immense and urgent in all countries, Germany and Italy included. This desire can still make itself effective if the Czechs can continue to prove their fitness to survive as a European state and if the British and the French continue to prove their fitness to survive as great powers.

The situation is one in which there is still reason to hope for peace if the governments and their peoples have the cool courage to see and to maintain their vital interests. For the peace of Europe depends not merely upon the martial force of Germany but in even greater measure upon the civic character of the others and upon their will to live.

The 'Official' Score

By Ernest K. Lindley

Only Three Contests Lost

BY THEIR OWN peculiar methods of scoring, opponents of Mr. Roosevelt are calling the so-called "purge" a failure by 7-0 or 8-0. They achieve this score by counting as rebuffs for the President the renomination of Senators whom he made no effort to defeat.

Actually, the President has sought to use his personal prestige against only four candidates: Senators Smith of South Carolina, Tydings of Maryland, George of Georgia and Representative John J. O'Connor of New York. Assuming that the final returns show Senator George a victor (some New Dealers would prefer to see Mr. Talmadge in the Senate as the less influential of two evils), Mr. Roosevelt has lost the first three of these contests, and the latest reports from New York don't give him much encouragement of a victory in the fourth.

No one in the New Deal pretends that there is cause for celebration in the results of the "purge." Yet few, if any, of the President's lieutenants expected him to win all four of these contests. They knew that the odds against victory were heavy in Georgia and South Carolina. Most of them would have been satisfied with a victory in Maryland, plus the ousting, either in the primary or the election of Representative O'Connor. In retrospect, it is generally conceded that, whatever the wisdom of the "purge," its technique was bad. Political observers on all sides seem to be agreed that where he intervened openly in person the President failed to make the opposing candidates and the voters accept the issue as he defined it: as a contest between conservativism and liberalism. Instead, he created or dramatized quite a different issue, the right or propriety of his intervention. The testimony as to what happened in Maryland is especially convincing. Whether or not Representative Lewis might have won under any circumstances, observers on all sides report that he looked much stronger while standing on his own progressive record than after the Roosevelt Administration openly "invaded" the State.

WHEN THE RESULTS of the "purge" are placed against the results of the Democratic primaries as a whole it is clear that there has been little, if any, shift in the Senate and House as between New Deal and anti-New Deal Democrats. In Idaho, Senator James P. Pope, a New Deal Senator, lost to Representative D. Worth Clark, a moderately conservative Democrat, who had the primary support of the Townsendites and a flock of Republicans. That is the only instance in which a New Deal Senator has been beaten in the primary by a more conservative Democrat. Senator McAdoo lost in California, but to a candidate loaded with bigger promises. In the House primaries, only a handful of incumbent Democrats have been defeated, and the losers include both New Deal and anti-New Deal Democrats.

In short, the primaries, as usual, favored the man in office, whatever his record on New Deal legislation or the attitude toward him expressed, or implied, by anybody in Washington.

If the primaries are measured in terms of changes of control over State machines, rather than according to Senators and Representatives, they were still indecisive. In Oregon and Ohio, New Deal candidates for Governor defeated conservative Democrats. In terms of votes to the 1940 convention, the defeat of the Davey machine in Ohio is perhaps the most important result of any primary to date. However, in both Oregon and Ohio, the Democratic nominees must win hard fights in November if they are to consolidate their gains. In Idaho, the New Deal faction lost, but there is no assurance that the Idaho delegation to the next national convention will be anti-Roosevelt.

IT IS FREELY CONCEDED that the immediate psychological effects of the primaries work to the advantage of the defenders of an "independent" Congress. To predict that Congress will be more independent than it has been seems premature, however. Congress was in fact, thoroughly independent from the early days of the Supreme Court fight in 1937 until the late spring of 1938, after the victory of the New Deal Senator Pepper in the Florida primary. The Democrats opposed by Roosevelt Democrats during the primary have, without exception, asserted that they are not against the New Deal, as a whole. The ministrations of James A. Farley and the fall election, in which the Republican threat is strong in at least 12 States, will tend to draw Democrats closer together.

Whether or not Mr. Roosevelt's participation in the primaries has served the longer-range educational purposes which many of his lieutenants hoped for must remain an open question. Many of them believe that it did—that, even though a majority of the Democratic voters did not accept as valid the issue defined by the President, a valuable piece of work has been done in preparation for the struggle for control of the party and its principles in 1940.

Books And Things

By Lewis Gannett

ENGLAND had her John Brown, too, very different from our John, of Ossawatomie and Harpers Ferry, but King Edward VII did not like him, and smashed all the statues which Victoria had erected to his memory, so that, in these latter days of mystic monarch worship, most English historians have drawn a discreet veil across his name. But E. E. Tisdall, while treading discreetly, bares the record in "Queen Victoria's Mr. Brown" (Stokes, $3).

John Brown was a handsome, 6-foot bearded Highlander with a dour Scots face and a rough Scots burr in his voice; he never learned the soft ways of Lowlanders. He was a stable boy at Balmoral Castle when Queen Victoria married Albert, and a "gillie" when the royal couple first visited Balmoral in 1848. Albert liked him, so did Victoria. He became their personal attendant—Victoria visited Balmoral at least once a year from 1848 to her death. After Albert's death John Brown came down to Windsor with Victoria's favorite pony, and one or the other of them brought her out of her grief. Thereafter, drunk or sober, John Brown was Victoria's personal servant, "almost a lady's maid," in attendance on her night and day, however tongues might wag.

It was in 1851, says Mr. Tisdall, that John Brown came into his own. He made the tea at a Balmoral picnic.

"The best cup of tea I ever tasted," said Her Majesty.

"It should be," retorted Brown. "I put a grand nip o' whisky in it."

There came a day when Albert fainted in the royal carriage. Other attendants were frightened; so was the Queen; but not John Brown. "Dinna fash yersel'," he said. "It's a drap of spirit he'll be needin'." It was. A drop of brandy revived Albert. After that, it was routine to stow a fresh bottle of brandy in the royal carriage before every drive—and the royal couple drove daily. Only John Brown knew what happened to the bottles. In later years, when John Brown's stiff back sometimes bent in ways he did not intend it to bend, others suspected. Victoria forgave him anything—even the time when she sent for John Brown in mid-afternoon, and that gentleman, who was sleeping it off, told the attendant sent for him that Her Majesty would "no be seein' me the day. She kens damned well I'm fu'."

VICTORIA was an imperious little lady, but she liked to be dominated by a man. It is Mr. Tisdall's suggestion that after Albert's death, John Brown became a sort of substitute. Both Brown and the Queen were interested in spiritualism; it is rumored that he acted as a medium, and brought her into communication with the supposed spirit of her husband. Lytton Strachey, in his "Queen Victoria," hints at that explanation of the Scotsman's strange influence; Mr. Tisdall carefully marshals the evidence, which is flimsy enough. But what better explanation is there?

Whatever the reason, John Brown talked to his Queen as did no other subject in her empire. He would tell her that her hat was crooked; he would express his disapproval of her clothes in terms which shocked those who overheard. ("What are ye daein' wi' that auld black dress on ye again? It's green-mouldied!") He stood behind her at table and told her what she must eat. When she was fussy he would talk to her like a peevish papa. And he passed on her wishes to solemn statesmen in unceremonious forms. Once a minister, visiting Balmoral, started off for some morning fishing. John Brown stopped him. "Ye'll no be gangin' fishin' the day," he said. "Her Majesty thinks it time ye did a bit of work."

Ousted Official Declares Mastery of Epidemic Types, but Chronic Types Still Baffling

By the Associated Press.

Harrisburg, Pa., Sept. 15.—Former Attorney General Charles J. Margiotti testified before a special legislative investigating committee tonight that he overheard Democratic leaders demanding money for passage of beer legislation in the 1935 session of the General Assembly.

As a cabinet officer and a candidate for the Democratic nomination for Governor, Margiotti made charges in the spring primary campaign that resulted in a petition for a grand jury investigation of Gov. George H. Earle and 13 others. Start of the grand jury inquiry has been delayed by order of the Supreme Court but he Legislature, empowered by new laws, is investigating the charges.

Margiotti testified today that he learned that a $100,000 contribution to the party was paid by representatives of brewers before the legislation was passed three years ago. He also said $50,000 was paid for passage of the bill permitting Sunday movies.

The petition for the grand jury investigation named Gov. Earle the "key man" in a "system" of blackmail, extortion and coercion for political purposes. Margiotti, who presented the charges to the district attorney after Gov. Earle dismissed him for not making his evidence public, said the conversation concerning the one point of the "sale" of the beer legislation took place in the Governor's office, but he said he did not believe Earle heard it.

Mayor S. Davis Wilson, of Philadelphia, who lost the Democratic nomination for U. S. Senator to Gov. Earle, testified today that his request for an investigation of loans Earle obtained from Matthew H. McCloskey, jr., Philadelphia contractor, were based on "street talk." Soon after Wilson asked the Governor for an explanation Earle said he had borrowed $26,000 from McCloskey before the contractor got about $10,000,000 worth of State work and had paid most of it back.

Va. Police Chiefs Elect Huffman Head of Group

Hot Springs, Va., Sept. 15 (AP).—The Virginia Police Executives Association concluded its annual convention today after electing John W. Huffman, Clifton Forge police chief, as its president and adopting a resolution urging Gov. Price to make available "at the earliest possible moment funds necessary for a Statewide police communication system."

Police work in the State, the resolution said, "is suffering by lack of this system."

Other officers named were Captain of Detectives A. S. Wright, of Richmond, first vice president; John M. Webb, Staunton police chief, second vice president; Morton L. Wallerstein, of Richmond, executive secretary; Harold I. Baumes, of Richmond, assistant secretary, and V. B. Grow, of Lynchburg, sergeant at arms.

Borah Calls Both Parties Dishonest; Returning to D. C.

Poland Springs, Me., Sept. 15 (AP).—Senator Borah (Republican), Idaho, greatly improved in health after a six-week holiday here, tonight left with Mrs. Borah for Washington.

Borah, asked to comment on the President's recent statement that he would rather support liberal Republicans than non-liberal Democrats, said:

"The fact is, there are no political parties of any political integrity or with any sense of political responsibility in the United States, and fortunately the voters seem disposed to vote for individuals and not as partisans.

"That's the best thing that can happen, in view of the present condition of political parties. Nobody knows what the Democratic Party, as a party, stands for, and certainly nobody knows what the Republican Party, as a party, stands for."

Orange Club Wins At Hound Show

Montpelier, Va., Sept. 15 (AP).—The Orange County Hunt Club won a lion's share of the laurels in the annual Virginia Fox Hound Club bench show at the estate of Mrs. Marion Dupont Scott, with winning entries in 10 of the 21 classes.

Jubilee, outstanding entry of the Orange Club, was adjudged the grand champion fox hound of yesterday's show, as well as the champion dog hound.

R. W. Hall, Keswick, won the horn blowing contest.

Robbers Take Taxi And Cash From Driver

Held up by two colored men who took his cab and $3.75 from his pockets, Dewey Morris, 31, a taxi driver, last night hailed a car and chased the bandits to Chain Bridge, where he lost their trail.

Morris, who lives at 131 C street northwest, told police that he picked up the two men at Fourteenth street and Constitution avenue and was told to drive to Twenty-eighth and B streets northwest, where the holdup occurred. One of the men was armed with a revolver.

Marion Restaurateur Found Guilty in Killing

Marion, Va., Sept. 13 (AP).—James Frangakies, restaurant operator, tonight was convicted of second degree murder and his punishment fixed at ten years in prison for the fatal shooting of James Crewey, 23, here on the morning of July 2. A motion to set aside the verdict will be argued September 22.

Inquiry Told WPA Writers Plot Revolt

Project Workers Incited Jersey City Disorders, Recruited Men for Spain, Witness Says

By the Associated Press.

New York, Sept. 15—Testimony that Irving Nicholson, a member of the Federal writers project in New York City, had been sent to Jersey City, N. J., by the central committee of the Communist Party "to bring on a state of revolution" was offered today before a sub-committee of the House committee which is investigating un-American activities.

Edwin P. Banta, librarian of the writers project, a WPA enterprise, testified Nicholson had told him in March the party had selected him (Nicholson) to go to Jersey City to foster strikes, general disorders and to bring about a revolution.

Banta testified that after the Spanish civil war began men and women members of the Communist Party's unit in the writer's project—which was known as "36s"—were asked to recruit men for the Spanish government forces.

Banta, 66, until two weeks ago a dues-paying Communist, testified that when his erstwhile comrades learned he had given information about them to committee investigators he was forcibly detained in a party room for two and a half hours, cursed and threatened.

Woll Denounces Wagner Act to Small Businessmen

Pittsburgh, Sept. 15 (AP).—Matthew Woll, vice president of the American Federation of Labor, appealed tonight for a partnership between employers and labor, asserting the Wagner labor act "would have been unnecessary had employers given a full measure of recognition to labor as a co-partner in industry."

The labor law, he added, "beyond question" should be changed by a "substantial and not merely a clarifying" amendment.

He told the first convention of the National Small Businessmen's Association the law's "weaknesses and maladministration become more pronounced and notorious each succeeding day."

Woll's demand for amendment of the Wagner act was indorsed by Reginald Boote, of Ilion, N. Y., secretary of the National Council of Independent Unions, who said "the concealed, the real purpose of the Wagner act was to stamp out all unaffiliated or independent unions whose membership is confined to employes of one company."

Ickes Rejects Wisconsin's Vast PWA Dam Project

PWA Administrator Ickes set aside Wisconsin's proposed $26,000,000 hydro-electric project yesterday in favor of 114 smaller developments and warned he would act similarly elsewhere where officials were slow to make a definite decision on what projects they wanted PWA to help finance.

The Wisconsin approvals were contained in a list of 146 additional non-Federal projects having an estimated construction cost of $25,802,225, toward which PWA authorized $11,611,041 of grants. Wisconsin grants totaled $8,512,169.

PWA listed New York's Battery tunnel and Chicago's Loop subway among other big projects which may be involved in arbitrary decisions. In instances where a State is near its quota and cannot make up its mind between one large project or a group of smaller ones, officials said PWA will act independently.

Thomas Heads Workers for Blind

David Thomas, 26, of 3261 Stuyvestant place northwest, last night was chosen president of the District of Columbia Association of Workers for the Blind, succeeding Mrs. Grace V. Thompson, who presided over the meeting in the parish hall of Epiphany Church. Miss Susie L. Duffy, of the Service for the Blind, Library of Congress, administered the oath of office.

Also named were Irving L. Bast, vice president; B. L. Frisble, treasurer, for a fourth consecutive term; corresponding secretary, Miss Charlotte Gartland; recording secretary, Miss Bernice Christie, re-elected; members-at-large, Mrs. Thompson, retiring president, and Miss Ida Wietzel.

W. C. Durant Sells Art Treasures

Deal, N. J., Sept. 15 (AP).—William C. Durant, who made and lost millions in the auto industry, chatted lightheartedly with friends today in the midst of a crowd of 1,300 as art treasures in his showplace shore home went under an auctioneer's hammer.

The 291 objects sold today realized $6,027, bringing to $60,138 the total since the sale was started Tuesday by the former auto magnate to raise cash.

The 30-year-old house, containing 37 rooms and 14 bathrooms, was sold for $44,000 on the opening day. Tomorrow, Durant's large library will be auctioned. On Saturday, final day of the sale, a number of tapestries will be put up.

Orlan Hepner Heads Mineral County P.-T. A.

Keyser, W. Va., Sept. 15.—Orlan Hepner, of Wiley Ford, was elected president of the Mineral County Parent-Teacher Association yesterday in the courthouse.

Other officers are: Mrs. C. E. Kiser, Keyser, vice president; Mrs. John Bane, Burlington, secretary; Mrs. H. M. Cornelius, Ridgeley, treasurer. Fred Bosley was named chairman of the county council program committee.

University Park Citizens Oppose Bus Line Change

A resolution opposing any change in the present Massachusetts avenue bus route, which runs from Eighteenth street and Pennsylvania avenue to Wisconsin avenue and Fessenden street, was adopted last night by members of the American University Park Citizens Association.

At the same time the members tentatively approved the creation of a crosstown bus line, providing it interfered in no way with service on Massachusetts avenue. A special committee will present the attitude and position of the association to the Public Utilities Commission.

H. L. Colman was re-elected president of the organization. The 115 members present re-elected Mrs. Blaine McCollum vice president and Mrs. Ora G. Veisel treasurer. Paul R. Andrews was named secretary; Miss Constance Jacobs, assistant secretary, and Thomas E. Lodge and F. R. Sanford delegates to the Federation of Citizens Associations.

Czechs Here Watch Crisis Anxiously

None in D. C. Has Received Mobilization Orders, Says Spokesman; Few Are Foreign-Born

As Great Britain's premier, Neville Chamberlain, and Adolf Hitler concluded their conference at Berchtesgaden, some 1,000 members of Washington's Czechoslovakian colony watched with anxious eyes developments in the world crisis of which their young republic is the hub.

No mobilization orders have been received by citizens of Czechoslovakia living here.

"The rumor that our subjects in this country have received orders to be in readiness for mobilization is untrue," a spokesman at the Czechoslovakian Legation said last night.

Members of the Czechoslovakian Circle, Czech social organization here, will support their fatherland in event of war in every possible way that does not conflict with the policies of the United States, Albert Maserick, president of the group, asserted.

"We will give financial aid and moral support, and stop at nothing short of assistance that would be contrary to the course set for us by our own United States," said Maserick.

His organization, which meets once a month in the Pythian Temple, has about 100 members. Most of them are citizens, American-born or naturalized.

The Czech older folk here, he pointed out, never lived in the Czech Republic. They were subjects of the Austro-Hungarian Empire who came to this country before or during the World War, when hundreds of thousands of their countrymen fought with the Austrian armies against the allies, or revolted, and joined Austria's foes. There are few foreign-born Czechs in Washington.

"These and the American citizens whose roots were in the old country have their jobs here, just as other men and women. But they will aid any struggle to preserve Czech independence as much as they can," their spokesman said.

3,085,672 on Rolls, WPA Reports

For the third straight week the WPA reported a new peak in enrollment yesterday.

Officials estimated the number of persons employed on work relief projects during the week ended September 3 was 3,085,672. This was an increase of 18,809 over the previous week and compared with an enrollment of 1,435,169 on August 28 last year.

Sen. George Renominated In Georgia

Georgia

conventions included Senators Ellison D. Smith, of South Carolina; Guy M. Gillette, Iowa; Frederick Van Nuys, of Indiana; Alva B. Adams, of Colorado, and Bennett C. Clark, Missouri.

With the apparent collapse of the punitive political undertakings, political observers were forecasting a considerably strengthened position in party affairs for National Chairman James A. Farley, who was known to frown on the elimination efforts.

Farley yesterday sent congratulations to Senator George, as he has done in the case of all other successful Democratic candidates.

Publicly the officials of the New Deal were left almost silent. President Roosevelt did the unusual thing of calling off the customary White House press conference which comes on Friday mornings. The reason assigned was that the President was unprepared to comment on the foreign situation. It was a forgone conclusion, however, that questions on the results in Georgia, Maryland and elsewhere would also have been asked.

Ickes Makes Plaint

Only Harold L. Ickes, Secretary of the Interior, chose to speak, and his effort was directed to complaining of the issue raised in Maryland and other States against "outside intervention." The States were not free, he insisted, and Senators were Federal officials.

"I have always felt that a Senator is not a local official," Ickes said. "I consider it the merest piffle to raise any issue of outside intervention when the person is an official of the United States. In the case of Tydings, he is a Senator of the United States. As Senator, he has legislated for us, and has been paid out of the Treasury of the United States. Maryland is no more of a free State than any other State—and none of them are free for that matter."

"Suppose President Roosevelt had declared for Senator Tydings' renomination," he said. "Would there have been any question raised about that?"

The Secretary pointed out that 48 contributions from non-Maryland sources were listed in Tydings' campaign fund.

Turning to the New York Democratic race in which Representative O'Connor is opposed for renomination by the Administration, Ickes said:

"I see that in New York there has been an impassioned outburst from Little Theodore (Col. Theodore Roosevelt, son of President Theodore Roosevelt). Every two or three years he has to let people know he isn't as dead as he appears to be. From his position of commanding power in the Republican Party he declares the G. O. P. should nominated John O'Connor, and Ham Fish (Representative Fish, Republican, of New York) gave out an interview in favor of O'Connor.

"This, too, was outside interference, if anything has been. But I found no squawk from those who had previously condemned the President."

Ickes said there was no truth in assertions that Federal funds had been used against Tydings.

"Tydings put all those Maryland payrollers on the Federal payroll, and that seems to have been all right with everybody," Ickes said, adding that Tydings had "all the patronage."

Roosevelt "Home" Deserts

Atlanta, Sept. 15 (AP).—Senator Walter F. George, the first incumbent Senator whose home State the President entered to oppose for renomination, carried both the county where the Chief Executive spoke against him and that which Mr. Roosevelt calls his "other home," in the Georgia Democratic primary yesterday.

Returns from Lamar County, where Mr. Roosevelt asserted at Barnesville, George should be defeated because he was out of touch with the broad principles of the New Deal, gave George 388 votes to 301 for former Gov. Eugene Talmadge, whom the President also rapped in his address, and 319 for Lawrence Camp, the New Dealer he supported.

Meriwether, where the President frequently visits at Warm Springs, gave George 1,256 votes, Talmadge 1,255 and Camp 1,202. The Warm Springs precinct, however, went for Camp.

Nine of Georgia's 10 Representatives were renominated. In the Eighth District, where Braswell Dean did not seek re-election, W. Ben Gibbs was the apparent winner.

The popular vote in the Senate race was: George 141,742, Talmadge 101,975 and Camp 78,134.

200 Families Cut Off Relief Last Month

Inadequate Funds Blamed by Division of Assistance; 1,034 Denied Aid

Two hundred relief families were dropped from welfare rolls in August because of inadequate relief funds, the public assistance division of the Board of Public Welfare reported yesterday.

Stating August was the second month in which the division operated under the appropriation of only $900,000 for general public assistance, Miss M. Alice Hill, director, said it was possible to accept only 91 cases in the month. These cases, she said, were found to be unemployable and in desperate circumstances.

"Available funds did not permit more to be aided," she said.

A total of 1,034 rejections was recorded during August as compared with approximately 2,000 the previous month. There was no indication, however, that the number of applicants actually decreased because tabulations were made only for those whom it was possible to interview, Miss Hill said.

Due to the reduced staff of interviewers, in line with a new policy dictated by the Welfare Board, it was impossible to interview the great volume of persons applying for surplus foods.

Many persons, in need of assistance, requested only surplus foods, knowing that no other form of assistance was available, she said.

"It is possible that if public funds were ample, these persons would have asked for and received other assistance," Miss Hill reports.

PWA Seeks Aid Of Md. Bankers To Build Bridges

Secretary Ickes announced yesterday that the Public Works Administration which he heads was attempting to learn whether Maryland bankers would buy up the bonds for "one or two" of three proposed bridge projects in that State.

One of the three proposed bridges, a $3,000,000 affair which would stretch across the Potomac at Morgantown, was declared a necessity by President Roosevelt when speaking on behalf of Representative Lewis, since defeated in the Senatorial primary by Tydings.

Other bridges were to be built across the Susquehanna at Havre de Grace and across the Patapsco at Baltimore.

Ickes said he didn't know the present attitude of the bankers but announced that they had originally expressed interest in the bonds if the projects won PWA approval.

FROM THE WAR ZONE: Hitler's generals have told him the next world war will last six years . . . He knows the army would take charge, pushing him and his Nazis into the background . . . Question is whether England is sure he knows it. Bets should still be 3 to 1 against a war this year.

Kay Stammers . . . nominated

Americans in Washington and New York have been phoning and cabling friends and relatives touring in Europe to hurry home . . . You'd think they'd know more about the war menace over there. But the war scare is infinitely more feverish here than in Europe.

• • • •

Certain cagey gentlemen don't look at the front page headlines to find out whether war's on the way. They look at the market pages. If wheat is going up and stocks are going down, that's more ominous than any amount of martial oratory Hitler happens to be pouring out beneath his little black mustache.

"—on the way to the war"

Memory of what it would mean for us to send 2,000,000 men to Europe again is kept green and vivid by two oil paintings at the Navy Department. One shows the sinking of the transport U. S. S. Cassin on October 15, 1917. The other shows the end of the transport President Lincoln May 31, 1918.

One of the mysteries of the Government archives is the joint resolution of Congress adopting the thirteenth amendment, for the abolition of slavery . . . Each line in the official journal is in the handwriting of a different person . . . Also, the page bears the signature of A. Lincoln, which wasn't necessary, plus a notation by the Senate that it didn't require his signature.

POTOMAC CAVIAR: American diplomacy seems to be satisfying no foreign country; many are thinking of shifting ambassadors; which may be proof of the excellence of our diplomacy . . . I think Kay Stammers, the lovely tennis star, should be appointed British ambassador . . . Formal smiling 1940 campaign, why not Maverick and Corcoran at the top of the ticket?

To those who think the New Deal is one happy, harmonious family, the experience of bankers on "loosening credit" is an object lesson. The RFC and the Federal Reserve tell 'em to loosen up. The Treasury and the FDIC (Deposit Insurance) caution them against risky lending. That makes it clear what they should do.

• • • •

Apropos of the President's interest in increasing the national vote in 1940, it's amusing to recall that when some young patriots in 1932 proposed a campaign to set a 50,000,000 vote as a goal, both parties were suspicious. Each side thought it was a scheme to mobilize voters from the back alleys and the tall grass to vote against them.

Couple Wed in '21, Not '31

Due to an error in telegraphic transmission, The Post said Wednesday that Mrs. Grace Hewitte Mobley, of Doubs, Md., and Howard Victory Mobley, against whom she is filing a divorce in Reno, were married in 1931. The couple was married here in 1921. The Post regrets the error.

Dr. Mann Gets Five Crates of Birds for Zoo

Out at the Zoo they're in something of a dither about birds. They have been notified that Dr. William M. Mann, Zoo director, is coming back from Europe with five cages of birds. But they don't know what sort of birds they are or where to put them.

Dr. Mann will arrive at New York today from an extensive European trip. He cabled Ernest P. Walker, acting director, from London, saying he was bringing five crates of birds with him. He didn't say whether they were owls, larks or canaries.

Walker doesn't expect any difficulty. After all, he pointed out, the Zoo has a big bird house capable of swallowing up five crates of birds without so much as ruffling the feathers of the older residents. The new arrivals won't have to stay out in the weather.

How Dr. Mann happened to pick up a new flock of birds is likewise something of a mystery. He went to Europe on a vacation, but apparently went to the zoo and found specimens he wanted.

Neighborhood Councils Plan Inquiry Into 'Fly-by-Night' Social Agencies

A move to investigate the "alarming growth" of "fly-by-night" social agencies was launched yesterday at a meeting of the Neighborhood Councils' central co-ordinating committee in the E Street Y. W. C. A.

The problem is a serious one, Miss Mary Coulson of the Council of Social Agencies declared. "These mushroom agencies have no responsible board, do not have their books audited or open to public inspections, and in many other ways fail to meet the minimum standards recognized for reputable social agencies," she said.

The "fly-by-night" agencies, Miss Coulson pointed out, simply open their doors, solicit funds—usually "to feed starving children"—and are subject to no inspection or control. The agencies dealing with children are of especial concern to the council, she said.

James Ring, of the Alley Dwelling Authority and chairman of the co-ordinating committee, added that irresponsible agencies often duplicate work already done by the regular neighborhood agencies. Miss Coulson charged that collectors for these agencies often receive half of the contribution.

Family groups, usually without proper experience or training, frequently obtain a living from the funds solicited, according to Mrs. W. A. Roberts, executive secretary of Council of Social Agencies. An inquiry was proposed by the Rev. Harry V. Porter of Westminster Presbyterian Church, chairman of the Southwest Council.

It was also decided to create an advisory committee to guide activities of the neighborhood councils.

Church Honors Retiring Singer And Pastor

Honoring Dr. Raphael Harwood Miller, who embarks today on a two-month trip on behalf of the church, and Mrs. Ben Shreve, retiring from the choir after 16 years' service, 300 parishioners of the National City Christian Church dined last night at the Vermont Avenue Annex.

First to laud Mrs. Shreve was Mrs. Earl Wilfley, widow of a former pastor of National City. The former soprano soloist received many floral tributes, among them a corsage sent on behalf of her granddaughter, who celebrated her first birthday yesterday, and whose parents, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Androus, were among the special guests.

Others who spoke briefly were William Braithwaite, choir director; Mrs. James B. Cunningham, president of the Women's Council; Dr. O. E. Reed, chairman of the board of trustees, who served as toastmaster, and Dr. Miller.

Dr. Miller, who will campaign through cities of the South and Middle West for funds for the Thomas Circle edifice, national church of the denomination, was given a rousing send-off. Films of his recent trip to the coast were on the program, with music provided by Mrs. Ben Shreve, Mrs. Dean Turley, Mr. Braithwaite and Mr. Horace Smithey.

School Calls Youth Back On Monday

Slight Decrease in Enrollment Expected, Due to Declining Birth Rate in the Nation

Washington's public schools will come to life Monday as more than 80,000 children drop their vacation pleasures and begin the trek back to school.

Day school students will get off to a flying start Monday at 9 a. m. Evening schools will follow up later in the day, with registrations beginning after 6:30 p. m.

A slight increase in enrollment is expected this year, Nathaniel A. Danowsky, school statistician, said.

"Elementary schools showed a slight decrease in enrollments last year. The same condition is general throughout the States and has been attributed to the decline in the birth rate. This year effects of that decline are to be felt in junior high schools, but the 'hump' has not yet reached up to senior high schools," he added.

92,516 Last Year

Average enrollment in public schools for the entire 1937-38 school year was 92,516, it was said, with a total enrollment on October 1, 1937, of 93,047—including both parochial and private schools. Opening day enrollment last year was 82,645 pupils.

From the office of Schools Superintendent Frank W. Ballou yesterday came these instructions:

All new pupils must present vaccination certificates, birth certificates and reports from the last school attended showing the grade standing.

New students entering teachers' colleges must apply at the office of the president of the college before Monday.

Those entering senior high schools for the first time should apply at the office of the high school principal nearest the student's home. Exceptions, however, were Central High School, for pupils from Takoma-Silver Spring area in Maryland; Western or Central High School, for pupils from Virginia; Woodrow Wilson High School, for pupils from Bethesda-Chevy Chase area in Maryland; and Eastern High School, for pupils from Maryland beyond Anacostia and Benning.

Junior high school newcomers should apply at the office of the principal nearest the student's residence with exception of pupils from Maryland beyond Anacostia and Benning, who should report to the Hine or the Eliot Junior High School, and pupils from Maryland beyond Woodridge, who should attend the Langley Junior High School.

New pupils entering elementary schools should apply at the office of the principal of the nearest school. Enrollment hours today will be from 4 until 6 p. m., and tomorrow from 8 until 10 a. m.

Children must be 5 by November 1 to enter a kindergarten and 6 by the same date to enter a first grade.

Evening school classes will be held for white students three nights a week from 6:30 until 9:51 o'clock, on Mondays, Wednesdays and Thursdays.

Colored Classes Scheduled

For colored students classes will be held on Mondays, Wednesdays and Thursdays from 7 until 10:21 p. m., at Cardozo High School, and from 8 until 10:14 p. m. in other buildings.

Registrations will begin Monday night and classes will be held for white students in Abbot Vocational School, Seventh and O streets northwest; Central High School, Thirteenth and Clifton streets northwest; Hine Junior High School, Seventh and C streets southeast; McKinley High School, Second and T streets northeast; Roosevelt High School, Thirteenth and Allison streets northwest; Webster School (Americanization), Tenth and H streets northwest.

Classes for Negro evening students will be held at Armstrong High School, P street between First and Third streets northwest; Cardozo High School, Ninth street and Rhode Island avenue northwest; Phelps Vocational School, Twenty-fourth and Benning road northeast; Francis Junior High School, Twenty-fourth and N streets northwest; Garnet-Patterson Junior High School, Tenth and U streets northwest; Lovejoy Elementary School, Twelfth and D streets northeast; Randall Junior High School, Half and Eye streets southwest, and Margaret Murray Washington Vocational School, North Capitol and P streets.

Traffic Safety Billboard Is Erected at the District Building

Hazen Officially Backs Permanent Plan to Cut Deaths; Pleas Made Over Radio

By Howard F. Wentworth.

To impress District motorists with the urgent need for driving caution, the new safety sign—sponsored jointly by The Post and Junior Board—graphically depicts the harrowing results of traffic negligence.

It shows a motorist, stunned by what he has done, holding the crumpled form of a little girl in his arms. In a careless moment, he was responsible for the death of an innocent youngster—but the horrible realization of his deed has come too late.

Radio Appeal Made

Aims of The Post-Junior Board movement and a vivid description of the sign were given to Washington residents over facilities of Radio Station WJSV. The program, announced by Hugh Conover, of the Columbia Broadcasting staff, included comments by Hazen, Traffic Director William A. Van Duzer, Inspector L. I. H. Edwards, acting superintendent of police; Lyle O'Rourke, president of the Junior Board, and John J. Riseling, city editor of The Post.

Hazen urged that "every driver and pedestrian take a look at this impressive safety sign" and added:

"In my opinion, constant hammering at the fundamental factors of highway safety and continued application of rigid law enforcement are necessary if we are to stop this killing and maiming. I am glad to indorse The Post-Junior Board program."

Call for Co-operation

In blazing red letters, the billboard strikingly appeals: "Let's Stop Traffic Casualties!" It bears also a replica of The Post-Junior Board safety emblem and calls for public co-operation in a continuing, city-wide life-saving program.

Commenting on current efforts to reduce the accident toll, Van Duzer told radio listeners:

"We are showing great improvement. Accident prevention efforts during the past several weeks have brought more than favorable results. This safety sign is a splendid idea and I hope our motorists take the lesson to heart. Let's not stop now—we need the help of every man, woman and child if results are to be permanent."

Every available resource of the Police Department was offered by Inspector Edwards and he warned motorists that "we intend to continue our practice of strict enforcement of all traffic laws."

O'Rourke Pledges Support

"The protection of human life is our job," he added, "and we are trying to do that job well. All we need is public co-operation for success."

As president of the Junior Board of Commerce, O'Rourke pledged support "of every member of our organization."

"We have unlimited facilities to spread the gospel of safe driving," said O'Rourke, "and we consider solution of the traffic problem as one of our most important civic duties."

Continued interest in seeking a cure for Washington traffic ills was pledged in behalf of The Post by City Editor Riseling. He said:

"The Post has long been interested in Washington's traffic problems and will continue its efforts to arouse public sentiment against highway negligence. Current and future developments in this important problem will be passed on to Post readers by daily stories and pictures. The Post is proud to consider itself a leader in this vital civic issue:"

National Recognition

Conover, in announcing yesterday's safety program, pointed out that The Post had twice received national recognition for its traffic safety efforts since 1936.

A traffic safety institute will be opened by The Post and Junior Board next month. Drivers and nondrivers are invited to attend weekly sessions. Fitting awards will be offered to winners of an open forum "safety quiz."

The safety emblem shown on the new billboard is available at The Post in "sticker" form for use on car windshields.

Amendment to Traffic Law Causes Tangle in Court

A recent amendment to the District traffic regulations yesterday created a tangle in Police Court that netted a policeman and an undertaker a scolding from the bench.

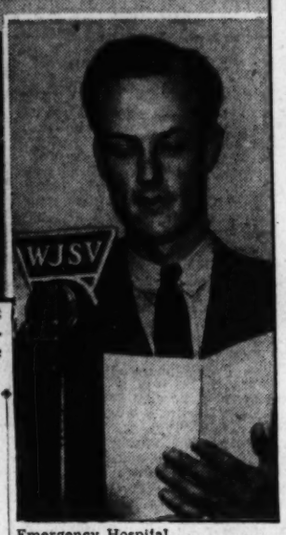
The new amendment, which went into effect February 1, forbids any registered owner of a motor vehicle in the District to let his car be driven by any person without a permit. This ruling was recalled by Judge Edward Curran after Thomas Jones, colored, 1322 U street northwest, pleaded not guilty to charges of making a turn from the wrong lane and operating without a permit.

The owner of the car, Ellis P. Moon, undertaker, of 1332 U street northwest, said he let Jones drive his car in the belief the latter had a learner's permit. Jones claimed he made the wrong turn while on his way to the traffic bureau to obtain his permit.

When Moon admitted knowing that Jones did not have a permit, Judge Curran called the arresting policeman back to learn why he had not arrested the undertaker.

The officer said he had not heard of the amendment, and J. F. Reilly, assistant corporation counsel, pointed out it had only recently taken effect.

Meanwhile, Jones was ordered to pay $5 for an improper turn, and $25 for operating without a permit.



Emergency Hospital.

Police said Brown was struck by a car driven by Shirley R. Meyers, of New Rochelle, N. Y. After the accident, which occurred during a rainstorm, Miss Meyers was charged with reckless driving at the Eighth Precinct.

Mrs. Louise Weldon, of 6002 Utah avenue northwest, suffered a wrenched back last night when the car driven by her husband, William Weldon, was struck by a machine operated by Edward H. Bryant, of Richmond. After the accident, which occurred on Rock Creek Parkway underneath the P street bridge, Bryant was charged with drunken driving by Park Police.

Gabriel B. Linkens, 71, of 1870 California street northwest, suffered a fractured left shoulder and lacerations when struck by a street car while crossing the intersection of Thirteenth street and Pennsylvania avenue northwest. He was treated at Emergency Hospital.

Elizabeth Williams, colored, 52, of Brentwood, Md., died in Garfield Hospital from injuries received in a crash near her home August 8.

Cassie Hits Easy Release Of Criminals

District Frees Young Delinquents Too Soon for Complete Reform, Says Superintendent of Industrial School

Premature release of youths from the Industrial Home School has been responsible for part of Washington's crime record, Earle W. Cassie, superintendent, said in a report released yesterday by the Board of Public Welfare.

The activities of the "red-head bandit," the shooting of a detective, the boy bandit's holdups, all were attributed by Cassie to too great leniency in releasing boys from the home. He urged enlargement of the home by purchase of land at Muirkirk, Md.

Cassie reveals in his report that in many cases where inmates were released prematurely, it was done over his protest.

"Our records, in most of these cases, indicate that we were quite aware that these individuals were serious cases," he said. Their rehabilitation was not complete and they were not ready for release into the community.

"In several instances, we strenuously objected to their release."

The functions of the home, Cassie said, is the care and treatment of children, who are behavior problems, the majority of whom are actually delinquent.

"During the past 15 years the majority of white delinquent boys and girls needing institutional care passed through this school at the rate of from 200 to 300 per year," he said. "Through the years we have observed hundreds of these children become adults and develop into decent citizens. We have also seen a small group develop into confirmed criminals."

President's Cup Queen Gives Hazen Regatta Tickets

Elizabeth Reed, the President's Cup regatta queen, yesterday presented Commissioner Melvin C. Hazen the first set of tickets for the event, which begins Saturday.

Accompanied by James A. Councilor, general chairman of the regatta; Thomas Lodge, chairman of general arrangements and M. W. Sharpe, director of publicity, Miss Hill made the presentation, as the busy City Father called a temporary halt to municipal matters to receive his guests.

Regatta officials said plans to accommodate the public at the events were nearing completion. They said facilities of the Capital Transit Co. would be available for speedy transportation to and from Hains Point.

Buses will leave the south end of the Treasury Building at 9:20 a. m. Saturday morning, and every 20 minutes thereafter. The first race begins at 1:30 p. m. Fare will be 25 cents with stopover privileges.

FROM THE WAR ZONE: Hitler's generals have told him the next world war will last six years . . . He knows the army would take charge, pushing him and his Nazis into the background . . . Question is whether England is sure he knows it. Bets should still be 3 to 1 against a war this year.

• • • •

Kay Stammers . . . nominated

Americans in Washington and New York have been phoning and cabling friends and relatives touring in Europe to hurry home . . . You'd think they'd know more about the war menace over there. But the war scare is infinitely more feverish here than in Europe.

• • • •

Certain cagey gentlemen don't look at the front page headlines to find out whether war's on the way. They look at the market pages. If wheat is going up and stocks are going down, that's more ominous than any amount of martial oratory Hitler happens to be pouring out beneath his little black mustache.

"—on the way to the war"

Memory of what it would mean for us to send 2,000,000 men to Europe again is kept green and vivid by two oil paintings at the Navy Department. One shows the sinking of the transport U. S. S. Cassin on October 15, 1917. The other shows the end of the transport President Lincoln May 31, 1918.

• • • •

One of the mysteries of the Government archives is the joint resolution of Congress adopting the thirteenth amendment, for the abolition of slavery . . . Each line in the official journal is in the handwriting of a different person . . . Also, the page bears the signature of A. Lincoln, which wasn't necessary, plus a notation by the Senate that it didn't require his signature.

• • • •

POTOMAC CAVIAR: American diplomacy seems to be satisfying no foreign country; many are thinking of shifting ambassadors; which may be proof of the excellence of our diplomacy . . . I think Kay Stammers, the lovely tennis star, should be appointed British ambassador. Forget omitting 1940 campaign, why not Maverick and Corcoran at the top of the ticket?

"—one word clears it up"

To those who think the New Deal is one happy, harmonious family, the experience of bankers on "loosening credit" is an object lesson. The RFC and the Federal Reserve tell 'em to loosen up. The Treasury and the FDIC (Deposit Insurance) caution them against risky lending. That makes it clear what they should do.

Apropos of the President's interest in increasing the national vote in 1940, it's amusing to recall that when some young patriots in 1932 proposed a campaign to set a 50,000,000 vote as a goal, both parties were suspicious. Each side thought it was a scheme to mobilize voters from the back alleys and the tall grass to vote against them.

• • • •

NATIONAL MEDLEY: The fashionable horse country around Washington is an Amazons' country—the men are tired and retired, their wives are younger, vigorous, dominant, run things . . . Overheard at a diplomatic party: "Hitler has heard that King Carol of Rumania is a Hohenzollern and now wants to treat him as a German minority" . . . Couple Wed in '21, Not '31

Due to an error in telegraphic transmission, The Post said Wednesday that Mrs. Grace Hewitte Mobley, of Doubs, Md., and Howard Victory Mobley, against whom she is filing a divorce in Reno, were married in 1931. The couple was married here in 1921. The Post regrets the error.

Dr. Mann Gets Five Crates of Birds for Zoo

Out at the Zoo they're in something of a dither about birds. They have been notified that Dr. William M. Mann, Zoo director, is coming back from Europe with five cages of birds. But they don't know what sort of birds they are or where to put them.

Dr. Mann will arrive at New York today from an extensive European trip. He cabled Ernest P. Walker, acting director, from London, saying he was bringing five crates of birds with him. He didn't say whether they were owls, larks or canaries.

Walker doesn't expect any difficulty. After all, he pointed out, the Zoo has a big bird house capable of swallowing up five crates of birds without so much as ruffling the feathers of the older residents. The new arrivals won't have to stay out in the weather.

How Dr. Mann happened to pick up a new flock of birds is likewise something of a mystery. He went to Europe on a vacation, but apparently went to the zoo and found specimens he wanted.

Neighborhood Councils Plan Inquiry Into 'Fly-by-Night' Social Agencies

A move to investigate the "alarming growth" of "fly-by-night" social agencies was launched yesterday at a meeting of the Neighborhood Councils' central co-ordinating committee in the E Street Y. W. C. A.

The problem is a serious one, Miss Mary Coulson of the Council of Social Agencies declared. "These mushroom agencies have no responsible board, do not have their books audited or open to public inspections, and in many other ways fail to meet the minimum standards recognized for reputable social agencies," she said.

The "fly-by-night" agencies, Miss Coulson pointed out, simply open their doors, solicit funds—usually "to feed starving children"—and are subject to no inspection or control. The agencies dealing with children are of especial concern to the council, she said.

James Ring, of the Alley Dwelling Authority and chairman of the co-ordinating committee, added that irresponsible agencies often duplicate work already done by the regular neighborhood agencies. Miss Coulson charged that collectors for these agencies often receive half of the contribution.

Family groups, usually without proper experience or training, frequently obtain a living from the funds solicited, according to Mrs. W. A. Roberts, executive secretary of Council of Social Agencies. An inquiry was proposed by the Rev. Harry V. Porter of Westminster Presbyterian Church, chairman of the Southwest Council.

It was also decided to create an advisory committee to guide activities of the neighborhood councils.

Church Honors Retiring Singer And Pastor

Honoring Dr. Raphael Harwood Miller, who embarks today on a two-month trip on behalf of the church, and Mrs. Ben Shreve, retiring from the choir after 16 years' service, 300 parishioners of the National City Christian Church dined last night at the Vermont Avenue Annex.

First to laud Mrs. Shreve was Mrs. Earl Wilfley, widow of a former pastor of National City. The former soprano soloist received many floral tributes, among them a corsage sent on behalf of her granddaughter, who celebrated her first birthday yesterday, and whose parents, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Androus, were among the special guests.

Others who spoke briefly were William Braithwaite, choir director; Mrs. James B. Cunningham, president of the Women's Council; Dr. O. E. Reed, chairman of the board of trustees, who served as toastmaster, and Dr. Miller.

Dr. Miller, who will campaign through cities of the South and Middle West for funds for the Thomas Circle edifice, national church of the denomination, was given a rousing send-off. Films of his recent trip to the coast were on the program, with music provided by Mrs. Ben Shreve, Mrs. Dean Turley, Mr. Braithwaite and Mr. Horace Smithey.

School Calls Youth Back On Monday

Slight Decrease in Enrollment Expected, Due to Declining Birth Rate in the Nation

Washington's public schools will come to life Monday as more than 80,000 children drop their vacation pleasures and begin the trek back to school.

Day school students will get off to a flying start Monday at 9 a. m. Evening schools will follow up later in the day, with registrations beginning after 6:30 p. m.

A slight increase in enrollment is expected this year, Nathaniel A. Danowsky, school statistician, said.

"Elementary schools showed a slight decrease in enrollments last year. The same condition is general throughout the States and has been attributed to the decline in the birth rate. This year effects of that decline are to be felt in junior high schools, but the 'hump' has not yet reached up to senior high schools," he added.

92,516 Last Year

Average enrollment in public schools for the entire 1937-38 school year was 92,516, it was said, with a total enrollment on October 1, 1937, of 93,047—including both parochial and private schools. Opening day enrollment last year was 82,645 pupils.

From the office of Schools Superintendent Frank W. Ballou yesterday came these instructions:

All new pupils must present vaccination certificates, birth certificates and reports from the last school attended showing the grade standing.

New students entering teachers' colleges must apply at the office of the president of the college before Monday.

Those entering senior high schools for the first time should apply at the office of the high school principal nearest the student's home. Exceptions, however, were Central High School, for pupils from Takoma-Silver Spring area in Maryland; Western or Central High School, for pupils from Virginia; Woodrow Wilson High School, for pupils from Bethesda-Chevy Chase area in Maryland; and Eastern High School, for pupils from Maryland beyond Anacostia and Benning.

Junior high school newcomers should apply at the office of the principal nearest the student's residence with exception of pupils from Maryland beyond Anacostia and Benning, who should report to the Hine or the Eliot Junior High School, and pupils from Maryland beyond Woodridge, who should attend the Langley Junior High School.

New pupils entering elementary schools should apply at the office of the principal of the nearest school. Enrollment hours today will be from 4 until 6 p. m., and tomorrow from 8 until 10 a. m.

Children must be 5 by November 1 to enter a kindergarten and 6 by the same date to enter a first grade.

Evening school classes will be held for white students three nights a week from 6:30 until 9:51 o'clock, on Mondays, Wednesdays and Thursdays.

Colored Classes Scheduled

For colored students classes will be held on Mondays, Wednesdays and Thursdays from 7 until 10:21 p. m., at Cardozo High School, and from 8 until 10:14 p. m. in other buildings.

Registrations will begin Monday night and classes will be held for white students in Abbot Vocational School, Seventh and O streets northwest; Central High School, Thirteenth and Clifton streets northwest; Hine Junior High School, Seventh and C streets southeast; McKinley High School, Second and T streets northeast; Roosevelt High School, Thirteenth and Allison streets northwest; Webster School (Americanization), Tenth and H streets northwest.

Classes for Negro evening students will be held at Armstrong High School, P street between First and Third streets northwest; Cardozo High School, Ninth street and Rhode Island avenue northwest; Phelps Vocational School, Twenty-fourth and Benning road northeast; Francis Junior High School, Twenty-fourth and N streets northwest; Garnet-Patterson Junior High School, Tenth and U streets northwest; Lovejoy Elementary School, Twelfth and D streets northeast; Randall Junior High School, Half and Eye streets southwest, and Margaret Murray Washington Vocational School, North Capitol and P streets.

Traffic Safety Billboard Is Erected at the District Building

Hazen Officially Backs Permanent Plan to Cut Deaths; Pleas Made Over Radio

By Howard F. Wentworth.

To impress District motorists with the urgent need for driving caution, the new safety sign—sponsored jointly by The Post and Junior Board—graphically depicts the harrowing results of traffic negligence.

It shows a motorist, stunned by what he has done, holding the crumpled form of a little girl in his arms. In a careless moment, he was responsible for the death of an innocent youngster—but the horrible realization of his deed has come too late.

Radio Appeal Made

Aims of The Post-Junior Board movement and a vivid description of the sign were given to Washington residents over facilities of Radio Station WJSV. The program, announced by Hugh Conover, of the Columbia Broadcasting staff, included comments by Hazen, Traffic Director William A. Van Duzer, Inspector L. I. H. Edwards, acting superintendent of police; Lyle O'Rourke, president of the Junior Board, and John J. Riseling, city editor of The Post.

Hazen urged that "every driver and pedestrian take a look at this impressive safety sign" and added:

"In my opinion, constant hammering at the fundamental factors of highway safety and continued application of rigid law enforcement are necessary if we are to stop this killing and maiming. I am glad to indorse The Post-Junior Board program."

Call for Co-operation

In blazing red letters, the billboard strikingly appeals: "Let's Stop Traffic Casualties!" It bears also a replica of The Post-Junior Board safety emblem and calls for public co-operation in a continuing, city-wide life-saving program.

Commenting on current efforts to reduce the accident toll, Van Duzer told radio listeners:

"We are showing great improvement. Accident prevention efforts during the past several weeks have brought more than favorable results. This safety sign is a splendid idea and I hope our motorists take the lesson to heart. Let's not stop now—we need the help of every man, woman and child if results are to be permanent."

Every available resource of the Police Department was offered by Inspector Edwards and he warned motorists that "we intend to continue our practice of strict enforcement of all traffic laws."

O'Rourke Pledges Support

"The protection of human life is our job," he added, "and we are trying to do that job well. All we need is public co-operation for success."

As president of the Junior Board of Commerce, O'Rourke pledged support "of every member of our organization."

"We have unlimited facilities to spread the gospel of safe driving," said O'Rourke, "and we consider solution of the traffic problem as one of our most important civic duties."

Continued interest in seeking a cure for Washington traffic ills was pledged in behalf of The Post by City Editor Riseling. He said:

"The Post has long been interested in Washington's traffic problems and will continue its efforts to arouse public sentiment against highway negligence. Current and future developments in this important problem will be passed on to Post readers by daily stories and pictures. The Post is proud to consider itself a leader in this vital civic issue:"

National Recognition

Conover, in announcing yesterday's safety program, pointed out that The Post had twice received national recognition for its traffic safety efforts since 1936.

A traffic safety institute will be opened by The Post and Junior Board next month. Drivers and nondrivers are invited to attend weekly sessions. Fitting awards will be offered to winners of an open forum "safety quiz."

The safety emblem shown on the new billboard is available at The Post in "sticker" form for use on car windshields.

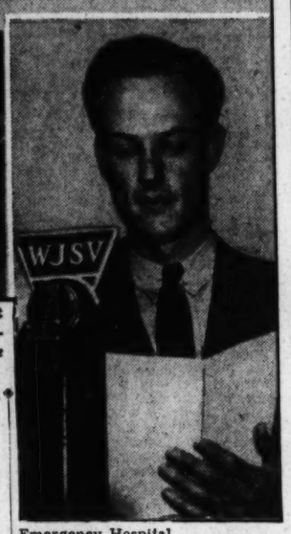
Knocked down by an automobile while directing traffic at Connecticut avenue and Ordway street, Private Edward M. Brown, of the Eighth Precinct, suffered a fractured collar bone and other injuries yesterday. He was taken to Emergency Hospital.

Police said Brown was struck by a car driven by Shirley R. Meyers, of New Rochelle, N. Y. After the accident, which occurred during a rainstorm, Miss Meyers was charged with reckless driving at the Eighth Precinct.

Mrs. Louise Weldon, of 6002 Utah avenue northwest, suffered a wrenched back last night when the car driven by her husband, William Weldon, was struck by a machine operated by Edward H. Bryant, of Richmond. After the accident, which occurred on Rock Creek Parkway underneath the P street bridge, Bryant was charged with drunken driving by Park Police.

Gabriel B. Linkens, 71, of 1870 California street northwest, suffered a fractured left shoulder and lacerations when struck by a street car while crossing the intersection of Thirteenth street and Pennsylvania avenue northwest. He was treated at Emergency Hospital.

Elizabeth Williams, colored, 52, of Brentwood, Md., died in Garfield Hospital from injuries received in a crash near her home August 8.



Amendment to Traffic Law Causes Tangle in Court

A recent amendment to the District traffic regulations yesterday created a tangle in Police Court that netted a policeman and an undertaker a scolding from the bench.

The new amendment, which went into effect February 1, forbids any registered owner of a motor vehicle in the District to let his car be driven by any person without a permit. This ruling was recalled by Judge Edward Curran after Thomas Jones, colored, 1322 U street northwest, pleaded not guilty to charges of making a turn from the wrong lane and operating without a permit.

The owner of the car, Ellis P. Moon, undertaker, of 1332 U street northwest, said he let Jones drive his car in the belief the latter had a learner's permit. Jones claimed he made the wrong turn while on his way to the traffic bureau to obtain his permit.

When Moon admitted knowing that Jones did not have a permit, Judge Curran called the arresting policeman back to learn why he had not arrested the undertaker.

The officer said he had not heard of the amendment, and J. F. Reilly, assistant corporation counsel, pointed out it had only recently taken effect.

Meanwhile, Jones was ordered to pay $5 for an improper turn, and $25 for operating without a permit.

Cassie Hits Easy Release Of Criminals

District Frees Young Delinquents Too Soon for Complete Reform, Says Superintendent of Industrial School

Premature release of youths from the Industrial Home School has been responsible for part of Washington's crime record, Earle W. Cassie, superintendent, said in a report released yesterday by the Board of Public Welfare.

The activities of the "red-head bandit," the shooting of a detective, the boy bandit's holdups, all were attributed by Cassie to too great leniency in releasing boys from the home. He urged enlargement of the home by purchase of land at Muirkirk, Md.

Cassie reveals in his report that in many cases where inmates were released prematurely, it was done over his protest.

"Our records, in most of these cases, indicate that we were quite aware that these individuals were serious cases," he said. Their rehabilitation was not complete and they were not ready for release into the community.

"In several instances, we strenuously objected to their release."

The functions of the home, Cassie said, is the care and treatment of children, who are behavior problems, the majority of whom are actually delinquent.

"During the past 15 years the majority of white delinquent boys and girls needing institutional care passed through this school at the rate of from 200 to 300 per year," he said. "Through the years we have observed hundreds of these children become adults and develop into decent citizens. We have also seen a small group develop into confirmed criminals."

President's Cup Queen Gives Hazen Regatta Tickets

Elizabeth Reed, the President's Cup regatta queen, yesterday presented Commissioner Melvin C. Hazen the first set of tickets for the event, which begins Saturday.

Accompanied by James A. Councilor, general chairman of the regatta; Thomas Lodge, chairman of general arrangements and M. W. Sharpe, director of publicity, Miss Hill made the presentation, as the busy City Father called a temporary halt to municipal matters to receive his guests.

Regatta officials said plans to accommodate the public at the events were nearing completion. They said facilities of the Capital Transit Co. would be available for speedy transportation to and from Hains Point.

Buses will leave the south end of the Treasury Building at 9:20 a. m. Saturday morning, and every 20 minutes thereafter. The first race begins at 1:30 p. m. Fare will be 25 cents with stopover privileges.

Jury to Hear GHA Charges In October

Extra Panel to Be Called to Weigh Accusation of Monopoly Against Medical Societies

The Department of Justice has made plans to launch its grand jury investigation of complaints brought by group health advocates against the District of Columbia Medical Society about the middle of next month, it was learned yesterday. There is a good prospect that the inquiry will begin October 17.

An extra grand jury will be called to hear charges that the District Medical Society, working in co-operation with the American Medical Association, has attempted to break up Group Health Association, Inc., local organization formed among Government workers for the purpose of spreading medical costs.

Extra Jury Certain

Delay in opening the investigation, it was learned, is due in large part to plans for calling an extra grand jury. Department officials at first intended to present evidence in the case to the regular grand jury.

As preliminary arrangements have gone forward, however, Department attorneys have found their task broadening. Although it appeared a short time ago that the investigation would not consume sufficient time to justify calling an extra grand jury, this situation has now changed.

Thurman Arnold, Assistant Attorney General in charge of antitrust cases, intends to lay before the grand jury the "whole picture" of complaints and charges brought by the group health movement.

In making the inquiry national in scope, however, the department is not undertaking to seek indictments against physicians throughout the country accused of trying to break up group health organizations.

Instead, officials made clear, the department is confining its proceeding against "organized medicine" under the antitrust statutes to the situation prevailing in the District of Columbia.

Will Be Localized

In consequence, indictments will be sought only against officials or others in the District Medical Society charged with trying to break up the local group health association and leaders in the American Medical Association accused of working with the District Medical Society in this effort.

By confining its criminal proceeding to the District, it is pointed out, the Department will have the advantage of avoiding the troublesome commerce clause of the Constitution. It will not have to demonstrate to the Federal courts that the medical profession is a trade in interstate commerce.

It will be entering upon uncharted legal ground, in fact, in attempting to show that the medical profession is a trade.

May Involve Other Cities

Complaints that medical organizations of long standing are undertaking to destroy the group health movement have come to the Department from such cities as Milwaukee, Los Angeles and San Francisco. Heads of the group health movement in these cities likely will be called as witnesses in the grand jury proceedings.

Extension of the inquiry to these cities, however, it was learned, will be solely with the object of strengthening the case against American Medical Association heads so far as their participation in the District situation is concerned. If parallel situations in other cities are shown, officials believe, the possibility of obtaining indictments against A. M. A. leaders will be enhanced.

Mrs. Moeller Is Visitor At Md. Flower Show

Hughesville, Md., Sept. 15.—Receiving seven blue ribbons, Mrs. William Moeller, of Charlotte Hall, Md., was awarded the sweepstakes prize at the annual flower show in the high school auditorium. Among the other winners of blue ribbons were Mrs. James Smith, Mrs. T. C. Martin, Mrs. Elsie Schultz, of Hughesville, and Miss Betty Steffins, Mrs. T. H. Weatherale, of Bryantown, Md.

The flower show was sponsored by the Woman's Club of Hughesville and was judged by Dr. Harry M. Bowen, of Aquasco, Md., and H. A. Shumaker, of College Park, Md.

Meningitis Toll Reduced by New Methods

Dr. McLeod Reports Medical Mastery of Epidemic Types, but Chronic Types Still Baffling

Physicians now have three weapons against the deadly spinal meningitis, which formerly was fatal in 40 or 45 per cent of the cases, Dr. John H. McLeod, of the staff of Children's Hospital, declared yesterday at the postgraduate clinic of the Georgetown University school of medicine.

These are serum, anti-toxin and sulphanilimide, he said. In epidemic or No's. 1 and 3 type meningitis, these are virtual guarantees of a sharp reduction in mortality rate.

Another problem is presented, however, Dr. McLeod said, so far as chronic or Numbers 2 and 4 type meningitis are concerned.

"With repect to the No. 2 type," he declared, "we are stumped. We don't seem to be able to deal with it with what we now have at hand."

He recalled that a small drug firm made a batch of serum some time ago, although potent against Nos. 1 and 3, was even more pronounced in its activities against the No. 2 type. This serum saved lives that otherwise might have been lost, Dr. McLeod said, but the drug firm has been unable to make more of the serum, although it followed its methods exactly.

Dr. Sarah Branham, of the United States Public Health Service, is making experiments to discover how the serum was obtained.

Sulphanilimide, Dr. McLeod explained, has been shown to be an effective supplementary treatment for meningitis. Efforts are being made, however, to develop a more effective drug. A more effective derivitative is said to have been developed.

Md. Roads Board Treasurer Quits

Baltimore, Sept. 15 (AP).—Waring P. Carrington, for eight years treasurer of the State Roads Commission, resigned today, leaving his $3,400-a-year post open to appointment by the commission.

Commission Chairman J. Glenn Beall and Gov. Harry W. Nice both said "several persons" were under consideration for the job, but that no decision would be made immediately.

Beall said Carrington had purchased a 600-acre farm in the Carolinas and planned to retire as a "gentleman-farmer."

Liquor Firm Sues Over 'Invasion'

Alleging another liquor distributing company had invaded a territory that had been exclusively given it by contract, Milton S. Kronheim & Son, Inc., liquor distributors, asked the District Court yesterday to enjoin the Shoreham Coffee Co., of Morse street northeast, from selling at wholesale three popular brands the company claims it controls locally.

Through F. Joseph Donoghue, the Kronheim company alleged "In the ordinary course of business these manufacturers have divided the territory of the United States into well-defined geographical units, and in each of these units designates a wholesaler as their exclusive agent for their brands."

Trusty Foils Jail Break Of Four at Lynchburg

Lynchburg, Va., Sept. 15. (AP)—A trusty was credited today with preventing the escape of four Federal prisoners from Lynchburg's new and supposedly break-proof city jail.

Because H. S. Rush, who has a month to serve on an automobile theft charge, called Deputy Jailer Maurice Brandt to his cell last night to listen to the rasping of a saw in an adjoining cell block, the fight was balked, jail officials said.

Hearing Set Today On Removal Of Blimp Hangar

Representatives of Washington Airport will appear before the Virginia State corporation commission in Richmond today in response to an order to show cause why the terminal should not direct the removal of the Goodyear blimp hangar from the edge of the field.

Efforts have been under way nearly a year to effect demolition of the structure which, in the opinion of aviation authorities, is a hazard to planes flying in and out of Washington Airport.

A number of improvements have been made at the terminal in the interest of safety since the commission first began to study the situation there.

Among them are included the removal of Military road, which was authorized at the last session of Congress, and the adoption of a regulation requiring that planes using the field shall be equipped with radio.

Samuel J. Solomon, manager of the terminal, said yesterday that he would attend the hearing in Richmond, but indicated he did not expect to testify.

Best's Opens Branch Store On Conn. Ave.

New York Specialty Chain Expands Here; Stock Will Emphasize Youthful Modes

Philip Le Boutillier, who rose from a $6 a week bundle wrapper to president and general manager of a large Fifth avenue specialty shop chain, announced the opening of a Best & Co. branch in Washington yesterday afternoon.

This is the eighth year-round branch store. It is at Connecticut avenue northwest and Albemarle street.

Best's has been known for the emphasis it has placed on youth, Le Boutillier said. Founded in 1879 as the Lilliputian Bazaar, it soon became famous for babies' and children's outfitting. In the past few decades it has been known not only for children's clothes, but for youthful clothes for women as well. Pastel tweeds, denim playclothes, the "Silver Button" reefer, the Shirtmaker dress and Dirndl are among the modes started by Best's.

Work on the building and fixtures was handled largely by Washington contractors. The entire staff is made up of local people—with the exception of three managers trained in Best's methods of operation and merchandising.

Le Boutillier expects the branch here to be as successful as those in suburban New York, Cleveland, Detroit, Boston and Philadelphia.

Cumberland Catches Glimpse of Roosevelt

Cumberland, Md., Sept. 15 (AP).—President Roosevelt, hurrying to Washington because of the European situation, stopped in Cumberland for 15 minutes today.

As the train pulled from the station, a window blind in the rear of the last car was lifted and the President waved to the crowd of about 400.

I.T.U. Refuses To Pay A.F.L. War Fund Levy

Printers for 2d Time Reject Assessment for Fight Against Another Union Organization

By the Associated Press.

Birmingham, Ala., Sept. 15.—The International Typographical Union today refused to pay the American Federation of Labor an assessment termed by some delegates as a "war-chest to fight another branch of organized labor."

The union's 82d convention rejected, by adoption of a minority finance committee report, an assessment of $9,600 ordered by the A. F. of L. The vote was 132 to 121. I. T. U. membership refused in a referendum last April to pay the levy.

Declaring payment of the assessment would "subordinate" the union to the American Federation of Labor, the report insisted "individuality of the . . . union shall be maintained."

Sharp debeate ranged Persident Claude M. Baker, who supported payment of the levy, against Vice President Francis Barrett and Secretary-Treasurer Woodruff Randolph.

Possibility that failure to pay the assessment might lead to suspension from the A. F. of L. was touched on by speakers. Baker intimated the dispute over the levy was induced to have the union "kicked out" of the federation. Barrett denounced possible use of I. T. U. funds for fighting other organized labor with the statement:

"I think this union is strong enough to stand without either (C. I. O. or A. F. L.)

1,000 Elks to Attend Session in Gettysburg

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Gettysburg, Pa., Sept. 15.—More than 1,000 members of the Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks and their wives are expected in Gettysburg Sunday to attend a quarterly meeting of the South Central District of the Pennsylvania State Elks' Association.

Delegations will come here from Waynesboro, Chambersburg, Carlisle, DuBois, Clearfield, State College, Phillipsburg, Reynoldsville, Lewistown, Tyrone, Punxsutawney, Huntington, York, Harrisburg, Red Lion, Hanover, Lancaster, Hagerstown and Frederick.

2 Named on Game Board

Richmond, Va., Sept. 15. (AP)—Governor Price today reappointed J. Sinclair Brown, of Salem and Samuel P. Goodloe, of Afton, as members of the Commission of Game and Inland Fisheries, Brown for a three-year term and Goodloe for a one-year term.

News of Capital Night Clubs

By Mary Harris

Note to Maj. Brown: Extra traffic police are going to be needed around the Carlton this evening. So many people are planning to attend the Shar-Zad Room opening tonight that Manager Frank Swadley is going around wishing that the place was built like an accordion.

Sande Williams and his lads will not only play for dancing every night in Shar-Zad, but, beginning tomorrow afternoon, they will entertain in the Carlton cocktail lounge between 5 and 7.

Sande facts: His smile would be a good ad for any tooth paste. He can produce music with a violin bow loosened and circled about the fiddle. His first engagement was for three weeks at Chicago's Congress Hotel—but he stayed 37 weeks.

And strange facts: The lad who took second honors in the Walkathon that recently enlivened Silver Spring, headed straight for the Rainbow Room after grabbing his prize. And he spent the rest of the evening dancing, not missing a number. He'd been in the Walkathon for 1,686 hours.

Shoreham's Barnee is cherishing a handsome tooled leather cuff link and stud box. It's the gift of Mrs. George Marshall and the card read "to my co-author." Barnee and Mrs. Marshall collaborated on "Hail to the Redskins," official song of the Redskins.

Remember that "Miss Physical Culture," Mary Twombley, so proudly announced by the Lotus last week, and who didn't show up? The little lady will positively be at the Lotus next week, says Manager Dick Lamm. Now, Mary, no more Bernard MacFadden tricks, if you please. Johnny Wages, one-man band, will also be on deck at the Lotus next Monday.

Betrayal of confidence item: Doubtless you've read about that new "Touchdown cocktail" announced by Oscar of the Hi-Hat. We've found out that the "Touchdown" is no less than the tried and high-tested Kick-in-the-pants cocktail.

Mayfair's Jack and Leo, also promotion Manager Jimmy Byrd, are unanimous in predicting that "Change Partners" will be the country's No. 1 hit song within two weeks.

Just back from New York, Fordyce Minnick, manager of 2400 Sixteenth street, has too kindly set us straight about some intriguing and well-meant but offside information on 2400's new cocktail room given out during his absence.

The new spot is to be called "Lounge Riviera" and has been designed by Elsie de Wolfe, who, you will remember, had been commissioned to re-do Buckingham Palace by Edward VIII before he decided to become the Duke of Windsor. In figuring out the "Lounge Riviera," we understand Miss de Wolfe has revelled with four shades of brown. Jarrett White is the architect and the opening will take place sometime between November 1 and 10.

It's hard to say whether the regular dance groups or those musical intermissions are more enjoyable in Wardman's Metronome Room. Both have that bright and flexible quality that distinguishes Johnny Slaughter's music, giving a fresh touch to the most familiar numbers. Every member of the band takes turns playing intermissions. Mostly they do it in duos, using various instrumental combinations.

Most engaging "tacky" costume you'll see is that worn by La Marguerite in her Apache dance at Bamboo Gardens. She gets her effects by wearing stockings with amazing runs and a startlingly slashed skirt over the briefest of underwear. It's hard to believe that she's the same gal you saw five minutes before in satin and gardenias.

Johnny Shaw (Madrillon) is rehearsing his orchestra twice as much as usual these days. It's a matter of getting readied for fall and catching up all the new tunes now pouring off Broadway. Helen Forrest, formerly of Madrillon, is singing at Baltimore's Century Theater this week.

Abe Clar's piano and violin playing are scoring tremendously with patrons of the King Cole Room. But that's no wonder for Abe can play practically anything and play it well, too. He also accompanies Singer Evelyn Knight. Says King Cole's head man, Vincent Gallegher, "The smooth accompaniment Abe gives to Evelyn really butters her mellow stuff on both sides." Wheee-e! Is this column going Gallegher?

Ah, yes, and don't—forget to remember that Mr. Gallegher's other spot, the Hour Glass, will be open on Sunday afternoon and evening for the first time.

Davis Honored By Legion Posts

Westmoreland Davis, Virginia's war-time Governor, was presented yesterday afternoon with a medal in recognition of services to the American Legion, by the 24 American Legion posts in Virginia's Eighth Congressional District.

Commander Raymond King, of Alexandria, pinned on the medal.

The event took place at a meeting of the 24 posts at Davis' home, Morven Park, near Leesburg.

Former Lay Minister Paroled in Maryland

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Hagerstown, Sept. 15.—Rufus Edwards, former lay minister, whose peculations with funds entrusted to his care while he was employed by a Hagerstown concern resulted in his conviction on a charge of embezzlement and a five-year penitentiary sentence, has been granted a parole. Edwards' arrest here about three years ago caused quite a sensation because of his prominence. He had twice been refused a parole.

Make That Dream Home A Reality
Maybe you sit and think of the comforts, security and conveniences of a home. But what are you doing about buying that home? Thru the F. H. A. plan, nearly everyone can start the purchase of their home and make their dream come true. For practical ideas on where to buy a home, see the real estate section in this Sunday's Post. For the past five years The Post has been the leading newspaper in America in real estate display. This leadership assures Post readers of a wide selection of real estate values in Washington and vicinity.

Your Figure

Your Figure Requires Real Work

Reckoning Follows When Your Waistline Slips and Hips Go Hopeless from Laziness.

By Ida Jean Kain.

YOU CAN'T be young and supple without exercise, for laziness lets muscles grow flabby and fat cells gather. When you start in time, general exercise is enough to keep you in trim, but it is too late for you to use general measures. You will have to do specific exercises to make your figure over, and here is a compact little set that will slim and trim each measurement:

POSITION: Standing erect, feet together, arms stretched overhead, width of shoulders apart.

MOVEMENT: Reach up as high as possible, fingers together. Now, force both arms back behind the ears, all the while stretching upward, and holding your head erect. Stretch again and repeat six times. This exercise is a general one for all the trunk bulges.

POSITION: Standing, arms stretched overhead to full extension, fingers interlocked.

MOVEMENT: Pulling up with all your might, bend acutely to the side. Return to position and bend to the other side. Pull!

POSITION: Standing with feet slightly apart, and in erect posture. Hold the arms straight out in front of the body, shoulder level, with the fists clenched.

MOVEMENT: Cross the arms, swinging over and under. Keep the arms straight as you swing them over and under, and hold them at shoulder level for the exercise. To lift the bust contour, raise the arms higher for the exercise.

POSITION: Flat on the back, knees bent and together, toes pointed.

MOVEMENT: Twist at the waist, keeping the upper part of the body as flat on the floor as possible. Twist the hips to the left and shoot both legs straight out, legs held together, toes pointed and feet close to the floor. Bend the knees back to the chest and roll to the starting position. Twist the hips to the right, and repeat the exercise. Begin with three times for each side, later ten times.

Exercises like these, done daily, will make your figure over.

All in Day's Work for Saleswomen to Be 'Bawled Out' By Dignified Dowagers for Fancied Offenses

THE TICKLISH QUESTION now arises as to whose manners are worst—those of saleswomen who airily address dignified shoppers as "dearie" or "honey?" Or those of the shopper who outspokenly resents and condemns the pert approach? It all started with a letter published here September 7, in which a (self-styled) dignified woman asked how to cope with such familiarity. It was fanned into controversial flame by the publication, on September 14, of suggestions submitted by similarly affronted shoppers. Today the other side of the picture is given, in letters from a saleswoman and shoppers of a more indulgent turn of mind. M. H.

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: I was much amused by the letter signed "Self Respecting," published in your column of September 14. My advice to her is to think as much of others as she thinks of herself. As a saleswoman in one of the large local department stores, I come in contact with all sorts of customers. Sometimes I think I ought to write a book about the people I meet, as an eye-opener to them and as a means of guaranteeing a secure old age for myself—for I imagine the royalties would be ample and continuous! I have heard it said that a sense of humor serves one well and keeps one young, and I hope this is true, for I happen to have one and it gets daily exercise in the work I do.

* * * *

As for the offending terms, "honey" and "dearie," to which your dignified correspondents object, I frankly admit they sound silly to me, and I never use them. Yet I feel that they are just a meaningless rhetorical habit to those who do use them, and imply no thought of personal familiarity . . . I come from a Northern State, where that type of address is never used; but I soon decided, after coming to Washington, that it is something of a commonplace in the Southerner's vernacular and am now so accustomed to it that I am scarcely conscious of it.

* * * *

In venting her outrage at impertinent salesgirls and floor managers who cal lher "dearie" and "honiey," I am afraid that "self-Respecting" unconsciously painted a most unfortunate picture of her own personality. Her technique for putting them in their place is not exactly what one would expect from a genuine lady. Surely she could have offered constructive suggestions in a kindlier and more acceptable way—and the offending persons would have been only too glad to mend their manners.

However, I suppose she just had to speak her little piece, and in my mind's eye I can see her sailing majestically away from the counter, bosom heaving with righteous indignation and feeling very well satisfied with herself after having done so. She probably would be very much surprised to know that the stepped-on salesgirl wasn't nearly as annihilated as she supposed; that her conversation probably went something like this (as soon as "Self-Respecting" was out of earshot): "And did you hear the bawling-out that old dowager gave me, Mary? To which Mary probably replied: "Yes, Ruth, I got it. How could I help it? And now will you take that piece of advice I've been giving you all along, and park that 'honey' and 'dearie' line down on the old plantation?"

It's all in the day's work with the salesclerk, and she goes on to the next customer with a cheerful smile and a willing spirit, ready to serve her as best she can. No salesperson forgets a pleasant customer, and is always ready and willing to serve her; and by the same token, no clerk ever forgets a disagreeable patron and I, for one, avoid them as if they had leprosy. It's a poor rule that doesn't work both ways, and the customer pays for his lack of manners just as heavily as does the ill-mannered salesperson. SALESWOMAN.

Likes the Term 'Honey'

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: I'm probably sticking my neck out, but I'd like to say a few words in this shopgirl-dowager, "dignity-dearie" controversy. Maybe I'm crazy, but it has always given me a warm, happy glow to be addressed as "honey" or "dear" by smiling salesgirls. When I am tired it revives me magically—just the kind, sweet word.

Instructed by my own grateful reaction to the endearment, I have taught myself to come out of my own shell of reserve and address others as "honey" on occasion. It gives you a warmer, happier, more human feeling to call others "honey," and brings you closer to your fellowmen. I have noticed others show the same surprised and grateful response.

Being dignified is a chilly business and so inhuman. A smile and a pleasant, "Have you been waited on, dear," can do so much to cheer a lonely heart and quicken a tired body. RESPONSIVE.

Appreciates Good Nature

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: The woman who discontinued her charge accounts with certain stores whose employes addressed her as "dearie" would do well to have a little contact with the business world. How about letting her serve behind a counter for a week, in order to find out whether, after seven or eight hours of continuous standing, she had enough good will left in her heart to call anybody anything approximating an endearment?

Personally, when I go shopping I am too grateful for genuine good nature in a clerk to bother about the language in which it is expressed. When a saleswoman is kindly, efficient and honestly eager to find what I want, I feel happy about it. If she is hurried or inadequate or rude, as sometimes happens, I try to remember that she is probably attempting to live the same kind of life I am, trying to satisfy the same desires on half the salary I make—and so I make allowances. I don't bother about my own dignity one way or the other.

I have learned, after years of business experience, that genuine dignity takes care of itself. It does not have to be protected and proclaimed. Not being puffed up, it is not easily punctured. I can't help contrasting my own employer—a woman—with these huffy shoppers. For 18 years she has done a job that is generally designated as "a man's job." She handles committees, board meetings, reports, conventions and conferences, to say nothing of a large staff of subordinates—and to the best of my knowledge she has never uttered the word "dignity" in connection with herself.

* * * *

She has an unassailable natural dignity which does not preclude swapping stories with the office staff, telling a good joke on herself and imitating a bore who has impinged on her time. If, on one of her shopping expeditions, someone called her "dearie," she either wouldn't notice it or would make a good story of it the next day. I cannot imagine her making it the subject of formal complaint. I cannot imagine anyone doing it whose time and mind was sensibly occupied with worthwhile things. UNSYMPATHETIC.

Suit With Melon Muff

A NOTED DESIGNER, Germaine Monteil, created this distinguished town suit of wine wool and nutria, punctuating it with the melon muff, so reminiscent of nineteenth century haute-coutour. A drawstring demurely fastens the neckline of the frock concealed beneath the jackets' fur choker.

A Woman's New York

by Alice Hughes

New York, Sept. 15.

THE LADY tennis-batters have been monopolizing our vaunted skyline the past few weeks. As you know, these racqueteers share the beauty crown with the lady swimmers, and the sight of such a girl as Alice Marble wielding her club is as grateful to the optics as is a view of Marjorie Goestring, in a sausage-skin swim suit, poised on the high platform ready for her swan-dive.

ALICE HUGHES.

Never in the history of American tennis have the girls rated so highly as at present. La Belle Marble, little Mrs. Fabyan, of Boston, and the stern-faced Helen Hull Jacobs, from the Golden State, are all visions of grace and beauty on the world-famed center court at our Forest Hills. Of course, we drama-lovers feel a bit cheated at the withdrawal of Helen Wills Moody, since it deprives us of another thrilling match between these perennial rivals. As you know, these ladies don't mingle on the court for marbles or a silver mug, but for gore—and whoever says there is no "feud" between them is talking through her doll-hat, in my opinion.

And there is always one stunner from England. I think the loveliest English girl ever to swing a bat on our shores was Eileen Bennett Whittingstall, but she has a very worthy successor in Kay Stammers, with whom I talked last week. Kay, at 24, is Britain's best, and a top-flight brunette beauty, too. But Kay doesn't let the court game obsess her. She likes to be where the lights are bright and the band is playing, and of course, she never lacks beaux. "I'm determined not to eat, sleep and live tennis," she told me. "I'd be a frightful bore if I did." In addition to smacking the little ball, she designs for a London store (as Helen Moody has done here) and writes pieces for magazines. "I have to practice 10 months a year, but I find time for the other things, too." Which is what makes Kay Stammers such a colorful, interesting girl—even though she may never win the coveted Wimbledon title, which seems to demand complete obsession!

GIRL ABOUT TOWN—No matter how hard you try, you just can't hide things from New York's society gals. Just fancy how thrilled we were to learn that they had discovered the great game of softball—and played it on the sacred sands of Newport! One team of these gilded cuties called herself "The Dead-End Kids." Cute? Jane Pope and Hope Saunders were among the reigning young beauts on this team of tough eggs . . .

Who remembers Carlyle Blackwell when he was a ruling king of the screen and unbearably handsome? Stop screaming—I hear you! Well, I saw him in the lobby of our Chatham Hotel the other day, still a feast for the feminine eye, and I later learned he is plotting to return to the stage or screen. Lawks, it must be over 10 years since a camera turned on him. If you don't remember that lad, I'll bet mamma does.

Eva LeGallienne, who has been away from the local stage quite a spell, is said to be headed for Broadway this fall in "Mme. Capet," with perhaps Alan Hale, that excellent screen player, in her support.

Without a doubt the most popular sport here is turning in fire-alarms—and for the maddest variety of reasons! The other night our Mrs. Julia Sabo, all of 50, was found standing by a downtown alarm box when the big red wagons screamed up. She cheerfully admitted pulling the box, and when asked why, said she just craved a little excitement. Well, she got it—and also arrested.

Good old Murray Hill, the neighborhood I have infested these 12 years, still gets recruits. Moving into our area this week are Marion Stephenson, the demon lady photographer, and Lester Gaba, pride of Hannibal, Mo., in the artistic line. Not together, I may add—because Marion's husband is Graham Patmore, and Lester is a lonesome bachelor who designs things.

This column appears daily and Sunday.

Softer Lines Decreed for Women's Suits

Dressy Afternoon Versions Become Sylph-like Dress With Removal of the Jacket.

By Marshall Adams.
The Post Fashion Editor.

IF YOU have not yet become the femme-fatale or the knowing jeune-fille whom fashion has decreed this fall, you might start from scratch by treating yourself to one or more of the feminine suits being displayed around town. After having discussed the straight and narrow silhouette, the skater or Zorina flares and the soft womanly lines, fashion authorities have unanimously voted the latter trend as the one most likely to succeed throughout fall and winter.

Dressy afternoon suits take several types. One version is a complete disguise. On the surface, it appears to be a form-hugging one or two piece affair, but when its jacket is removed, it becomes a sylph-like dress, all tucks, shirring or embossing. Gentility and gentleness are the keynotes of all the better suits that have been noticed throughout Washington.

Victorian or Edwardian

Fur-trimmed town suits will show either silver, skunk or black fox muzzled close around the throat, or they will be strictly Victorian or Edwardian, with neat dog collars of nutria, Persian, beaver or Afghan. Cuffs are tidy versions of the collars, or are nothing more nor less than vast pockets slung low on the jacket to look like cuffs. Parkas, hoods or capes of corresponding fur often set these suits apart from the crowd.

Despite the furor over muffs (which may well gain momentum, come frosty days) despite the faint scent of violets hidden in their depths, despite the coquetry of gay fur toques matching suit trims, there is ever present the personal assurance which comes from neat placket fasteners, new action underarm seams, and all sorts of mechanical improvements of workmanship, the like of which no Victoria Regina knew.

Feminity Stressed

Though the majority of memorable town suits boast rich fur trims, fine tucking, soft front pleated skirts and a wealth of ladylike detail, their allied sister, the country suit is just as feminine in character, only minus furs and muffs.

The sporting thing to do when buying your country tweeds is to team that wilting womanly look with a dash of ginger. Ginger may be the color you select to spice your wardrobe with, or it may merely be state of mind. Adopting a lumberjack suit is one way of achieving such an air, but this loose line is not flattering to every type so it must be approached cautiously by all save the very slim.

Soft Touch to Tweeds

The soft touch has come to tweeds in the guise of dirndls, square yokes, bloused shirtwaist styles and novelty pleats being shown on even the shaggiest woolens. The longer jacket is biggest news for the country type of suit. Often it hits below the hip line, which should prove kind to size 18s and 20s. This coat-tail effect is in direct response to the Victorian and Antoinette frock-coat modes.

Coffee Cake Theme of Next Recipe Contest

COFFEE CAKE will provide the tempting theme for the newest recipe contest, sponsored each week by The Post. The suggestion for adoption of this subject matter was made by Mrs. Trendley Dean, 224 North Jackson street, Arlington, Va., who recommends coffee cake as an ideal accessory for crisp fall meals. Although she possesses several unusual recipes of her own, she is in the market for other novel suggestions.

If you have a tested recipe for Dutch, German, Swedish or your own native American coffee cake, enter this new contest before September 24. All entries must be carefully written and mailed to Alice Clayton, Post Food Editor. Cash awards include $3 for first prize, $2, second award, and three additional prizes of $1 each.

Measure out 1 cup fine white cornmeal, 1 cup boiling water, 2 tablespoons shortening, 1 1-3 cups milk, 2 eggs, well-beaten, 1 teaspoon salt, 1 teaspoon baking powder. Scald the meal with the boiling water. Add fat. Let mixture cool. Stir in milk and well-beaten eggs, to which salt and baking powder have been added. Pour mixture into greased baking dish and bake about 40 minutes in a hot oven, 400 degrees F.

Grandmother's Braids Again Are Popular

Paris (U.P.)—Braids and all their ramifications are present in profusion to remind grandmother of her deb days and to add a new zest to the fashions of the "younger generation" who have never had a chance to know what glorious effects braids can give.

From thread-fine soutaches to the heaviest of flat braids, the revived trimming has a place at the top of the detail list in every big fall fashion collection.

Striking Gown

Paris (U.P.)—An unfailing recipe for a "striking" evening gown is one which combines a silk and wool jersey material with a vivid chartreuse color—and wraps the whole tightly around any figure that can take it. At least that is Paquin's idea.

Fish, Oysters Are Invading Markets Here

Fruits, Vegetables Are Still Varied and Reasonable; So Is Beef and Lamb, but Pork Is Going Up.

THIS IS OPEN SEASON for fish stories and fish eaters, for catches in and around Washington have been plentiful in the past week. While the food editor snooped about in local markets, fresh catches of mackerel, blue fish, Norfolk spots, butterfish and rock fish were hauled from Maryland, Virginia and Washington waters.

Plump quality scallops, fresh from the Bay, were noted and with cause for rejoicing, for this smaller type of autumn scallop is more delicate in flavor and greatly preferred by connoisseurs to its deep sea sister.

The fleet is definitely in as far as oysters are concerned, for there has been a flotilla of this succulent sea food since the beginning of the week. Bushels of oysters have been filtering through fish stalls and markets for several days now, ready to be served icy-cold with cocktail sauce, or with oysterettes and cream as a tempting autumn stew. Lobsters are being sold very reasonably at present, with some dealers featuring them at ridiculously low prices, taking them out of their former luxury-food class.

Vegetables Reasonable

Even though this time of year impels shoppers toward sea food counters, there are other foods which are equally reasonable, plentiful and desirable at present.

Fruits, vegetables and farm produce are abundant and varied and, in the main, are extremely reasonable in price. Melons are choice, with Casabas, cantaloupes, honey dew and watermelon still being bought and sold. Recent rains having given corn a new lease on life, the September ears are as sweet and firm as those of a month ago. Egg plant, squash, cymblings, cabbage, tomatoes, peas and beans, sweet potatoes and Cuban red whites are plentious, as are new tiny Burssels sprouts.

Peaches Are Cheap

There are Georgian and New York peaches obtainable around town at nominal prices, grapes, bananas, appples, pineapple, citrous fruit, plums, pears and some avocados are resting temporarily, in their bins.

Eggs are a bit higher in price than they have been for two years and may continue that way for another month, unless there is a mild fall.

Increased cold weather demands for pork have caused its price to jump a penny or two but choice cuts of beef and lamb are stationary in price at present.

Red and Violet Hues Maintain Popularity

Paris (U.P.).—Fuchsia reds and violets maintain in the new collections the popularity they built up during the summer. A pair of fuchsia wing feathers bedeck the top of a deep purple felt hat of an almost classic sport type.

At Creed's there is a blouse of velvet, half purple, half fuchsia, under a semi-sport suit of gray and black herringbone. It seems one can't go far wrong with any deep fuchsia shade.

Mushroom Sauce Livens Meat Entree

Ham shortcake with mushroom sauce! Doesn't that sound delicious? And it's a perfect suggestion for the luncheon party or one of those "special" suppers for the family, for it's so easy to prepare. Make the biscuits quite large and when they're baked to a golden brown, split them and put a slice of broiled ham inside. Then pour rich creamy mushroom sauce over all.

Biscuit.

2 cups pastry flour
4 tsp. baking powder
4 tbsp. cold shortening
½ tsp. salt
½ cup irradiated evaporated milk and ½ cup cold water, mixed

Sift flour, then measure. Resift with other dry ingredients. Rub shortening into flour. Add diluted milk and mix quickly but thoroughly. The dough should be soft. Turn onto a floured board. Knead about one-half minute. Roll to ¾-inch thickness. Cut and place on baking sheet. Bake in a hot oven (450 degrees F.) about 12 minutes.

Mushroom Sauce.

1 lb. mushrooms
4 tbsp. butter
4 tbsp flour
½ tsp. salt
1 pt. liquid from mushrooms
1 2-3 cups irradiated evaporated milk (1 tal can).

Select Cauliflower By Definite Rules

Do you know how to select cauliflower?

Examine the head closely. Often the thick growth of green leaves hides the shallowness of the white flower heads. There is much waste here and the price should not be as high as in a vegetable with deep firm flower heads.

The white part should be free of any brown tinge, clear, and unblemished, the green leaves compact and fresh.

The odor should be sharp but sweet and clean.

New Use for French Toast Discovered

Some French toast is made by dipping bread in beaten egg and frying it in deep fat, while other French toast is made by dipping the bread in beaten egg and sauteing it in butter in a frying pan. It is this latter method of preparation that is especially suited to the sandwiches. Sandwiches of this variety are excellent to feature as the main item for lunch or supper, or they can be the added attraction to a salad.

In choosing the fillings for the sandwiches keep in mind the ones that will stick together best in the bread so that they will be easy to handle in frying. Deviled ham, deviled chicken, veal spread and fish spreads like mashed sardines, salmon, tuna and anchovy paste are good ones to use. These products come prepared in cans and can be kept on hand to be used whenever you have the urge for sandwiches of this style. Cold cuts sliced are equally palatable.

After the filling has been decided upon, spread the bread with butter just as for any good sandwich and use a liberal amount of filling. Beat the eggs slightly and mix with a little milk, (two eggs to one-fourth cup of milk is all right) then dip the sandwich into this and fry in butter. When the sandwich is brown on one side turn it and brown the other side. A pancake turner does the trick very well. Some ripe olives, sliced dill pickles and sliced cucumbers make attractive garnishes for the finished sandwich.

Salt Should Be Eaten To Prevent Heat Ailments

Men doing hard manual labor always realize the need of drinking more water to make up for this loss of liquid; but it was not until about two years ago, according to United States Bureau of Home Economics, that doctors became aware that extra salt should be eaten during hot weather. Some medical research workers discovered, almost by accident that salt water helped to prevent heat prostrations.

Now it is common practice for men engaged in strenuous labor in very hot factories to take salt pills with their drinking water. Laborers so protected suffer much less from heat ailments than they did when no salt was given, doctors report.

Economical Shortcakes Win Recipe Prizes

Mrs. Trendly Dean Gets First for Her Unique and Tangy Filling of Plums.

BABY-SIZED SHORTCAKES, huge family-sized ones and the old-fashioned Southern ones were entered in last week's recipe contest. Fruit toppings included such tantalizing ideas as tropical shortbread, blueberry roll shortcake, apricot honey, fruit caramel, currant, orange de luxe and an unusual combination, banana shortdough tinged with the accent of ginger and cocoa.

First Prize for Plum Tarts

First award of $3 goes to Mrs. Trendly Dean, 224 North Jackson street, Arlington, Va. Her entry of shortcake plum tarts contained, not only a basic dough of economical and tested virtues, but her plum filling is unique and tangy. As Mrs. Dean remarks,

Mrs. Dean

Shortcake Plum Tarts

1 cup flour, very full
2 tablespoons of shortening, rounded
1 pinch salt
1 teaspoon of baking powder, rounded
Milk, either fresh or diluted canned milk

Mix dry ingredients, then work in the shortening and add enough milk to hold mixture together to form a large ball. Roll out enough at a time to shape with a large cutter and to fit over the bottom of muffin tins. Prick with a fork to keep from puffing and bake in a moderate oven until golden brown. Remove and place in other pans and fill with the following mixture of plums.

Wash about 30 plums, add a bit of water to prevent sticking to pan, and place over the fire. When the skins begin to peel off, add half-cup granulated sugar, stir, and let cook until you can cut through them with the edge of a spoon. Remove from fire and take seeds from plums. Put the plums on the shortcake tarts and place in oven for a few minutes to set the juices a little.

Receives Second Prize

No shortcake recipe is more fragrantly tantilizing than a peach concoction, and because Mrs. M. L. Seaton, 3002 Adams street northeast, entered an outstandingly original recipe, she has been awarded second prize of $2.

Peach Shortcake

Cream shortcake dough
3 cups fresh peaches, peeled and cut into eighths
1½ cups white wine
½ cup powdered sugar
1-3 cup almonds
Cream shortcake:
2 cups flour
4 teaspoons baking powder
¼ cup sugar
½ teaspoon salt
1-3 cup butter
1 egg
1-3 cup cream

Sift flour, baking powder, salt and sugar three times, cut in the butter; add beaten egg with cream, mix lightly, pat and roll out in two rounds, ½ inch thick. Put one cake into a round pan, spread with soft butter; place the other layer on and bake in a quick oven (425 degrees) for 20 minutes. Poach 1 cup of peaches at a time in the wine, simmering gently for five minutes. Remove peaches with skinner, spread one-half on a shortcake, sprinkle with half of sugar and half of almonds. Simmer the juice down to 1 cup. Pour one-third over the peaches, lay on second shortcake, pile on remaining peaches, sprinkle the sugar and almonds and pour on the peach-wine syrup. At serving, pass a pitcher of cream.

Tangy Taste

Mrs. Maude C. McDonald, 4304 Tenth street northwest, won a $1 prize for an apricot shortcake, containing a dash of brown sugar in the dough. The tangy apricot topping possesses a distinctive touch, for cinnamon and blanched almonds have been added to the sweetened fruit to take the curse from the usually biting taste of apricots.

Mrs. McDonald

Apricot Shortcake

2 cups flour
4 teaspoons baking-powder
½ teaspoon salt
1 tablespoon brown sugar
4 tablespoons shortening
¾ cup sweet milk

Mix as for ordinary biscuit dough and cut into large-sized biscuits. Bake 15 minutes in a hot oven. Split each biscuit cover half with apricots (dried), which have been cooked, sweetened and mashed. Add a dash of cinnamon, ½ cop of blanched or toasted almonds and cover with other biscuit half spread with more apricots, top with whipped cream.

Awarded $1.00 Prize

Mrs. William Roberts, 705 Chesapeake avenue, Silver Spring, Md., has also been awarded a $1 prize for orange shortcake de luxe. of blanched or This very luxurious sounding recipe be an economical dish, only 1 egg being used to produce the richness of taste so necessary to good shortcake dough. Citrous fruit is an agreeable change from the usual type of topping.

Mrs. Roberts

Orange Shortcake de Luxe

3 cups sifted flour
4½ teaspoons baking powder
3 tablespoons sugar
1½ teaspoons salt
¾ cup shortening
¾ to 1 cup milk
1 beaten egg
4 large seedless oranges
Powdered sugar

Sift dry ingredients together and cut in shortening. Add milk and beaten egg, mixing in a soft dough. Knead lightly a few seconds. Divide dough in half. Shape into two large rounds to fit in layer cake pan. Place one round in a pan; spread with soft butter. Place other round on top; spread with soft butter. Bake in very hot oven at 450 degrees about 30 minutes. Split; arrange whole sections of orange pulp, free from all skin, between layers and on top of cake. Sprinkle generously with powdered sugar. Serves eight.

Shortcakes Get Prize

Mrs. Ernest L. Hiehle, 3423 South Dakota avenue northeast, won a $1 prize for her recommended fruit shortcakes. These little individual cakes are versatile enough to be made in variations, other than those indorsed by Mrs. Hiehle.

Assorted Fruit Shortcakes

2 cups flour
3 teaspoons baking powder
2 eggs
½ teaspoon salt
6 tablespoons shortening
¾ cup milk

Cut shortening into sifted dry ingredients. Separate eggs and add beaten yolks to milk. Stir milk into dry mixture slowly and mix until well blended. Now fold in beaten egg whites. Have waffle iron hot. Drop a generous spoonful onto each waffle-iron section. Cook until crisp and golden brown. Cover one section of the waffle with berries, orange sections, sliced bananas or crushed fruit, cover with second section. Top each serving with whipped cream and garnish with fruit used in the filling.

A Man's Dish

WOMAN'S PLACE may be near the cook stove but she is gradually educating husband, son and brother to take over meal preparations when she plans an out of town holday. Barbecued ham and pineapple rings are simple enough for any man to prepare and their flavor should tempt the most masculine eater to come into the kitchen.

Before Wives Take Holiday From Kitchen They Should Educate Males in Culinary Arts

Even Most Timid of Men Can Be Taught Enough Cooking to Cope With Emergencies.

Simple and 'Masculine' Menus and Recipes, Prepared in Advance, Help Him Along.

By Alice Cayton,
The Post Food Editor.

THE MOST DEVOTED wives and mothers must play hookey from household problems occasionally and when they do there's usually storm in a teapot. Literally that, for few men know how to boil water, and when it comes to frying an egg these same healthy males are as frightened as a bride.

When homemakers take a furlough from the cook stove it is wise to prepare the entire household.

Even if both husband and wife remain at home the novelty of having some one othe rthan mother do the cooking would come as a welcome relief to every one concerned. One of the most pleasant ways of achieving such a variation is to suggest that the lord and master plan, cook and serve his own meals. A broad-minded wife, not minding the aftermath of a few broken dishes and a mob of hungry men devouring all her best condiments, would indorse a monthly stag dinner wherein the husband dons apron strings and cook book.

Experience has proved that such an experiment is sound and invigorating for both the husband, who gains domestic self-reliance, and the trusting wife, who gains through such a deal by training husband, son or brother to be equipped for any emergency.

Plan in Advance

The following tips may prove helpful in preparing the male for self-eare:

Plan meals a day in advance for the man who is unused to anything but a corkscrew.

Stock pantries ahead of time with favorite brands of canned goods. Nothing discourages the novitiate as much as the necessity of ordering supplies about which he knows neither approximate price nor brand name.

Leave a standing order with a grocer for fresh produce, meats, fruits and vegetables to be delivered daily if you're planning to be away from home for any length of time.

For Men Only

There are a number of men around town who have suggestions as to suitable fare for their celibate days. One of these gastronomically inclined husbands, being still a newlywed, can hardly be expected to be deserted by his bride as yet, but if ever she leaves him stranded for a week, he will be equipped with his favorite recipe of Italian Spaghetti with Meat Sauce. Harry Wender, of Sternberg Courts southwest, recommends this one-dish meal for a hastily prepared and easily devoured dinner.

Spagetti With Meat Sauce

Cook 1 slice onion, and ½ pound ground meat in ¼ cup of olive oil until the onion is yellowed. Add 1 can of tomato paste, 1½ cups of water and the following spices; ½ teaspoon of salt, ¼ teaspoon of pepper and ½ bay leaf. Simmer until thick, then remove the bay leaf. Pour this sauce over freshly boiled Italian spaghetti and serve to your favorite stag friends.

Miller Prefers Bread

Sandwiches of all descriptions are indorsed by Henry Miller, 3100 Connecticut avenue northwest. When this local bachelor unexpectedly visits his Baltimore home and is greeted by an absent family, his recourse is usually to sandwich meals. Being conscious of the necessity of balance, he doesn't make an entire meal o: bread and fillings. He prepares a delicious Tomato Bisque soup as a starter which is easily devised by heating canned tomato and topping it with lightly salted whipped cream, just before it is served. Generously sliced tongue and corn beef make ideal fillings for rye bread sandwiches, as these favorite meats are always handy in a well-stocked larder.

Ham and Corn Scallop

Melt ½ pound American cheese in the top of a double boiler. Gradually stir in 1-3 cup milk. Place 1 cup cream-style canned corn, 1 tablespoon chopped green pepper, and 1 tablespoon grated onion in a casserole, cover with 1 cup diced spiced ham, then with the cheese sauce. Bake in a slow oven (300 degrees Fahrenheit) 30 minutes.

Mrs. Woodward Fetes Popular Frank Banes

Entertainment Is Held at Army and Navy Country Club and Is Attended by 100 Guests Honoring Them Before Departure From Washington; Couple to Make Home in California.

By Hope Ridings Miller,

The Post Society Editor.

STILL ANOTHER in the round of fetes for Mr. and Mrs. Frank Bane took place yesterday afternoon when Mrs. Ellen S. Woodward entertained at a tea at the Army and Navy Country Club. Government big-wigs, residential Washingtonians, and representatives of the service set made up the list of approximately 100 guests who were on hand at the farewell party for one of the Capital's most popular couples.

HOPE RIDINGS MILLER.

As everyone knows by now, the Banes will be off November 1 to make their home in California, where Mr. Bane will take over the directorship of the Council of State Governments. As executive director of the Social Security Board—the position from which he is retiring—he has made an extensive circle of acquaintances here, and many were on hand yesterday afternoon.

Trimly turned out in a black sheer frock worn with a small black hat and an orchid corsage, Mrs. Woodward received her guests in the club's sun parlor, where the tea table was set. Standing with the hostess were Mr. and Mrs. Bane—the latter wearing a semitailored frock of navy crepe, set off with a white collar, a narrow-brimmed navy felt hat and an orchid corsage; Arthur J. Altmyer, chairman of the Social Security Board, and Mrs. Altmyer, and Aubrey Williams, deputy administrator of the WPA, and Mrs. Williams. Assisting the hostess at the tea table were Mrs. Thomas F. McAllister. Miss Jane Hoey, Mrs. Thomas F. McAllister, Miss Lavinia Eagle and Judge Lucy Howorth.

Since Mrs. Woodward herself is assistant administrator of the WPA, a number of guests yesterday afternoon were heads of departments that are connected with the one in which she figures; but the guest list was by no means limited to Government executives. The Supreme Court, the Senate, and the Capital's cave-dwelling contingent made up the company that lingered on at the party long after the final hour arranged for it.

JUSTICE AND MRS. HUGO BLACK were glimpsed in the crowd—the justice arriving toward the end of the party to join his wife, who came along much earlier. Senator and Mrs. Morris Sheppard who, in contrast to most members of the Congressional set, have stayed in Washington through the summer, were exceptionally popular guests . . . being completely surrounded from the time they arrived until they left the party half an hour later.

Mrs. Blair Banister, Assistant Treasurer of the United States, was seen chatting with Judge Thomas F. McAllister, while across the room I spotted Mrs. John Garland Pollard, widow of the former Governor of Virginia, walking down the receiving line, accompanied by her son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. John Garland Pollard, jr.

Others there included Col. and Mrs. Christopher Garnett, Mrs. Sadie Orr Dunbar, Mr. and Mrs. George Morris, Mrs. Arthur Schrech, of Cincinnati, mother of Mrs. Aubrey Williams; Miss Frances Kelly, Miss Anne Cronin, Miss Virginia Price and Miss Ashton Somerville, of Cleveland, Miss., who is the house guest of Judge Howorth.

SOCIETY-GO-ROUND: While the blue and white flag of Nicaragua waved in front of the legation at 1521 New Hampshire avenue yesterday afternoon, about 30 friends of the Nicaraguan Minister, Dr. Leon de Bayle, gathered inside for an informal reception to celebrate the independence day of the republics of Central America. The party was small and limited to close friends of the minister as he is in mourning . . . Dr. and Senora de DeBayle recently returned from New York where, on Sunday, they met Senora Salvadora de Somoza, wife of the President of Nicaragua, who arrived there a few days ago . . . The Minister of Sweden, Wollmar Bostron, is in New York for a series of conferences today and tomorrow. He will spend the week-end with his son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Sixten Wollmar, in Rye, N. Y. . . . Friends of Charlotte Kellogg (Mrs Vernon Kellogg) have noted with interest that her recent book, "The Girl Who Ruled a Kingdom," is a juvenile biography based on the life of Jadwiga, famous Polish Queen, whose story Mrs Kellogg introduced to the American reading public several years ago. Mrs. Kellogg and her daughter, Miss Jean Kellogg, are still in Carmel, Calif., where they spent the summer.

Mrs. Greenough To Meet Daughter, Home From Munich

Mrs. Carroll Greenough has gone to New York to meet her daughter, Marie-Anne, who arrived yesterday on the Europa after spending a year abroad, where she finished her junior college year in Munich.

Next week, Mrs. Greenough will motor to Cambridge, accompanied by her daughter and her son, William Greenough, 2d, who will enter Harvard College. Miss Greenough will remain in Cambridge to finish her college course at Radcliffe.

Dinner Fetes The Myerses

Governor William I. Myers of the Farm Credit Administration and Mrs. Myers were the guests of honor at a farewell dinner given last evening at the Wardman Park Hotel by the members of the Farm Credit Club.

Governor Myers, who is leaving his present post to return to the faculty of the College of Agriculture at Cornell University, where he will head the department of farm management and agricultural economics, gave a brief informal talk. He assumed his position with the Farm Credit Administration when Henry Morgenthau, jr., left the organization to become Secretary of the Treasury in 1933.

Harold B. Vinson, jr., was chairman of the arrangements committee for the dinner.

Miss Edith Brainerd To Attend Sweet Briar

Miss Edith Brainerd, who is the youngest of the five daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Ezra Brainerd, of California street, will leave Monday to enter Sweet Briar College, at Sweet Briar, Va. She attended the Potomac School and was graduated with honors last June from Western High School.

Miss Brainerd will return at Thanksgiving and Christmas to join her sisters, and they will entertain at their annual Christmas tea. The Brainerds have resided in Washington for some time and spend part of each summer at their home "Springside in Middlebury, Vt.

The Misses Jane and Bettie Brainerd are graduates of Randolph-Macon College; Miss Frances Brainerd was a member of this year's class at George Washington University and Miss Ethel Brainerd was graduated cum laude from Middlebury College last June.

Italy's Envoy To Mexico City Goes to New York

Count Alberto Marchetti di Muriaglio, Italian Minister to Mexico, spent Wednesday night at the Mayflower and left Washington yesterday for a few days' stay in New York before returning to Mexico City, where he has represented his country for the past three years.

One of the most popular bachelor diplomats here for many years, the count has an extensive circle of Washington friends who regret that his visit here was so brief. Prior to his present assignment, he was on duty in Rome a year or two after leaving the United States.

About the Town

With Dudley Harmon

ONE MORE or less expects members of official life to be borne out of Washington on the tides of adverse votes or changes in foreign governments, but this year some of our best known residents are deserting us.

DUDLEY HARMON

Gen. and Mrs. William Mason Wright, who will return to Washington the first of the month, will not be here for long. The General's health has not been of the best in the last year, so he and Mrs. Wright plan to go out to the West Coast for most of the winter. They spent part of the summer with their son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. David Key, at Ottawa, where Mr. Key is second secretary of our legation. Later they visited their eldest son, Capt. William Mason Wright, at West Point.

WHILE she will no doubt be here part of the winter, Mrs. Benjamin Thaw has definitely succumbed to the charm of rural Connecticut. She recently bought a house near Essex, and is contemplating becoming a legal resident and spending seven or eight months of every year there.

Unlike her two sisters, Mrs. Gloria Morgan Vanderbilt and Lady Furness, Mrs. Thaw manages to keep off the front page, though she is very much in the social limelight here.

Mrs. Francis Whitten, who is so definitely decorative, will not be in Washington at all, but will close her home October 1 and spend the winter in Miami with her husband. Mrs. Whitten was seriously ill last spring, and her doctor has told her Washington life is only for the more robust.

COMINGS AND GOINGS: Miss Irene Boyle returned to the British Embassy a day or two ago after spending the summer with relatives of Lady Lindsay in Coopers-town, N. Y. . . . Mrs. Harold Walker and her daughter, Mrs. Lawrence Wood Robert, jr., are expected to return to Washington today. Mrs. Walker was taking a cure at Battle Creek, Mich., where her daughter joined her after a visit to Saratoga. Mr. Robert, meanwhile, was at the Mayo Clinic in Rochester, Minn., which is also harboring James Roosevelt . . . Mrs. Walter Denegre, who has been spending the summer with her daughter at Manchester, Mass., will not come to Washington until mid-October. She wil spend the intervening time in New York . . . Mrs. Stanley Wodward, whose husband is a member of the State Department, will return September 23 with her children from a summer in Europe. Her original plans called for a trip to Salsburg, which, we hear, has been largely boycotted by foreigners this summer . . . Mrs. Marshall Exnicios joined her husband yesterday after a summer at Rehobeth Beach . . . Frau Herbert Blankenhorn, wife of the Second Secretary of the German Embassy, arrives today in New York with her two babies, one of them born during the summer in Germany.

IT'S SAFE to say that recent arrivals from Erope will be surrounded at parties and quizzed for hours about "the situation." Arriving on the Europa yesterday were John Pelenyi, Minister from Hungary, and Dr. Jacob Gould Schurman, former United States Ambassador to Germany. Dr. Schurman concentrated his travels this summer in central Europe, and, if memory serves, had an interview with the man of the moment, President Benes of Czechoslovakia.

On the United States liner Washington, which docked yesterday, were such political notables as Senator Alben W. Barkley, of Kentucky, and Senator Joseph F. Guffey, of Pennsylvania, who attended the congress of the Inter-Parliamentary Union at the Hague; and Jouett Shouse, president of the Liberty League. Mrs. Barkley and Mrs. Shouse accompanied their husbands. The Shouses will be at Wolf Trap Farm for a month before coming to Washington for the winter.

Hart-Brown Nuptials Set for November 3

Miss Clara Frances Brown has selected Thursday, November 3, as the date of her marriage to Edmund Bernard Hart, of Hyde Park, Mass. The prospective bridegroom is connected with the transportation section of the General Accounting Office.

The wedding will take place at the Shrine of the Sacred Heart.

Catherine Freeman Becomes Bride

Before an improvised alter in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Maurice Preston Freeman, of Chevy Chase, their daughter, Miss Catherine Mae Freeman, was married yesterday morning to James Price Oxenham, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robson A. Oxenham. The Rev. F. Bland Tucker performed the ceremony, which was followed by a reception.

The bride wore a floor-length dress of white chiffon with a full skirt trimmed with rows of satin. The close-fitting bodice had a bolero jacket with the same trimming, and the veil was fingertip length. The bride carried a shower bouquet of white roses and lilies of the valley.

Miss Edna Jeannette Freeman served as maid of honor, wearing a full-skirted dress of aqua chiffon with pink flowers at the neck, and carrying an arm bouquet of pink gladioli. The bridegroom's twin brother, Robert Vinup Oxenham, was best man.

When she left for a honeymoon in the North, the bride was wearing a tailored dress of black crepe trimmed with multi-colored bands. On their return, Mr. and Mrs. Oxenham will reside in Cabin John, Md.

Stanley-Browns Back From Nantucket Home

Mr. and Mrs. Rudolph Stanley-Brown have returned to their home at 2123 Bancroft place after a summer at their Nantucket residence. En route to Washington they stopped at the Hotel New Weston in New York.

French Naval Attache Fetes Ship's Officers

Dinner at Benech Home Honors Visiting Captain and Aides From Gunboat

Nine of the 10 officers of the French gunboat D'Entrecasteaux—the tenth had to stay on watch aboard ship—had the opportunity of meeting several young Washington ladies last evening at the buffet supper given in their honor by the Naval Attache of the French Embassy and Mme. Pierre Benech. The dinner was informal and went off with all the gayety one associates with French hospitality.

The Benech home in Georgetown, with its high ceilings and large rooms opening one into the other, is an ideal place for entertaining. The hosts sat at a large table in the dining room with Capt. Jean Serpette of the D'Entrecasteaux and members of the French embassy staff, and the other guests were placed at small tables in the drawing room.

The entire embassy staff, headed by the Ambassador, Count Rene Doynel de Saint Quentin, was present. The other guests included Commander and Mrs. N. M. Pigman and Commander and Mrs. Robert Doughtie of our Navy and Commander Hamilton V. Bryan.

The young ladies present were Miss Sally Holmes, daughter of Rear Admiral and Mrs. Ralston Holmes; Miss Louise Popham, daughter of Comdr. and Mrs. W. S. Popham; Miss Coby Ranneft, daughter of the Netherlands Naval Attache and Mme. Ranneft; Miss Nancy Brereton, daughter of Capt. and Mrs. William D. Brereton, Miss Carolyn Chantry, daughter of Capt. and Mrs. Alan Chantry, Mrs. Crosby Miller of Warrenton, Mrs. Tyner Dugdale, Miss Dolly Corbin, Miss Dudley Harmon and Mlle. De Chenne, who makes her home with Comdr. and Mme. Benech.

J. C. Baube, representative of the French Havas news agency here, and Mrs. Lennert Nystrom, who with Mr. Nystrom is visiting Commander Bryan, were also present.

Harry Hortons On Honeymoon

Now on a wedding trip through New England, Quebec, Montreal and Niagara Falls, Mr. and Mrs. Harry L. Horton, who were married last Saturday, will reside at the Turaine Apartments on their return. Their wedding took place in Foundry Methodist Church, the Rev. Frederick Brown Harris officiating.

The bride is the former Miss Helen Lucile Sims, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Sims, of Dugger, Ind., who came on for the wedding. She wore a princess gown of white silk lace over satin, with a high collar and a finger tip length veil attached to a coronet of white flowers. She carried white roses and lilies of the valley.

Miss Isabelle McDonald, the maid of honor, wore green silk net over taffeta trimmed with pink velvet bows, and a matching hat. She carried a bouquet of tea roses. The bridesmaids were Miss LeElla Horton, sister of the bridegroom, and Miss Grace Cohen. They were attired in pink net frocks over taffeta trimmed with green velvet bows, hats to match, and carried pink roses. Hugh Horton served as his brother's best man and the ushers were Lee Puntzberger and William Draeger.

A reception at the home of Mr. and Mrs. William Cohen, of Oxon Hill, Md., followed the ceremony. Mr. Horton is the son of Mrs. E. L. Horton, of Carrington, N. Dak., who also was present at the wedding.

The Woodrings Plan to Fly To Legion Meeting

The Secretary of War, Harry H. Woodring, accompanied by Mrs. Woodring and his executive assistant, Charles W. Koester, expect to leave by plane today for Los Angeles to attend the American Legion convention. If they are unable to depart on schedule, they hope to leave tomorrow.

Mr. Koester, who makes his home here with his uncle and aunt, Guy T. Helvering, Commissioner of Internal Revenue, and Mrs. Helvering at the Mayflower will visit his sister, Mrs. Richard W. King, while he is in California.

On Trip

Harris & Swing.

Mrs. James Wallace Dailey with her husband, Mr. Dailey, is now on a tour through the East where they are visiting engineering colleges in this part of the country. Mr. Dailey is a member of the California Institute of Technology and they will make their home in Pasadena after October 1. Before their marriage here on September 10 she was Miss Sarah Van Derlip Atwood and is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Albert W. Atwood, of this city.

Miss Mary Wilson Aids Nurses in Kentucky Hills

Miss Mary Wilson, one of last season's debutantes, has put parties behind her for a time and is in the mountains of Kentucky as a courier for the Frontier Nursing Service. She will not return until November.

Well known in Washington is Miss Mary Breckinridge, founder of the nursing service, which administers to needy and ill mountaineers. The couriers care for the horses which are used by the nurses in their rounds, and make themselves useful in many ways. Among young women here who have served thus in the mountains are Miss Marion Shouse, Miss Christine Ekgengren, Miss Marguerite Woolley and Miss Josephine Rice.

Miss Wilson is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles F. Wilson, of Kalorama Circle.

C. D. Larner And Bride Visit Canada

Miss Helen Farrington Becomes a Bride at All Souls' Church on Sixteenth Street

The marriage of Miss Helen Farrington, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Marvin Farrington, of Chevy Chase, to Charles Danforth Larner, son of Mr. and Mrs. Noble D. Larner, took place last evening at All Souls Unitarian Church. Upon their return from a wedding trip through Canada, the couple will reside at 8385 Sixteenth street, in Falkland, Silver Spring.

The Rev. U. G. B. Pierce officiated at the ceremony. The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of white slipper satin with leg o' mutton sleeves and a long train. Her veil of Brussels lace fell from a small cap, and she carried a white satin muff trimmed with a shower of gardenias and lilies of the valley.

Miss Edith Harrington, the bride's only sister, served as maid of honor, wearing a jacket dress of Spanish raisin taffeta. The other attendants, Mrs. Ralph Williams and Mrs. James A. Lee, were attired in similar frocks, and all wore doll hats trimmed with varicolored flowers of the season, and carried a muff trimmed with flowers to match their gowns.

James A. Lee was best man, and the ushers were Dorrance Kelly, of Takoma Park; J. Harry McCarthy, jr., of Falls Church; Thomas E. Robertson and J. Edgar Welsh.

A small reception followed the ceremony. Mrs. Farrington wore gray chiffon trimmed in coral, and the gown of the bridegroom's mother was periwinkle blue.

Miss Van Slyke Becomes Bride

Romantic West Point Chapel was the scene of the wedding yesterday afternoon at 4:30 of Miss Isabel Morrison van Slyke, daughter of Mrs. Horace M. van Slyke, of Trenton, N. J., to Lieut. Frederick James Clarke, son of Edward Clarke, of Little Falls, N. Y., and the late Mrs. Clarke. The Rev. H. Fairchild Butt officiated at the ceremony, which took place in a setting of white gladioli.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her mother, wore a white satin gown with a finger tip veil of bridal illusion falling from a lace cap. She carried gardenias and lilies of the valley. Her only attendant was her sister, Miss Helen A. van Slyke, who wore aqua moire with a matching Juliet cap and carried talisman roses.

Lieut. Arthur Oberbeck served as best man.

Following a reception at the Hotel Thayer at West Point the couple left for a wedding trip to New England and Canada. They will reside at Fort Belvoir.

The bride attended the New Jersey College for Women and Lieut. Clarke is a graduate of the United States Military Academy.

D.C. Women Voters Open Offices

League Will Campaign for Franchise for District Citizens; Plan to Center Fire Upon New Congressmen

By Jessie Ash Arndt,
The Post Club Editor.

The voteless District of Columbia League of Women Voters yesterday opened the first headquarters it has ever had—room 409, of the Star Building. Mrs. Louis Ottenberg, the president, and members of the executive board met there in the afternoon to plan for furnishing the office and operating it with volunteer workers.

Mrs. Robert Leonard, as chairman of the newly created service bureau designed to place league members in the department work in which they are most interested, is in charge of the schedules for the volunteers who will keep the office open daily. Another new committee is that for the training of new members, of which Mrs. Henry Chalmers is chairman.

Suffrage Chief Concern

Suffrage for the District will be the league's chief aim during the coming season. A campaign to familiarize new members of Congress with the city's needs and the situation in which the residents find themselves with no voting power, will be part of the procedure in support of the suffrage movement.

The league also will concern itself with reports of the last Congress on relief, child welfare, taxation and the reorganization of the District government. These will be studied by all departments.

The department of Government and legal status of women, under the chairmanship of Mrs. Pearl B. Klein, will work for greater care and segregation of women prisoners at Occoquan, especially those under 21. The basic code for the schools will be studied by the department of government and education, headed by Mrs. Allen Moore. The extension of the merit system also will be urged.

Educational Program Planned

The department of government and foreign policy, under Mrs. M. O. Lorenz, will carry out the views of the national league with a campaign of education among members. The national organization will issue a special pamphlet on the subject.

Other department chairmen are: Mrs. Charles Weston, chairman of government and its operation; Mrs. Charles L. Hodge, government and child welfare; Mrs. P. W. Chappell, government and economic welfare.

The standing committees include: Finance, Mrs. Eugene Duffield, chairman; publicity, Mrs. Albert H. Putney; membership, Mrs. Joseph McKenzie; college membership, Mrs. J. C. McCaskill; arrangements, Mrs. Wendell Lund; hospitality, Mrs. Ruth Hopper; bulletin, Mrs. C. S. Duncan, and legislation, Mrs. Audley Smith.

Officers, in addition to Mrs. Ottenberg are: Mrs. Basil Manly, first vice president; Mrs. Leonard, second vice president; Mrs. Franklin Ryan, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Ben McKelway, recording secretary; Mrs. Edna Johnston, treasurer, and Miss Belle Sherwin, Mrs. Jessie C. Adkins, Mrs. Arthur Altmeyer and Miss Edith Rockwood, directors.

Pen Women to Close Contest October 1

Underwood & Underwood.

NEW officers elected today by the District of Columbia State Council, Daughters of America, will be headed by Mrs. Ruth Warren as councilor and Mrs. Edna Hayward, associate councilor, succeeding Mrs. Viola Henley, retiring councilor, and Mrs. Edna Gaither, associate. Left to right are Mrs. Gaither, Mrs. Hayward, Mrs. Warren and Mrs. Henley.

Daughters Elect Today

Election of new officers will feature the business session of the District of Columbia State Council, Daughters of America, today at the Mayflower Hotel. Nominations took place yesterday at the afternoon, session, which was followed by the annual banquet and ball last night.

Mrs. Ruth Warren, as incoming State councilor, heads the list of officers who advance in line. She is retiring vice councilor and succeeds Mrs. Viola Henley. Others who advance automatically are: Mrs. Edna Hayward, to the office of associate State councilor; Mrs. Marie Stephenson, vice councilor; Mrs. Laura Milbourn, associate vice councilor; conductor, Mrs. Clare Owens, and warden, Mrs. Vera Myers.

Candidates nominated for the office of inside sentinel are: Mrs. Emelie Meyers and Mrs. Grace Roberts; outside sentinel, Mrs. Mary Risdon, Mrs. Pearl Kidwell, Mrs. Nannie Reilly and Mrs. Eunice Geddings; judiciary, Mrs. Ethel Joiner, Mrs. Belle Gibson; national representative (three to be elected), Mrs. Edna Gaither, Mrs. Grace Ricketts, Mrs. Ovilla Ridgway, Mrs. Josephine Herbert, Mrs. Henley and Mrs. Luckett; secretary, Mrs. Mary Rutherford and Mrs. Mabel Bernard.

Theodore McKelvin, of Baltimore, addressed yesterday morning's session.

Among visitors at the convention registered yesterday were: Mrs. Viola Dale, Virginia State treasurer; Mrs. Bessie Blinckoe, past State councilor, Virginia; Mrs. Ethel Smithers, State vice councilor, Virginia; Mrs. Margaret Day, past State councilor, Virginia; Mrs. Lelia Spielman, State legislative committee, Virginia; Mrs. Maggie Schilton, South Carolina State secretary; Miss Alice Faithful, past State councilor, Maryland; Mrs. Elizabeth Lohmeyer, and Mrs. Rosina Schlag, of Baltimore; Mrs. Estelle Whittington, Mrs. May Seeley, Mrs. Jeanette Welkner, Mrs. Lillian Dixon, all past State officers of Maryland.

Banking Institute Group Addressed By Miss White

Miss Earlene White, president of the National Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs, last night addressed the annual dinner held for the women's committee of the Washington Chapter, American Institute of Banking. Miss Rose Royce presided at the affair, which was given in the Chinese room of the Mayflower Hotel, with 150 attending.

Miss White, who had returned home from New York late yesterday afternoon just in time to fill the engagement, talked on the place of women in business and their influence in the community. She also presented highlights of her trip abroad in August to attend the convention of the International Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs in Budapest.

Others on the program were Mrs. Erna Embrey, who sang, accompanied by Mrs. Jewel Downs, and Miss S. Winifred Burwell, who offered the invocation. Alfred H. Sherman led the ensemble singing with Miss Miriam Fort at the piano.

Guests of honor at the dinner were Joseph Fitzpatrick, president of the Washington Chapter of the A. I. B.; William H. Laughlin, chairman of the education committee, and Hillery Hoskinson, vice president of the District of Columbia Bankers Association.

Chinese Author To Lecture Here

Mrs. Richard Hogue, past president of the Washington Branch of the American Association of University Women, will have as her guest for a week Miss Cecelia S. L. Zung, Chinese author and lecturer, who arrives today from New York and will present a lecture-recital Sunday at 8:30 at the A. A. U. W. clubhouse.

Miss Zung came to America last year with Mrs. Hogue's aunt, Miss Lelia Tuttle, who for 30 years has been a teacher in China and had Miss Zung in her classes at McTiere School in Shanghai.

Miss Tuttle, who is affectionately called "Aunt Lelia" by Miss Zung and other of her former Chinese students who are now among the country's most distinguished women, sailed last month on her return to the Orient. She will work in Shanghai, giving whatever service she can during the war period.

Among Miss Tuttle's other students in McTiere School were Miss Yoeh Wang, daughter of the Chinese Ambassador, and her sisters, Mme. Chiang Kai-shek, who is also a close friend, and Mme. Sun Yat Sen.

Miss Zung is author of "Secrets of the Chinese Drama," and her lecture Sunday will be on the "Chinese Theater." She is now studying story and play writing at Columbia University. She is a lawyer by profession, having practiced in Soochow before the war. She will be guest of honor next Tuesday at the first fall meeting of the Women's Bar Association.

Mrs. J. W. Snyder Is Honored by P.-T. A. Meeting

Mrs. J. W. Snyder, of Fargo, N. Dak., yesterday was elected by the board of managers of the National Congress of Parents and Teachers as chairman of membership, succeeding Mrs. B. C. Clark, of Sutter Creek, Calif. The board continued the business sessions of its annual conference at the Mayflower yesterday. This afternoon members will be taken for a drive over the city by hostesses from the District Congress and entertained at tea at headquarters of the National Education Association.

Mrs. J. W. Bingham, Palo Alto, Calif., was elected chairman of the program committee created at the national board meeting in Salt Lake City last May. The chairmanship has been vacant during the summer months.

It was decided that the National Congress would change the editorial policy of its monthly Bulletin and address the content to the local associations. It had previously been published for State boards of managers. It is felt that this contact between the National Congress and local associations is highly desirable.

Miss Werner Talks of Credit

A good credit manager must be a leader, a judge of human nature, courteous, tactful and master of the situation, Miss Ella C. Werner yesterday told the Credit Women's Breakfast Club at its meeting at the Willard.

Miss Werner, who was for 15 years credit manager of one of the large credit stores in Washington, traced credit granting back to Biblical times, when it was held credit might be extended on religious grounds.

Among the many attending the meeting were:

Miss Thelma Rhodes, Mrs. Eva DeBroske, Miss Louise Woodward, Mrs. Doris Scott, Miss Eunice Myers, Miss Gladys S. Wright, Mrs. Edith K. Barker, Miss Wilhelmina Gude, Mrs. Ruth Adams Robinson, Mrs. Alice Underwood, Miss Gertrude E. Wiber, Miss Florence E. Thompson, Miss Josephine Kammerer, Mrs. Lorraine Radel, Mrs. M. E. Bedtime Stories

By Thornton W. Burgess

Mrs. Jerry Is Fussy.

By Thornton W. Burgess.

Only with things right you'll find
A satisfactory state of mind.
—Mrs. Jerry.

Jerry Muskrat and Mrs. Jerry were now sleeping in their new house. They could work on it and then when tired could sleep in it. Before they had dug that fine tunnel that opened from the floor of it they had had no way of getting into their house, so of course, they could not sleep there.

At first they hadn't much of a roof over their heads. You see, that pile of rushes and grass was so small that the covering over their heads was very thin and the air blew in freely. They didn't mind. There was enough of a roof to hide them from eyes of the curious and that was sufficient. There was no danger that if in the daytime they were taking a nap a Hawk would swoop down and catch one of them, or at night that Hooty the Owl would find them.

"Now that we have the house this far along the rest will be easy," said Mrs. Jerry.

"It will if you are not too fussy," replied Jerry, remembering previous house building back at the Smiling Pool where they had lived so long.

"What do you mean? I'm not fussy," retorted Mrs. Jerry. "I believe in having things right; that's all."

"But there is such a thing as having things too right," said Jerry.

Mrs. Jerry shook her head in a most decided manner. "No, sir, nothing can be too right," declared she.

Jerry tried to explain. "A thing may be good enough, yet could be better. If it is good enough I'm satisfied. Trying to make it better is simply being fussy."

Again Mrs. Jerry shook her head. "Trying to have things as right as possible isn't being fussy," said she "or, if it is, it is what I want to be. I want this house right and it is going to be right if I can make it so. You may call me fussy if you want to. I don't care so long as I get things right."

So it was Mrs. Jerry who insisted that they keep cutting and piling on more rushes and grass. "We are going to have a good roof over our heads," she declared. "Come winter there will be snow and ice and you know what happens to houses with thin roofs because their owners are too shiftless to make them thicker. They cave in. I don't intend to have our roof do that."

So Mrs. Jerry kept Jerry at work cutting rushes and grass and piling it on the roof. While he was doing this she was cutting it away on the inside. This was to give more room. You see the weight of the new material added caused the whole to settle more or less. So every once in a while there wouldn't be room enough overhead inside and more would have to be cut away.

At first there was only room inside for the two to squeeze in together. This was all right for the time being but it wouldn't be all right later on. They must have a room big enough for both to curl up comfortably and to turn around when they wanted to. So while the walls and the roof grew outside with the stuff piled on it the room inside also grew by cutting away of material from the walls and the roof. After a while the roof stopped settling and about the same time Mrs. Jerry decided that the room was big enough. Jerry was sure of it. You see they had been working a long time and he was getting a little bit tired of working.

Mrs. Jerry kept at work on those walls getting them just right, seeing to it that there were places where the old air could escape through the roof and fresh air enter, and making the beds. For these she shredded up the pieces of stalks she had cut away in making the room. Jerry called it all "fussing," but he was proud of that new house, of the comfort of it and its roominess, and he knew that Mrs. Jerry's fussiness was what had made it what it was.

MRS. LLEWELLYN N. EDWARDS, national president of the Daughters of Founders and Patriots of America, who has just returned to Washington after spending the summer in Maine, leaves tomorrow for Chattanooga to visit the Tennessee chapter, of which Mrs. Irene Stoops Garrison is president.

The Tennessee chapter will give a dinner Sunday evening in honor of Mrs. Edwards, and on Monday the Daughters of Founders and Patriots will join with the Daughters of American Colonists and the United Daughters of 1812 there in a luncheon honoring the national and State officers of the three patriotic societies, Mrs. John Francis Weinmann, of Little Rock, Ark., chairman of the committee on restoration of records of the D. F. P. A., and honorary national president of the Daughters of 1812 also will be a guest at the dinner and luncheon.

Both Mrs. Edwards and Mrs. Weinmann will also attend the reenactment of the Battle of Chickamauga by the U. S. Army on Monday, and Tuesday will make a tour of historic places in the vicinity.

Wednesday, Mrs. Edwards will be guest at a meeting in Atlanta, Ga., of the Georgia Chapter, of which Mrs. John William Smith is president.

THE CHEVY CHASE WOMAN'S CLUB already has some rentals for its new clubhouse, now well on the way to completion at Connecticut avenue and Dunlap street.

Rose Robinson Cohen, founder and, for the last six years, director of the Children's Studios of Drama, located at the Grafton Hotel, has announced the opening of a branch studio at the Chevy Chase clubhouse. Plays and recitals will be presented there regularly, just as they have been at the Grafton, where she uses the studio of the local branch of the League of American Pen Women as her headquarters.

Every year her students present plays as benefits for charitable institutions, among them the Langdon School for Crippled Children.

She is also director of the Laboratory Little Theater of the Pen Women which tests in laboratory fashion original manuscript plays from the pens of members of the league before they are sent to publishers.

THE HOME SECTION of the Petworth Woman's Club is meeting this afternoon at 1 o'clock at the home of Mrs. Sue Richwine, 4004 Seventh street, opening its season. The members will be served dessert when they arrive and will spend the afternoon working on surgical dressings for the Visiting Nurse Association. Mrs. Fred Wiltberger and Mrs. A. M. Jones are assistant hostesses and Mrs. Arthur Dunn is the section chairman.

The club, which will meet this season on Thursday afternoons instead of Monday evenings, will have its first session October 6 at the Petworth Methodist Church, with Mrs. Harvey W. Wiley as speaker. Mrs. Oscar Nelson is president.

Catholic Daughters Set Party Tonight

Court 212 of the Catholic Daughters of America will give a bingo party tonight at the Thomas Circle Club, with Mrs. Gladys Burruss as chairman.

Court 212 has granted its welfare committee $100 to carry on its work among the needy during the coming months. Mrs. Nana Diesman is chairman of this committee.

Miss Josephine McCorry was appointed chairman of the glee club and Miss Helen Jacoby, secretary, for the coming year. The glee club will resume its activities on October 10, with Prof. Harry X. Walsh as director.

Miss Nellie Zimmerman succeeds Miss Claire Green as chairman of the Junior Catholic Daughters. Miss Zimmerman, Miss Green and all the senior counselors are planning a picnic for the juniors and their mothers at 2 o'clock, Saturday, September 14, at Jessup Blair Park.

A Catholic Daughters bowling club is being formed, with Miss Ann Samber as chairman. Practice will commence Monday at 7 o'clock, in the Recreation hall on G street, between Ninth and Tenth streets northwest.

The second meeting of the month will be held Tuesday at 8 o'clock, in the Willard Hotel. The grand regent, Miss Josephine Walsh, will preside over the business session, which will be followed by the social meeting, with the vice grand regent in charge.

Sister Pleaded For Keys' Life, Inquiry Told

Colored Veteran Slain by Police Despite Entreaties, Witnesses Tell Trial Board

Several witnesses told the reorganized Police Trial Board yesterday that policemen attempting to arrest Leroy Keys in his home in the 2400 block of Ontario road northwest last March 8 shot down the colored World War veteran despite the entreaties of Mrs. Lottie Mitchell, his sister.

Meanwhile, the board's hearing in the case of Policemen J. W. Nally and R. M. Henry, the officers involved in Keys' death, was continued until today.

G. R. Littlehales, board chairman, said the hearing, which is being held at the Fourth Precinct Station house, would be concluded today or Monday. Oliver Gasch, prosecuting attorney, plans to present seven additional witnesses. James A. O'Shea, attorney for the defendants, said he would call 35 or 40 character witnesses.

Without attempting to identfy the policemen who shot Keys, witnesses told of hearing a policeman exclaim "I'll get him," then fired at the colored man and exclaim "I got him."

The hearing yesterday was confined to testimony for the prosecution. Witnesses, all colored were Mrs. Velma Boyd, then living at 2425 Ontario road northwest; Lucian B. Brown, 2456 Ontario road; Reginald H. Casey, 2439 Ontario road; Carl C. Cook, orderly at Gallinger Hospital; Mrs. Martha Brown, 3448 Ontario road; Mrs. Evelyn W. White, 2431 Ontario road, and Charles E. Braxton, 2464 Ontario road.

Cook said Keys was held in Gallinger for observation for almost six weeks, seven or eight years ago, but showed no disposition to be violent.

Man Pleads Guilty, Held On Narcotics Charge

Thomas Ryan, 53, of Buffalo, N. Y., was held for the grand jury in $1,000 bond yesterday after he pleaded guilty before United States Commissioner Turnage of possessing narcotics. Ryan was charged with violation of the Jones-Miller act after he was arrested across the street from police headquarters.

Mako Beats Gilbert Hunt in 4 Sets at Forest Hills

This Morning

With Walter Haight

Subbing for Povich

I was wobbling on down the Avenue with not a single thing to do—when a voice behind me said, "You don't know a fetlock from a fortnight." Without turning or stopping, I muttered out of the side of my mouth, "If you know me, say nothing. I will see you later."

HAIGHT.

I was just thinking how long some people can remember a loser when I felt a slap on the back. I threw up my guard, ducked my three chins behind my shoulder and wheeled around only to melt before the gaping smile of Freddie Conover.

After we had compared dark circles under each other's eyes, I was beginning to believe that this fellow either was very unobserving or one of those rare, uninformed Washingtonians who do not subscribe to The Post, when he turned the conversation to our sports page.

"I see that you're still a substitute, Haight," he said. "I read that column you wrote for Shirley Povich this morning."

I stared at the ground, kicked a Pepsi-Cola bottle top (plug for advertising department) into the curb and took on my "shucks, it wasn't nothin'" attitude, expecting him to say it was a swell column.

Another Column Born

But he went on, "You should have seen me before you wrote that piece. Out home, our school football team hadn't whipped the club from the next town for eight seasons. We spent the summer working out a play to get the jump on them one year. It was something on the order of that man-in-the-blanket thing of yours this morning.

"On the first kick-off, one of our backs took the ball and ran it up to about the 30-yard line. Our star quarterback did as we planned. He fell to the ground, grabbed his leg and yelled bloody murder. The ruse worked. The opposing players ran to him. While they were trying to give him first aid, our other ten players lined up quickly, the ball was snapped and we went for a touchdown.

"I thought the jig was up when I heard a whistle being blown as our halfback crossed the line. We came back up to the field, met the referee and he asked, 'What do you want, the penalty or the gain?' He had called off-side on the other club."

I agreed that it was some play and then I said, "Of course, your team won and you fellows rode around all night on the volunteer fire truck."

"Oh no," replied Conover. "On the contrary, we took the worst beating since our rivalry began—58 to 6, or something like that. The truth is that our star quarterback, who was supposed to act like he had a broken leg, really had a broken leg."

Like Sammy Baugh—I pass.

Peck, Peck, Pecking—

At exactly 2:17½ p. m. yesterday, Povich was down to his last tonsil . . . and here I am removing his readers . . . Washington Park, which conducted a "Patrons Handicapping Contest" in conjunction with its racing, reports that betting was a million dollars ahead of last year . . . from Boston comes the word that Tom Yawkey, owner of the Red Sox, is ready to spend $300,000 on minor league stars . . . Manager Joe McCarthy is so conservative that it was not until last week that he would admit that the Yankees "were in" . . . a boxing writer for the Toronto Globe and Mail writes, "There seems to be a curse on British heavyweights" . . . perhaps somebody's got their fingers crossed—horizontally . . . Manager Oscar Vitt, who predicted that Bob Feller would win 20 games this year, would gladly settle for 15 now . . . I like the one about a certain city biggey who was asked to present a cup to the winner of a sports show . . . he arrived on the scene and made a long speech of "the game for the game's sake variety . . . "and in conclusion," he bellowed, "I want to present this handsome trophy to my very good friend——" . . . he reached in his pocket, pulled out a slip of paper, eyed it quickly and yelled "John Doakes" . . . I don't remember Povich writing this one, so here goes: At training camp, Shirley was playing bridge with Bucky Harris, Rick Ferrell and Buddy Myer . . . Shirley, who had been getting terrible hands, left the table to answer the phone and when he returned the cards had been dealt . . . he picked up his hand and in it were 11 clubs, everything but the deuce and the six . . . Shirley, who has been around, tossed his cards on the table and said, "Come on, deal them again and let's cut out the kidding" . . . there was another deal . . . but to this day, Harris and the others swear that his hand was not a rib.

Mrs. Walper Wins From Mrs. Blair

Mrs. Scott, Mrs. McNitt, Mrs. Meckley Form Remainder of Quartet to Compete Today at Manor

Semifinal rounds of the sixth annual Washington Post Cup Golf Tournament will be fought out today over Manor Country Club's rolling acres, the star match involving Mrs. Betty Meckley, medalist, and Mrs. Jack Scott, former Colorado State champion.

The other pair which will engage for a finalist berth will be Mrs. Leo Walper, of Capital, and Mrs. Arnold McNitt, of Congressional. The latter two won comparatively easy matches in the quarters yesterday, Mrs. Walper ousting Mrs. Montgomery Blair, jr., by a 2 and 1 count, and Mrs. McNitt settling her match with Mrs. Henry Goodman on the eighteenth, 2-up.

It was Mrs. Meckley and Mrs. Scott who headed the torrid competition yesterday's. Both were forced into extra holes, tournament rules providing that when a match was all square after 18 holes the players must play another 18 to settle the issue. Mrs. Meckley went to the thirtieth hole before defeating Mrs. E. M. Amick, 8 and 6, and Mrs. Scott was forced to the thirty-second to win, 5 and 4, from Mrs. W. Thomas, of Kenwood.

Mrs. Meckley Wins

Mrs. Meckley shot perhaps as good a 27 holes of golf as she has shot in her life—119—but Mrs. Amick hung on desperately. In the end it was probably Mrs. Amick's frail physique which lost the match to her stronger opponent. Mrs. Amick rounded the firts nine in possession of a one-hole lead, but dropped it on the eleventh. Mrs. Meckley took the twelfth, but dropped back even on the thirteenth. They halved the next six holes, Mrs. Amick using the remainder of her nine-stroke spot to hang on, and carding eight one-putt greens.

The match might have been concluded on 18 if a 12-foot putt of Mrs. Meckley's that ringed the cup had dropped. After lunch, however, Mrs. Meckley made short work of the match.

Today's engagement will be an important one for Mrs. Meckley. The former District champion reached the semifinals last year, but fell before Marion Brown, her Indian Spring clubmate. She was medalist in 1937, as she is this year.

Mrs. Walper Triumphs

Mrs. Blair, who was expected to feature the day's action in her match with Mrs. Walper, did just that. An inexperienced player, she came to the ninth green all square after being one hole up. She played a creditable game from then on, but wilted before the smooth-stroking of the driving range professional's wife.

The initial flight match of the day, Mrs. McNitt and Mrs. Goodman, proved a victory for cool playing. Mrs. McNitt, conceded to be almost nerveless, held a one-hole lead halfway and improved slightly on it. It was Mrs. McNitt who defeated Mrs. Howard Simons, the low net score qualifier, in the second round two days ago. She might easily take advantage of her 18 handicap today and turn back Mrs. Walper in their semi-final encounter.

Yesterday's consolation matches featured the downfall of Mrs. L. G. Pray, the home club's favorite, before Mrs. E. M. McEntee, 2 and 1, in another extra hole match. Mrs. Pray gave her opponent 6 strokes and the burden seemed too much. Mrs. H. G. Cooper saved the drooping flag of the home club in the consolations by earning a 1 up victory over Miss Barbara Simons. Mrs. Cooper meets Mrs. Walter

Garibaldi Tosses Joe Dusek; Dolly Dalton Arena Victor

Bibber McCoy Defeats Newman; Meske Throws Cook; Ryan and Barber Draw; Katan Beats Kibbons in Grapple Show Before 1,200 Fans

By Lewis F. Atchison.

Joe Dusek lost a decision and Referee Bennie Bortnick lost a shirt last night at Turner's Arena in the final bout of a mediocre program. And, while Bortnick can replenish his wardrobe any time he feels the urge, it probably will be a long time before Joseph gets another match with Gino.

An enraged gathering of 1,200 indignant customers saw Dusek punt the Italian through the ropes into the end zone, culminating a dull, foul match that seemed to be one long succession of strangle holds. Dusek worked on Garibaldi's neck like the village plumber plugging a leak in the cellar. Not two clean holds were exhibited during the entire 31 minutes they toiled.

It was a strange, a very strange ending, too. When Joe booted Gino's steaming carcass into the ropes, Garibaldi rebounded like a ball and fell with a soggy thud near midring. He quickly crawled under the ropes onto the ring's apron, and started to groan something terrible. He lay there moaning and heaving like a sick horse, and finally fell to the concrete. Bortnick, meanwhile, could have counted 3,000, but judiciously waited until the extent of Gino's injuries could be determined. After a 10-minute wait he declared him the victor on a foul.

In the other bouts Dolly Dalton threw Babe Murphy in 12½ minutes with her own private version of the airplane spin, thereby earning a match with Clara Mortensen, the ladies 135-pound champion.

Bibber McCoy triumphed over Ed Newman in 19½ minutes with a backdrop. Ed Meske threw Ed Cook in 12½ minutes; Red Ryan and Hank Barber drew, and John Katan threw Ed Kibbons in 11 minutes—making him quit.

Upsets Mark Golf Matches At Oakmont

Champion Goodman Beaten by Chapman; Moreland; Fischer Are Blasted Out of Play by Newcomers

By the Associated Press.

Oakmont Country Club, Oakmont, Pa., Sept. 15.—Set-ups turned in upsets and made chumps of the champs from John Goodman down today as the greatest series of form reversals in the 42-year history of the big show swept four comparative unknowns into the semifinals of the National Amateur Golf Championship.

Here's what's left of the fine field that on Monday started the long drive-pitch-putt marathon:

Willie Turnesa, 23-year-old youngest son of the golfing Turnesas of New York, who failed to qualify last year.

Richard D. Chapman, 27, of Greenwich, Conn., making his first start in the big classic, who licked Goodman, and,

B. Patrick Abbott, 25-year-old former National Publinks champion from Altadena, Calif., a movie extra also making his debut in top-notch amateur play.

Goodman Loses Match

As that quartet tore the form sheet asunder and gave the dope bucket a kicking around, Champion Johnny Goodman, of Omaha, was the major casualty, his 2 and 1 defeat at the hands of the cocky Chapman wrecking his hope of being the second since Bob Jones to win the amateur crown twice in succession.

But King John was not the only "hot-shot" to fall under the avalanche of upsets. Johnny Fischer of Cincinnati, the long, lean, lanky lad who won the laurels in 1936, was blasted out by Turnesa in 20 holes after apparently having victory in his grasp. That marked the end of the Walker Cup contingent. Frank Strafaci, of Brooklyn the Metropolitan amateur champ, was ushered out by Christian A. Brinke of Detroit, who then fell before the sharpshooting Turnesa.

Abbott whipped into the semifinals by knocking Jimmy Fraser, Atlantic City, out in a third round match, 2 up, and then eliminated the last of the foreign threats, Joseph Thompson of Hamilton, Ontario, 1 up in 20-holes. It was Thompson's third straight extra-hole match.

Kingsley reached the select quartet with a 4 and 3 win over Wilfred Crossley, of Dedham, Mass., this morning, and a quarter finals 5 and 3 edge over Melvin "Chick" Harbert, of Battle Creek, Mich.

Chapman Hangs On

Chapman hung on like a bull terrier in eliminating Goodman, whose failure to master the tenth, eleventh and twelfth holes proved his downfall. In the morning match against J. E. French of San Francisco, which the champ won by a 4 and 2 margin, Goodman had a five up edge at the turn with a 3 under par 34 only to lose those three to French's par golf.

Against Chapman in the quarter-finals, Goodman had no lead going into the last nine, but he dropped the same three holes again to his foe's par performance. That was the beginning of the end. The champ won only one hole on the back nine and he grabbed that with a par when Chapman dropped a stroke in a trap. They halved 'em until Goodman ran out of holes and gave up his crown.

It was Goodman's first defeat in

Nats Take St. Louis Opener, 6-4

Dutch Leonard Allows Only Seven Blows; West's Single in 3d Scores Two Runs to Sew Game Up

Special Dispatch to The Post.

St. Louis, Sept. 15.—The Washington Senators scored six runs to the Browns four in the first three innings here this afternoon and that was the final score as the run scoring spree turned to a pitching battle before 567 paid admissions.

The Senators made the most of six hits in the first three innings to score all of their runs and clinch the ball game. St. Louis, too, did all of its scoring in the first three frames, and they struggled along at a neck-and-neck pace thereafter. Four St. Louis errors contributed to the club's downfall.

Beau Bell Miscues

"Dutch" Leonard, Washington's portly knuckle-baller, subdued the Browns, checking them with seven hits and getting air-tight support from his mates. Howard Mills went the route for the losers, but a bad fourth, in which Beau Bell's first miscue presented Washington with one unearned run, proved his undoing. Mills was tapped for nine bingles.

Wright opened the first inning proceedings with a blistering single off Mills' glove. Lewis coaxed a walk and Cecil Travis nudged them up a base with a neat sacrifice, Mills to Quinn. Big Zeke Bonura then took matters into his own hands, blasting a powerful single to right-field that scored both runners. Bonura rumbled down to second when Bell muffed the ball, but was stranded when Simmons missed a third strike.

The Browns threatened to do something about this in their half of the inning when McQuinn got a single off Myer's glove, with one down, but Leonard forced Buster Mills to hit into a double play.

St. Louis did better in the second, however. With one gone, Bell singled to right. Kress fouled to Giuliani, but Heath needled fresh life into the rally with a blazing single to left, Bell pulling up at second. Leonard took a good gander at little Don Heffner and worked the count to one and one on him, before Heffner took a good look at Leonard's fast ball and poked it into the rightfield bleachers for a home run. It was his second of the season.

Wright Leads Assault

But the Nats undid this damage in their half of the fourth, shaking Mills loose from everything but his sliding pads with a three-hit assault that produced four runs and won the game. Again it was Wright who launched the attack with a neat bunt to Mills, beating it out for a single. Lewis singled to center, Wright stopping at second, and Bonura was purposely passed, filling the bases.

That brought Al Simmons to the plate, but he sat down soon after, flying out to leftfield while the runners held their bases. Myer drew a pass, forcing Wright over with the first run, and West brought Lewis and Bonura home. Myer also scampered over the plate when Bell misplayed the ball, and West reached second. Giuliani ended the uprising by fouling out to Heath.

The Browns tried to match this display of batting power but fell three runs short. Their lone marker was a result of Almada's double to center, an infield out and a long fly to the outfield.

British Broker Drives Racer 350 M. P. H. Sets Record

By the Associated Press.

Bonneville Salt Flats, Utah, Sept. 15.—John R. Cobb, of England, ascended the world throne of land speed today when he surged his sleek little racer, "Railton," across this super-speedway at 350.20 miles per hour.

But he may be king for a day only in the 6-mile-a-minute class.

Cobb's compatriot, Capt. George E T. Eyston, whose record of 345.49 miles per hour was hiked 4.71 miles per hour, immediately scheduled a record attempt for tomorrow with his 7-ton "Thunderbolt."

Threatening to extend the unprecedented automobile duel as long as weather finances permit, Cobb said he would "hang around a few days," obviously to try to retop any new mark Eyston might set.

Cobb, ruddy-faced 200-pound fur broker who races for fun, used only 4½ miles of the solid white salt track on both north and south runs to reach the measured mile. "Railton," only half the weight of "Thunderbolt," shot forward like a comet under his foot.

On the northbound run the silver and black racer, streamlined like a tear-drop, went through the mile in 10.19 seconds or 353.29 miles per hour.

Cobb's return mile run, necessary to establish the record, was slightly slower. "Railton" did it in 10.37 seconds at 347.16 miles per hour.

The jovial broker said he had "a really terrific feeling of speed."

GILBERT HUNT

Wins but One Set in Weird Match Before 5,000 Spectators; Bromwich Defeats Joe Hunt to Join Budge's Partner in the Semifinal Rounds

By Jack Cuddy.

United Press Sports Writer.

Forest Hills, N. Y., Sept. 15.—Gene Mako, "ugly duckling" of the early tennis season, became a prince charming of the courts today when he advanced to the semifinals of the National Singles champoiships with an upset victory over Gil Hunt, of Washington, D. C.

Hunt was a heavy favorite because of his Tuesday triumph over Bobby Riggs, of Chicago, second seeded American. But big, blond Mako, of Los Angeles, gave the George Washington University mathematics expert a four-set trouncing, 7—5, 1—6, 8—6, 6—0. Part of the first set was played in rain.

Thousands of words were written by the "experts" this spring questioning the advisability of Mako's continung as Don Budge's Davis Cup doubles partner. The "experts" blamed Mako for several doubles defeats suffered by Gene and Don during the winter Australian tour. They called him an undependable "play boy" and other things. After Gene and Don won the Wimbledon, England, title, the heckling subsided somewhat, and Mako was given another chance in Davis Cup play.

Meanwhile Gene has been improving his singles game. Today he gained the championship's semi-finals for the first time in his career. Never in five previous attempts had he gone past the round of 16. His brand of play against Gil Hunt indicates that he may play doubles and singles in Davis Cup defense next year, particulraly if Budge turns professional.

Gene will meet Jack Bromwich, of Australia, top-seeded foreigner, in the round of four Saturday. Bromwich today eliminated Joe Hunt, of Los Angeles, whom he defeated in four sets after a harder fight than expected. The score was 6—1, 9—11, 6—3, 6—4.

These two lower-bracket contests were the only men's matches played. The other four quarter-finalists will battle for the upper semifinal bracket tomorrow: Budge, defending champion, vs. Harry Hopman, of Australia, and Sidney Wood, of New York, vs. "Bitsy" Grant, of Atlanta.

Dorothy Bundy, of Santa Monica, Calif., seeded No. 3 among the Americans, and Nancye Wynne, of Australia, fourth among the visitors, advanced to the upper-bracket semifinal of the women's division. They will meet Saturday.

Miss Bundy, daughter of the former star, May Sutton Bundy, eliminated the second-seeded foreigner, Mme. Rene Mathieu, in three sets, 6—3, 3—6, 6—0. Miss Wynne turned back Margot Lumb, of England, who had conquered Helen Jacobs in the previous round. Miss Wynne won, 6—4, 5—7, 6—1.

Young Miss Bundy's victory over the experienced Mme. Mathieu came as a mild upset. The bouncing California lass kept pressing the French woman, knocking her back on her heels at the baseline and preventing her from advancing toward the net. Miss Bundy was amazingly accurate with her corner placements and drop shots.

In the two men's matches both of the Hunts wilted under the handicaps of soggy courts, wet, leaden ball and sweltering, humid heat.

Gil Hunt provided Mako with stiff opposition in the first three sets and played brilliantly in the second when he broke through Gene's service four times with sharp shooting volleys at the net. Mako came from behind 2-5 and set-point to win the opening set by breaking through Gil's service four times.

Again in the third set, Gene came from behind 0-3, as Hunt began to falter. Gil was so fatigued in this set that he flung himself to the ground twice at the umpire's stand, between games. A doctor examined Gil during the ten-minute intermission before the fourth set, and found that he could continue.

Despite his rest during the intermission, Hunt was still "all in" when he took the court and Mako marched to an easy victory, breaking through Gil's service three times as he hammered down Hunt's backhand.

Pepco Nine Advances in National Play at Pittsburgh

Bill Ackerman

On Fishing

The world's record on blue-fin tuna has been held by L. Mitchell Henry since 1933 with an 851-pound fish taken off Whitby, England, despite of the fact that the greatest big-game anglers in the world have fished the Nova Scotian coast, many with the sole idea of bringing the record to this side of the Atlantic, since Zane Grey popularized this rugged coast back in 1924.

ACKERMAN.

In that year he set the North American record with a tuna of 785 pounds, caught in Liverpool Bay. Until Dr. John R. Brinkley topped this with one of 788 pounds in 1936, many fish had been hooked and lost that would have superseded, had they been boated, not only the North American record, but the world's record as well. Some were boated, notably the one weighing close to a 1,000 pounds by W. H. Howell, and another here just a few days after the Tuna Matches, which was handlined. Always something happening to prevent the claiming of a new record.

Last year John Stuart Martin raised the North American record to 821 pounds, but it took a native Melburne lad, early last week, to turn the trick. His tuna, weighing 864 pounds, was brought to boat in 4 hours and 30 minutes on a 28-ounce tip with a 16-0 reel and 54-thread Ashaway line.

It took 14 years to raise the record 108 pounds, but with the popularity this sport has acheived during the past three years, it is readily possible the next 14 will see the record raised far over the 1,000 pound mark. They do come that large.

The day preceding this record catch, a local angler, Col. J. C. Wyse, boated one weighing 614 pounds.

On the bay, regardless of the weather, which in simple words has been lousy, some catches well worth noting have been made. Col. "Bill" Chantland celebrated, with his "fishing pardner" of many years, an anniversary, by catching 26 blues on the Middles trolling with Capt. Taft Tippett. We'll bet Mrs. Chantland, as usual, took most of them, but anyway, Bill, that's the way to do it, and we hope you both have many more yearly notches to cut in the butt of that old fishing rod.

Capt. Bryan Knott, also fishing out of Ridge, and without fishing parties, as well as with them, has been catching some nice strings of bluefish almost daily.

Remember this place last year? And starting just about this time. Hard to forget for anyone who got into them, and there is every likelihood the rock schools will do the same thing again this season.

But Milton Gordon and Bryan Morse haven't been waiting for the schools to raise. On Tuesday with Capt. Rody Langley, they trolled the shale ledge just above Point Patience and caught 19 rock up to 3 pounds. Anchored on it, and took 22 more on soft crabs. These latter fish weighed between 6 and 7½ pounds.

Harry Carpenter, trolling the lower point of the bar in the Wicomico just below Rock Point on Tuesday afternoon, caught 22 stripers on Huntington drones, sizes No. 1 and No. 1½, all of them weighing better than 5 and many of them close to 10 pounds. So excited about it that he went back again on Wednesday to give them another whirl.

Biff Johnson, Buck Pumphrey, the brothers Seso, Mike and Tommy, and Jim Windsor, with the aid of a couple of boxes of chum, and Capt. Brady McKay, of Ridge, caught 74 blues weighing up to 3 pounds, on Tuesday. They fished from 10 until 4, and time seemed to make little difference. In trolling, the hour before the top of the flood seems to be best.

The Gulf Stream fishing, that was enjoyed for almost two months by the boats out of Ocean City, seems to have shifted to the North Carolina coast, for last week a sailfish was caught 20 miles off the shoals of Cape Lookout. This is the second of this species ever to be caught on rod and reel in this area.

They are also continuing to catch the big amberjack off Hatteras, the largest weighing in the neighborhood of 40 pounds.

Willard Ayres, known better to most for his practice of law, but to us only as a stream fisherman, takes exception to a note from a West Virginian, recently carried in this column, that all the big bass in the Cacapon were fished out.

He says it is true, in talking about his last trip, there are many strikes from small fish, but that, in addition to a couple scaling close to 3 pounds, which were kept, several were released that were well over the limit of 10 inches. The prize of the day, a giant small mouth, estimated by his companions to be over 20 inches, after the hottest kind of a battle, broke the leader just as he was about to be landed; and then jumped high in the air several times trying to shake the plug loose.

Willard, who consistently fishes the Cacapon all summer long, says the water is lower than he has ever seen it, but clear. But then this stream usually is, although once before this season and on the day following our report that it was clear, it was so muddy it was unfishable. So play safe and

Durkin, With a Triple and Two Singles Leads D. C. Club to Beat Lorain, O., in Fourth Round

By the Associated Press.

Pittsburgh, Sept. 15.—The Pepco team, of Washington, eliminated the Lorain, Ohio, entrant in the National Amateur Baseball Federation tournament, 8-7, today in the fourth round.

The game was played after officials had announced a decision to cancel play because of the morning rain.

Durkin, with a triple and two singles in four trips to the plate, turned in three runs to lead his teammates. Chumbris had two runs without a hit in his three times up.

Bailey was at bat twice, got two hits and one run, and Clements and Satterwaite each had one hit and one run.

Tonker turned in a double, his only hit in four times up, but went scoreless. Chumbris and Clements each stole two bases and Durkin one.

McClure Wins Trophy

Taking low gross honors in the Press Club's annual golf tournament at Indian Spring Club yesterday for the third consecutive year, John McClure, prominent local lawyer, retired the President's Cup into his own keeping for all time. His 77 defeated a field of 71 members, and left the Press Club without its most cherished trophy. McClure's score was six over par.

Net honors went to E. A. Merkle, printing executive, who toured the course in 79 strokes and subtracted a handicap of seven for 72. He received a leather bag and his name engraved on a plaque.

Press Club members were divided into four flights on the basis of their club handicaps and last year's score. Paul Porter and Don Beeler were knotted for the first flight lead, each shooting a net 74. Horace Herr won the second flight prize, a pair of golf shoes, also with a 74. He subtracted 18 from his 92 total.

Third flight was won by George Schlesinger, shooting 78 with an allowance of 24. John McGrew was final flight victor with net 83. A prize also went to the player shooting the third from the highest score. Al Warner got this "booby prize" with 120 strokes.

Jim Preston, former National Amateur official scorer, was in charge of the tourney and ran the bumper entry list through the 18 holes without a hitch.

Maroon Stars Join Black Hawks

Chicago, Sept. 15 (AP).—The Chicago Black Hawks, holders of the Stanley Cup, purchased today a complete forward line of Center Russ Blinco and Wingmen Lawrence (Baldy) Northcott and Earl Robinson from the Montreal Maroons in the National Hockey League's biggest deal in several years.

Bill Tobin, president of the club, did not announce the amount of money involved, but described it as the "most important sum" for a National League transaction in the last five years. The negotiations were conducted with Tommy Gorman, Maroon president and former manager of the Black Hawks.

The Maroon franchise in the league has been suspended for a year at least, due to the club's financial situation.

Win Softball Title

Arthur Crow Officially Opens Department Store Bowling Loop

Hecht and Kahn's Pinmen Open Department Store Loop

The Department Store Bowling League opened its season last night at Recreation Alleys when the Hecht Co., led by Bill Borden's 366 and Mike Gass' 357, whitewashed Woodward & Lothrop, defending champions.

Julius Garfinckel rollers paced by Rex Stewart's 381 and B. Clark Riggs' 357 made their debut a winning one by taking a 2-1 decision from Jelleff's. Bob Friel with 353 was high for the losers.

In other matches Kann's with Robert Sproul rolling 355 swept their set from Raleigh Haberdasher.

Frank Hissey's 365 set featured Lansburgh's 2-1 win over the Credit Bureau. Hissey with a 160 game and Mike Shugrue with 152 aided Lansburgh's to pile up a 614 team game which was high for the night.

Guy, Curran got away to a good start by whitewashing Hahn Shoes.

Engraving-Printing

The Bureau of Engraving and Printing Ladies Bowling League will open the season tonight at the Columbia Alleys. The league was organized late last year by Ruth Johnson, present secretary, treasurer and scorer.

Eighteen teams will bowl in the loop, whose officers include Miss Letty Ogden, president, and Julia Litzler, vice president.

Bureau Director Hall will throw out the first ball, with the department's orchestra furnishing music for the occasion. Several bureau heads have been invited for the opening.

Merchants' League

Adolph M. Dreis, president of the Merchants Duckpin League, announces 16 teams will bowl in the circuit, starting next Monday. Officers include Kenneth T. Ellington, vice-president, M. E. Jett, secretary-treasurer and Granville Jacobs, official scorer.

The teams include: Washington Gas Light Co., Schneider Baking Co., National Biscuit Co., Brother-in-laws, Southern Dairies, Thomas Somerville, Barber & Ross, Livingstons, Washington Maid Ice Cream, Colonial Ice Cream Co., Thompson's Dairy Sales, Thompson's Dairy Service, Otis Elevator Co., Harry E. Nau, Monroe Calculating Co., and Irving's Sport Shop.

K. of C. Pinmen

The Knights of Columbus Bowling League will inaugurate its 30th season next Wednesday night, September 21, at the Rendezvous Alleys, Fourteenth and Buchanan streets. Silvio H. Poli will handle the secretary-treasurer duties.

Rip Hewitt Due to Start

Fleet Maryland Half Is Showing Well in Drills and May Play in Opener

Rip Hewitt, Marylands fleet triple-job back, may get the call at the right half in the opening game with the University of Richmond at College Park September 24.

Hewitt for the past two days has been filling in for Frank Skotnicki, who may be kept out of the opener because of a cut lip. Skotnicki, the lone injured Terp, is on the field each day but cannot take part in the scrimmages. Rip, one of the five seniors on the squad, is playing a bang-up game, and gives the team more speed than with Skotnicki in the line-up.

In addition to scrimmages among four teams, Coach Frank Dobson has had each of the elevens going through daily drills to meet situations in the various parts of the field in actual combat.

With the exception of the guards on the second team, where there has been a great deal of shifting, Dobson has stuck to the tentative No. 1 and No. 2 elevens he picked more than a week ago.

Seek Reserve Backs

Evanston, Ill., Sept. 15 (AP).—Two second team sophomore backs put on sparkling performances today as the Northwestern University football squad went through its first scrimmage. Francis Purtell, Milwaukee fullback, and Paul Soper, halfback from Muskegon, Mich., broke loose for several long runs as Coach Lynn Waldorf concentrated on a search for backfield reserves.

White Sox, A's Split

Caster Pitches 4-Hit Ball to Win, 1 to 0, in Nightcap; Sox Take First, 5 to 4

Chicago, Sept. 15 (AP).—Chicago's White Sox and the Philadelphia Athletics divided a doubleheader today, the Sox winning the first game, 5 to 4, and the Mackmen the second, 1 to 0.

Although Bob Johnson had a perfect day at bat with four singles and Bill Werber hit his eleventh homer of the season with two on for the Athletics in the first game, their late spurt failed to overcome an early Sox lead. Johnny Whitehead kept the A's 11 hits well scattered.

Down In Front

—By Richards Vidmer

Even if Hank Greenberg succeeds in tying or even breaking the royal record of 60 home runs in the span of a single season established by Babe Ruth, it seems to me that the annual award for the most valuable player in the league should go to someone else.

VIDMER.

Greenberg's achievement, if it is accomplished, undoubtedly will stand out as the most sensational performance of the year in the American League, just as Johnny Vander Meer's two successive no-hit games for Cincinnati will linger as the most spectacular contribution to the National League campaign. But those two no-hit victories didn't add any more to the success of the Reds than a couple of 15-9 games, and Greenberg's amazing home-run hitting hasn't helped the Tigers very far along the way, as you will notice by a glance at the standing of the clubs.

In the American League, it seems to me, the man who has contributed most to the success of his team is Jimmie Foxx. He has hit a few home runs himself. But it isn't because of his homers so much that the Red Sox, for whom he plays a reliable first base, are where they are, which incidentally is as high as they have been in many a year. It is more because of his consistent hitting than his long-range hitting that the Bostonese are battling for second, even though it is a poor second to the Yanks.

A year ago the Maryland Trapper suffered seriously from a sinus infection. There were days when he went to the plate in agony and played first base by instinct. He didn't complain or offer excuses for his poor showing, but those who knew him personally knew what he was going through professionally. And some shook their heads sadly that such a great career should come to such a premature conclusion.

Optimistic Outlook

But somehow he got off to a sensational start when the 1938 season began. He started banging the ball around like the Foxx of old. Still, no one took his splurge seriously. Lefty Grove had jumped off to a sensational start too, and no one expected the aging Lefty to last. Nor would Foxx, the sages said.

However, Jimmie had other ideas. There was a night in May when he sat in Jack Bleeck's Artists and Writers Club and made a rather amazing statement.

"I feel fine for the first time in three or four years," he said, and grinned. "And I'm going after the triple crown again. I mean I'm going to try to lead the league in hitting, runs batted in and home runs this year. I think I can do it."

He spoke with confidence and convicion. But no one said anything. It sounded somehow like whistling past the graveyard. Yet that conversation comes back today, for with the season drawing to a close, Foxx is leading the league both in hitting and runs batted in. He won't quite achieve his ambition, but only because Greenberg has gone on the greatest home run streak of his career. Foxx, however, is second, only a few homers behind the man who is shooting at Babe Ruth's all-time mark.

When Others Failed

And as a second choice in the American League, it seems to me that Bill Dickey, of the Yankees, has been most responsible for his team's position at the head of the parade. Joe DiMaggio may be leading him in hitting, according to the figures, but DiMaggio reported late, went into a slump and failed for quite a while to come up to expectations. Gomez ran into a streak of defeats, Gehrig couldn't hit his stride for months.

But Dickey has been dependable all the way through, and never more than when his celebrated teammates were having their troubles. He carried the whole load when there was no one else to help him. Otherwise the Yankees might have been so far behind when they finally got started that they never would have caught up.

Foxx has been awarded the most valuable player prize twice before, but I don't think that should work against him. However, there's a fine young fellow in the National League who never has received it, yet who has been one of the most valuable players on his team not only this year but for ten campaigns or more.

I mean little Mel Ott. Quiet, unassuming, modest, he never has received the recognition he has richly earned, yet it isn't necessary to look farther to find the most valuable player in the circuit this season. Always before there has been Hubbell to outshine him, and before that Terry. But this year, with Terry retired to the bench and Hubbell forced out of the game through an arm injury, Mel has had his chance to step directly into the glare of the spotlight, and it never shone on a finer athlete.

When he was told to play third base, he played it as well as anyone in the league, even being selected to cover that spot in the All-Star game. And then when they told him to shift back to right field, he went without a murmur and played there as well as any rightfielder in the league. And all the while he furnished the main momentum for the Giants' attack. Nor did he falter when his teammates collapsed around him for one reason or another.

Tigers Stage Rally to Defeat Yanks, 6-4

Cullenbine's Pinch-Triple Sparks Club

Bengals Score Couple in Seventh to Halt Leaders; Add Another in Eighth; Coffman Is Winner

By the Associated Press.

Detroit, Sept. 15.—The Tigers topped the Yankees, 6 to 4, in the opener of their current series today, but the defeat didn't stop the world's champions from taking another step toward their third straight American League pennant.

ROGELL

As a result of the double-header split for Boston's second-place Red Sox, in Cleveland, the Yankees now need only three wins to sew up the flag.

A pinch-triple by Roy Cullenbine at the start of the seventh inning sparked the Tigers to a two-run rally to take the game from the Yanks. They added an unnecessary run in the eighth on Billy Rogell's triple and Mark Christman's single.

The Tigers got away fast at the start, with two runs in the first inning on Chet Morgan's single, Dixie Walker's two-bagger, and Charley Gehringer's base hit, and another tally in the second on a single and two errors, both by Frankie Crosetti. Crosetti then was put out of the game for protesting an umpire's decision on the bags.

The Yanks picked up one run in the second on two hits and momentary wildness by Coffman in walking a batter with the bases loaded. Lou Gehrig's double, Bill Dickey's triple and an infield out produced two more to tie it up in the fourth, and the New Yorkers then went ahead in the sixth on a pair of hits and a sacrifice.

Amateur

an 18-hole golf match since young Bobby Jacobson, of Deal, N. J., turned him back at Brookline in 1934.

Fischer's defeat was most spectacular, for he tossed away his chance after being on the verge of victory. The 1936 champ fired a sub-par 36 at Turnesa to hold a one-up edge at the turn, and he held that advantage to the fifteenth where he missed a careless one-footer which would have put him two ahead. They halved 16, and then came the "break" that Turnesa grabbed with a grin.

Fischer, one of the longest drivers in the amateur ranks, landed his tee shot on the seventeenth green, 302-yards away, and was putting for an eagle deuce. Turnesa was 30-yards back, but chipped to within 8 feet. Fischer ran his approach putt to within 2 feet, and Turnesa banged his long one in for a birdie. Then Fischer missed the "shorty," and the match was square. Turnesa went on to win with a birdie three on the second extra hole.

Tribe Splits With Bosox

Indians Lose 2d, 3-2 and Miss Chance for Second Place; Take Opener, 3-2

By the Associated Press.

Cleveland, Sept. 15.—The Cleveland Indians and Boston Red Sox split a double-header today by identical scores of 3 to 2, the Tribe taking the first game and the Sox the second, leaving Boston one game ahead of Cleveland in second place.

FELLER

The Indians drove Jack Wilson from the mound in the first inning of the opener, scoring all three of their runs with only one out on Lary walk, Weatherly's double, and Jeff Heath's home run. Young Jim Bagby blanked the Tribe the rest of the way but Mel Harder was good enough in the pinches to hold the Sox in check.

Johnny Humphries pitched the ninth of the second game after Bob Feller was lifted in the eighth for a pinch hitter, and was charged with the loss.

Humphries walked Higgins, first man to face him, and Higgins made the rounds on Chapman's single and Doerr's fly for the winning run.

Feller held Boston to three hits in eight innings and fanned eight, but bases on balls cost the game.

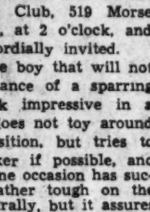
Pirates Defeat Giants, 7 to 2; Five Homers Feature Game

Bucs Score Six of Their Runs on Circuit Drives; Loss Drops Terrymen Into Fourth Place; Tobin Hits Mel Ott 3 Times With Pitched Balls

By the Associated Press.

New York, Sept. 15.—The Pittsburgh Pirates set a season slugging record for the big leagues today by walloping five homers as they trampled the Giants, 7 to 2, to climb three full games in front of the National League race.



OTT

The defeat dropped the Giants into fourth place, half a game back of the Reds. The Reds and the Cubs, in second place, were both idle today.

Far different from the team that was "pressing" so hard it dropped a double-header to the same opponents yesterday, the Bucs wheeled out their big guns right from the start today, continued swinging from their heels all the way, and accounted for six of their seven runs on homers. Paul Waner whacked two into the rightfield stands. Brother Lloyd, Pep Young and Johnny Rizzo connected for one each. It was the nineteenth of the year for Rizzo.

Meantime, Jim Tobin muffled Terrible Terry's Terriers with seven hits, one of them a four-bagger by Rookie George Myatt, in chalking up his thirteenth win of the season, and his fourth of the year over the Giants.

Tobin had a hand in putting a record-equaling note in the books when he hit Mel Ott three times with pitched balls. This deadlocks the modern National League mark set when Brooklyn pitchers hit Roy Evans, of the St. Louis Cardinals, with three pitches back in 1910.

Quarles Due Here Today

Normant Quarles, the blond Carolina fisticuffer who toils ten rounds with Lou Gevinson Monday night at the ball park, is scheduled to arrive in town today to apply the finishing touches to his preparations for the engagement.

Accompanied by Manager Chris Dundee and Baby Miller, a sparring partner, Quarles will drill at the Capital Boxing Club, 519 Morse street northeast, at 2 o'clock, and the public is cordially invited.

Quarles is one boy that will not need the assistance of a sparring partner to look impressive in a workout. He does not toy around with the opposition, but tries to land a haymaker if possible, and on more than one occasion has succeeded. It's rather tough on the sparmates, naturally, but it assures Quarles of being in the pink for the actual fight.

Meanwhile Matchmaker Goldie Ahearn has corralled a herd of former golden glove stars for a supporting card. Bob Mathias, a lanky redhead with a mule-like right, heads the list. His opponent, Johnny Tejera, former golden gloves champion of Virginia, doesn't hit as hard as Bob, but moves around a little faster, and may make a fight of it.

Irish Joe Perry, who as one of the half hundred folks dwelling in New Mexico claimed the State lightweight championship, will seek his second consecutive victory, locally, in a six-rounder with Billy Bullock. Perry bested Billy Temes last week.

The remainder of the card includes Carl Dell, New York, vs. El Brookman, of this city, and Toby Scroggins, now of this city, vs. an opponent to be selected.

Motorcycle Meet

The National Capital Motorcycle Club will sponsor a field meet Sunday at McIntyre's Farm, Glenmont Heights, Md., 3 miles past Silver Spring. There will be five events, with time trials on the program, starting at 1:30 p. m.

Lewis Wins By Decision

Convention Hall, Philadelphia, Sept. 15 (U.P.).—Jimmy Adamick's march toward a bout with Joe Louis for the world's heavyweight championship was halted tonight by the flying fists of John Henry Lewis, the world's light-heavyweight titleholder.

Lewis piled up a big margin in the early rounds and barely lasted a furious finish put on by the Midland, Mich., battler.

Twice during the final three rounds Adamick had Lewis groggy, but the Negro went into numerous clinches to keep from going down.

The verdict was booed by the crowd of 15,000 and police had difficulty restoring order after several fist fights broke out in the crowd.

Lewis won all but the last three rounds. There were no knockdowns, but Adamick was groggy in the fifth when Lewis almost finished him.

Adamick weighed 188, Lewis 184.

Sail Races Entries Leap

Jack Marsh, Regatta Division Chairman, Reports Applications From Distant Spots

A number of entries have already been received by Jack Marsh, chairman of the 1938 President's Cup Regatta sailing division, from canoe class sailing enthusiasts for this division of the regatta sailing events which will be on the Potomac River Saturday and Sunday, September 17 and 18.

Most of the entries thus far have come from Washington and vicinity, with the Sailing Club, located at Dempsey's boathouse at Aqueduct Bridge and K street northwest, alone entering six boats.

Marsh expects entries from all along the Atlantic seaboard, as far west as Ohio and as far south as Florida, to come in within the next few days.

So far, entries from Washington include the following: E. Oxley and Theodore Goude, with Zero; Jack Hazzard, with Sir Tom; Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Van Kammen, with Twenty; J. Willard Smith and Bill Pettingill, with Gone With the Wind; Charles MacMillan and Andy Andrews, with Black Streak, and Joseph O'Mare and John R. Hazzard, with Banshee.

Inquiries have been coming in from canoe sailors throughout this section, and by the time Saturday rolls around a capacity entry list is expected.

Gopher Varsity Shows Strength

Minneapolis, Sept. 15 (AP).—Minnesota's Gophers took a turn for the better today as Coach Bernie Bierman sent his squad through another scrimmage session. The varsity scored two touchdowns against the reserves, one coming after a sustained drive down the field and the other on a 65-yard dash by George Franck, first year halfback.

Changes in the starting line-up found John Maricci back at tackle, Larry Buhler, first string fullback, also saw his first scrimmage in several days, as he reported himself recovered from a bruised hip.

Her Lips Will Tell You

Smokers' Test showed Vintage tobacco was easier on your breath

WHITE OWLS are definitely easier on your breath—scientific tests proved it. Every White Owl always has a filler of Vintage quality and—like a Vintage wine—nature made it exceptionally mild, mellow.

We maintain a vast and unique crop-inspection system . . . classify all filler tobaccos into seven grades, using only tobacco of the top three for Vintage White Owls.

All this to give you a Vintage smoke. You'll like its taste—and ladies will admire your taste for choosing it. Try a White Owl today.

Vintage WHITE OWL

The Metallic Nose Knows

Scientists use a sensitive osmoscope to measure odor . . . to record its intensity and lasting power. Ten popular brands of 5¢ cigars were tested by this machine. White Owl was easier on the breath than all the others. After 30 minutes, all trace of tobacco odor disappeared from the breath of White Owl smokers.

Post Scripts

The direful airs of the "St Louis Blues" permeating the Georgetown University campus these days are the handiwork of Merlin Reichley, the leader of the Hoyas' 60-piece band . . . It seems he lost 19 musicians by graduation and only five of a freshman class of 200 have indicated their desire to "swing out" . . . Georgetown's new director of intramural athletics is Johnny Frank, football and basketball letterman at the Hilltop last season. He succeeds John Maley . . . Look out for Roland Lund's first Anacostia entry in the interhigh football series . . . Why is Harland Clift the forgotten third baseman of the American League? The Browns' star has slammed 30 homers to date season, an enviable mark for any infielder, yet has received virtually no recognition . . . Before the baseball Pirates acquired Heinie Manush from Toronto they unsuccessfully asked waivers on Outfielders Jensen and Dickshot and Pitcher Sewell. The Giants held up Jensen and Dickshot . . .

MANUSH

Believe it or not, Lefty O'Doul holds the National League record for the fastest recognized run from home plate to first base. He did it in 3 4-5 seconds in 1931 and was timed by an A. A. U. official . . . Washington and Lee University, perennial producer of good football tackles, has another pair in Dick Boisseau and Joe Oschie.

Havre de Grace Opens Maryland's Major Racing Today

11 Sprinters In $2,500 Feature

Masked General Faces Mower, Clingendaal, and Others in Test at 6 Furlongs at the Graw

By Walter Haight.

Thoroughbred racing in Maryland swings into the bigtime today with the opening of the meeting at Havre de Grace, up on the south bank of the Susquehanna River. The city that gave Senator Millard Tydings to politics, will hold the center of the turf stage in these parts for the next two weeks. After three months of confining their patronage to half-milers, Maryland turf fans shift to a mile oval and a better grade of horses. Laurel will follow on the heels of The Graw with Pimlico and then Bowie holding the stage.

Today's seven-race program is featured by the Susequehanna Handicap and carries $2,500 in added money for a test of six furlongs. A field of 11 with class written all over it has been named overnight. Horses shipped from New England and New York, as well as some trained on the grounds, will comprise the line-up at the post. Among them is Masked General, the horse that "almost" defeated War Admiral at Pimlico last fall. He hasn't been postward since last May but will not lack backing in the mutuel machines. Mower, high-weight sprint star of the Millsdale Stable, will attempt to carry 122 pounds to victory. The Compton Stable sends a fleet pair, Clingendaal and Sun Egret, after the big money.

The Virginia-bred Nedayr, the Kilmer colt, which missed the Kentucky Derby last spring because of the coughing epidemic, tries a shorter distance than usual but has won at six furlongs. Lady Maryland, claimed cheaply and a much improved filly, also sees action along with Mosawtre, Lavengro, Clocks and Challephen. The last named will be remembered for defeating Aneroid at Bowie last spring.

The remainder of the program is well balanced with limit fields in most races. The Jones camera will be used on the finishes. Post time for the first race is 2:15 o'clock.

Tomorrow, the first of three major stakes will be up for competition. It is the $10,000 Eastern Shore, a six-furlong dash for juveniles. Many of the year's best 2-year-olds are on the grounds and ready to run, although El Chico is said to be passing up this event for a New York appearance.

Havre de Grace Entries With Marvel Ratings

(Marvel Ratings have been added to The Post's service on entries at Maryland tracks. The ratings appear at the extreme right. Based on general class, workouts and past performances, Marvel Ratings give preference to the horse with the highest number.)

Man of the Month

By Arch McDonald

Each day, Arch McDonald distributes 10 points among the Nats whose play was most helpful to the Washington Club. At the end of each month The Washington Post will award to the leading player a gift in token of the honor of being The Post-Wheaties "Man of the Month."

Six Nats participated in the distribution of points in the Man of the Month contest as the result of their play in yesterday's game at St. Louis. Points were awarded:

To Dutch Leonard, four points, for his 7-hit pitching and shutting the Browns out after the third.

To Sammy West, two points, for his single which drove in two runs.

To Buddy Myer, one point, for his timely hit and his flawless work afield.

To Taft Wright, one point, for making two hits.

To Angelo Giuliani, one point, for his single and double.

THE SCORE.

Wright	20	Bluege	7
Simmons	18	Lewis	7
Chase	14	Travis	6
West	14	Ferrell	4
Bonura	13	Montegudo	4
Myer	12	Giuliani	4
Leonard	11	Wasdell	3

Hoya Freshmen Show Up Varsity Linemen in Drill

Coach Joe Hagerty sent his Georgetown football team through an hour's scrimmage with the freshmen yesterday afternoon on Medical Field to find little to make him happy. The line, although powerful at times, was outplayed by the yearlings, while the Hoya backfield's play was ragged.

Joe Mellendeck, Jules Koshlop and Frank Meglen were the only varsity backs able to penetrate the amazingly powerful frosh forward line with any consistency. Mellendeck got away for some long gains while Koshlop tossed some long passes to Lascari.

November 18, Maryland Freshmen at College Park, Md.

Coach Jack Kenny will take his freshmen over to meet Devitt Prep this afternoon.

Annually, almost every college produces a sophomore "surprise package" of some degree of perfection. Last year Georgetown's soph eye-opener was Joe Mellendeck. This season the most likely candidate for the position seems to be Lou Ghecas, a slippery halfback from Danbury, Conn.

inches tall, his 180 pounds are granite-hard. Because of the kicking, passing and running ability he has shown this week, Coach Hagerty said it would be hard to keep him in the background. He is already pushing Hoya veterans and sophomore favorites for a first-team birth. The hip-swinging Ghecas may yet surpass Mellendeck, who is expected to be a mainstay for the Blue and Gray team.

Jacobs Signs 'Title' Fight

Lands Young Corbett 3d, and Fred Apostoli in MiddleweightBattle in Garden, Nov. 18

By the Associated Press.

New York, Sept. 15.—Mike Jacobs announced tonight he has signed Young Corbett 3d, of Fresno, Calif., and Fred Apostoli, of San Francisco, for a 15-round bout in Madison Square Garden, for the middleweight championship of the world, on November 18.

Mike hopes the bout will clear up the extremely muddled middleweight situation. The New York State Athletic Commission refused to recognize Al Hostak when the latter beat Freddie Steele, July 26, and declared the title vacant. It added it would recognize as champion the winner of a bout between Apostoli, who beat Steele in a over-the-weight match, and a leading contender.

Jacobs will promote the fight on the assumption Corbett is the leading contender. The 33-year-old former champion of the division put himself back in the upper brackets by licking Apostoli last winter, just after the latter had technically knocked out Steele.

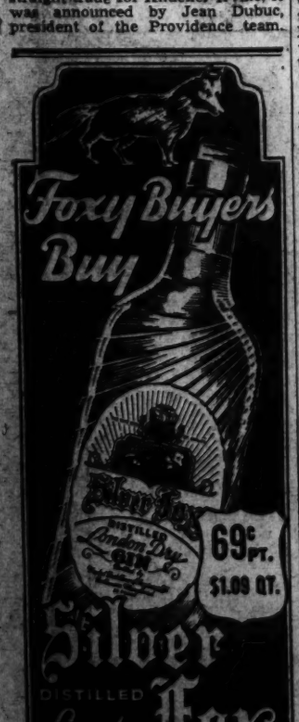
Hostak is recognized as champion by the National Boxing Association, while the California Boxing Commission calls Corbett king. Apostoli holds no title, but he is the best known. Besides beating Steele here, he trimmed Glen Lee, of Edison, Nebr., in two fights.

Red Sox Travel

The Virginia Red Sox travel to Fredericksburg Sunday to meet the White Oak nine in a twin bill. The visitors, champions of Northern Virginia, will send Tom Doonis, and either O'Neal Lyles and Jimmie Hardin to the mound, with Archie Thompson catching. The first game starts at 1:30.

Shultz Traded

Providence, R. I., Sept. 15 (AP).—Norman Schultz, of the Cleveland Barons, today was obtained by the Providence Hockey Club in a straight trade for Knucker Irvine, it was announced by Jean Dubuc, president of the Providence team.



Jockey Grill Scores a Double

Latonia, Ky., Sept. 15 (AP).—Mudlarks again held sway here this afternoon as morning rains rendered the racing strip in even worse condition than yesterday. Each of the eight races were given over to cheaper performers and attendance was meager

Jockey Frank Grill stole the spotlight by scoring a double on well-supported horses. The Boswell, Pa., boy, under contract to Smith G. Baker, scored an Mrs. C. Kranz's Brilliant Stone in the third race and came right back in the fourth to win astride of Rosedale Stable's Allentown.

Brilliant Stone, showing a decided liking for the soft footing, merely galloped the six furlongs to lead six other 4-year-olds and upward platers to the wire by four lengths. Nogalo and Rough Creek were second and third, respectively. Allentown, though, was hard put to earn his first brackets from six maiden 2-year-olds at five and a half furlongs. Sky ball was only a length off the winner, and Col. Scott a close third.

call Cecil Long at Yellow Springs as to its condition.

The best fishing isn't near Yellow Springs, but in the 7-mile stretch above, to the point where the river comes out of the ground. Many of the pools are hard to get to because of the steep cliffs, but well worth the effort, after you do get to them.

Record small mouth black bass fishing is expected throughout that section of West Virginia near the Virginia line during the next six weeks. Not only because past weather records point to a period of little rain, but also due to the great amount of rain up to this time that has kept many anglers from fishing. So if there is anything to that saying that Nature has a way of compensating and balancing things far better than man, it should be doubly true.

Illinois Has Scrimmage

Champaign, Ill., Sept. 15 (AP).—The University of Illinois' first and second teams went through a long dummy scrimmage featuring forward passing today. George Rettinger, Chicago junior, and Cliff Peterson, Moline, Ill., sophomore, were consistently accurate with their tosses against the second team's secondary.

Nash Boots Home 6 Money Horses

Detroit, Sept. 15 (AP).—Jockey Roland Nash stole the spotlight from the sensational Apprentice Sam Williams by bringing his mounts home in the money in the first six races at the Detroit Fair Grounds today.

Nash started out by riding Wise Money to victory in the first race and Be Shy in the second, accounting for a daily double of $38 to holders of $2 tickets linking the pair. He also won with Little Cleora in the fourth, and was second with Miss Tad in the fifth, and third with Imperial Rouie in the third race and with Larry M. in the sixth.

Williams, who rode four winners here Tuesday and Wednesday, brought two more home in front today. He was astride Ata Sweep which won the third race and paid $8.20 to win, and was on Candar, winner of the fifth race. Candar paid $5.20.

G. O. P. Advised to Give Reality to Vision

Chicago, Sept. 15 (U.P.).—If the Republican Party is to return to power it must "once again give reality to the vision of America as the land of boundless opportunity," Frank Altschul, New York banker and member of the Republican program committee, said today in a letter released by Dr. Glenn Frank, committee chairman.

"We must understand that this opportunity can be made richer in promise today by virtue of an awakened social consciousness," the letter said.

Actress' Mother Settles Lost Love Law Suit

Los Angeles, Sept. 15 (AP).—Mrs. Ann Beresford Whitehead, mother of screen actress Anita Louise, today settled out of court for undisclosed terms the $150,000 lost love suit brought by her husband's first wife, Bernice.

The present Mrs. Whitehead had been accused by the first of stealing the love of Joseph V. Whitehead, orchestra leader, by promising wealth, luxury and "glamor of great worldly accomplishments."

Party Aid Rejected By $30-Week Chief

Sacramento, Calif., Sept. 15 (AP).—The $30-a-week pension plan appeared unlikely to be an issue as California Democrats opened their State platform convention here today.

A request that the party make no reference in its platform to the plan was telegraphed by Willis Allen, campaign manager for the State pension proposal, which Californians will vote on in the November election.

Allen declared the pension plan is an economic, non-partisan measure and no partisan endorsement is asked or desired.

Chinese Give U. S. Check For Bombing Liner

Hankow (Friday), Sept. 16 (U.P.).—The Chinese Central News Agency reported from Chungking today the foreign office had delivered to the United States consulate a check for $264,887.47 in compensation for damages to the U. S. Dollar Line steamer President Hoover, which was bombed by Chinese war planes off Shanghai in August, 1937.

Red Cross May Buy U. S. Flour for Spain

Chairman Norman H. Davis of the American Red Cross is negotiating with the Federal Surplus Commodities Corporation for the purchase of 60,000 barrels of flour to be distributed among the needy of both factions in the Spanish Civil War, it was announced yesterday.

Final decision on the purchase is expected to be reached within the next few days.

Red Sox Rout Browns, 12-3, Behind Leonard's 7-Hit Pitching

Dutch Gives Up Only Two Runs After Third Inning; Bonura Drives In Early Tally

Sammy West Hits Homer With Two Aboard; Myer Leads Attack With Three Safeties

By Shirley Povich

Dutch Leonard, the Washington Senators' veteran southpaw, pitched seven-hit baseball yesterday afternoon at Sportsman's Park and the Nats rolled to a 12-3 victory over the Browns before 2,000 fans.

Leonard, who has been pitching in relief for the last month, was given the starting assignment and he made the most of it. He blanked the Browns after the third inning, when they scored two runs on Sammy West's homer with two aboard.

Zeke Bonura's single in the first inning gave the Nats an early lead. Buddy Myer's timely hit and his flawless work afield also helped Leonard's cause.

Taft Wright, Angelo Giuliani and Myer each had two hits for the Nats, while Jimmy Ripple, Lou Finney and Harlond Clift each had two for the Browns.

Leonard struck out four batters and walked two. He was in trouble in the fifth inning when he passed Ripple and Finney, but he got out of the jam by retiring Clift on a fly to Wright.

Met. Bank Board Votes 6% Extra

Regular 3% Semi-Annual Dividend Is Declared; Bank of Commerce & Savings Votes 2½%.

Directors of the National Metropolitan Bank have declared an extra dividend of 6 per cent payable December 31. Books will be closed from December 21 to December 31, inclusive. Last year an extra dividend of 3 per cent was paid. The regular semi-annual dividend of 3 per cent also was declared at the same meeting, payable October 15. The books will be closed from October 5 to October 14, inclusive.

According to Thomas J. Groom, executive vice president and cashier of the Bank of Commerce and Savings, the directors have declared the regular quarterly dividend of 2½ per cent, payable October 1 to stockholders of record September 20.

Tribute to Robey

At the same meeting Commerce and Savings directors paid tribute to Francis E. Robey, assistant cashier, on the occasion of his twentieth anniversary with the bank. In presenting Mr. Robey with a silver service M. D. Rosenberg, president of the institution, expressed appreciation of his many years of loyal service. Mr. Robey, in addition to being an officer of the bank, is first vice president of Washington Chapter, American Institute of Banking.

Carpel Dividend

The board of directors of Carpel Corporation have voted the regular dividend of 50 cents, payable September 29, to holders of record as of September 21.

Cotton Higher; December 7.94

New York, Sept. 15 (AP).—Cotton responded with moderate gains today to news that Prime Minister Chamberlain was conferring with Chancellor Hitler in an effort to avert hostilities in Europe. December, which had opened at 7.99, eased partially under liquidation to 7.92 and closed at 7.94. Final quotations were 4 to 10 points higher.

The market opened 10 to 14 points higher and at practically the best levels for the day. Buyers soon showed an inclination to adopt a waiting attitude and trading slowed down pending European developments. Near months were under pressure of liquidation but later deliveries held relatively steady since part of nearby offerings were against purchases of forward positions.

Cottonseed Oil

Cottonseed oil was easier today under increased September liquidation and selling by commission houses, encouraged by the lower lard and grain markets and a more favorable view of the European political situation. Final prices were 13 to 15 points net lower with sales of 181 contracts. Bleachable spot, nominal; September expired at noon at 7.84. October closed 7.90; December, 7.92; January, 7.93; March, 8.02.

Brokers' Loans Rise $41,000,000 in Week

By the Associated Press.

The Federal Reserve Board reported yesterday that last week's loans to brokers and dealers on securities held by reporting member banks in New York City totaled $585,000,000. The week ended Wednesday and the total represented an increase of $41,000,000 when compared with the previous week.

Loans for the corresponding week a year ago totaled $1,118,000,000.

Wheat Drops 3½ Cents as Peace Looms

Cancellation of War Risks Fails to Offset Reports Of Broad Settlement Of Germany's Claims.

By the Associated Press.

Chicago, Sept. 15.—Peace efforts plunged Chicago wheat values down 3½ cents a bushel at times today, with the market finishing not far from the lowest point reached.

Tumbles of quotations were attributed largely to reports that a broad settlement of Germany's claims, not confined to Czechoslovakia, was believed to be under negotiation by Chamberlain and Hitler. One report was that Chamberlain would attempt to bring England, Germany, France and Italy into an agreement.

Only transient moderate rallies in prices resulted from notices canceling insurance contracts against war risks and from authoritative statements that the flight of foreign capital to the United States was the largest in history.

At the close Chicago wheat futures were 1⅞ to 2⅜ cents lower compared with yesterday's finish; September, 64⅜; December, 64⅞@64¾. Corn, 1¼ to 1⅝ down; September, 52¼@52⅜; December, 50⅜. Oats, ¼ to ¾ off; rye showing 2⅜ to 2⅞ drop, and provisions varying from 20 cents setback to a jump of 45 cents.

Virginia Power Files $37,500,000 Issue

Virginia Electric and Power Company of Richmond, Va., filed a registration statement yesterday with the Securities Commission covering $37,500,000 of first and refunding mortgage 3½ per cent bonds, series B, due September 1, 1968.

The registration statement said that proceeds from the bond sale together with the proceeds of bank loans totaling $4,000,000 and $1,500,000 to be contributed by Engineers Public Service Company, V. E. P.'s parent company, are to be used as follows:

$39,362,400 for the redemption at 105 per cent of $37,488,000 principal amount of first and refunding mortgage four per cent bonds, series A, due November 1, 1955 and about $3,350,000 for capital additions and improvements to increase the company's electric generating capacity in its Twelfth street power station at Richmond.

Stocks and Bonds Rebound With Hopes That Chamberlain May Impress Hitler With Necessity of Peace

New York, Sept. 15.—Securities bounded forward at the opening today following the reassuring word that Prime Minister Chamberlain would meet Adolf Hitler in an effort to avert war in central Europe. It was the one piece of favorable news to come out of the Czechoslovakian trouble in recent days and its tonic effect was momentous and immediate.

Traders watched the news ticker all day for word as to the progress of this unprecedented meeting, but it was not until after the close that word came that Mr. Chamberlain was returning to London, with the thought of renewing the conferences in a few days.

It was difficult for Wall street to appraise this latest development. The action of markets indicated that the optimism of the morning was tempered as the day progressed. Stocks made their best gains in the first hour. They held slightly more than half of their advance, averaging 1.23 points higher at the close.

Foreign exchanges, which had been strong in early dealings, gave up all of their gains against the dollar and sterling led the others in a late decline which left them lower for the day. Government bonds were irregular. Foreign markets generally were higher and domestic brokers again reported that foreign traders on this market were less skeptical of a peaceful outcome than are American investors. Wheat prices broke, after its steady rise on the increase of trouble in Czechoslovakia.

In virtually every case, securities and commodities, the trends of values served as a barometer reflecting quieter nerves and more confidence that there will be no war. Those that usually advance on war scares were lower and those that usually decline under such circumstances showed a recovery. But the greatest optimism was at the opening and the Street went home wondering whether the British prime minister had been successful.

Results Uncertain.

His statement that "I had a very friendly talk with Herr Hitler," could mean much or little. It leaves the financial markets subject to more uncertainty than they like.

It was pointed out that Chamberlain accomplished a brilliant diplomatic feat, after the resignation of Anthony Eden, when he promulgated the Anglo-Italian agreement for trade between these two countries, and that Italy and Great Britain have been friendly ever since. While the same tension now exists between England and Germany, the prime minister has made the first move toward securing an understanding just as he did in the previous Italian difficulty.

There was a rush of buying orders at the opening of the stock market, some of the active issues not being opened for 15 minutes because of difficulty in arriving at prices. Steel opened up 2¾ points and Bethlehem 3¾. Gains of from 1 to 4 points were held by a number of the speculative leaders at the close, with the steels and metals featuring. Allied Chemical jumped 6½ points; Du Pont, 4¾; Bethlehem, 3⅜, and Sears Roebuck, 3¼. Gains of around 2 points were made by Smelting, Anaconda, General Motors, Union Carbide and Steel.

Among the commodities, wheat closed off 1⅞ to 2⅜ cents in Chicago, while cotton was up 4 to 10. There was irregularity in other divisions, most of which had advanced on the war scare. Lower quotations were made in sugar, hides and cottonseed oil. Rubber and cocoa were irregular, while gains were made in the futures of coffee, silk, copper, tin and lead.

Bonds Recover

Recovery in listed bonds developed today, on the better political news from Europe. The upswing in senior securities was less impressive than that in equities, but it did suffice to modify the losses of earlier sessions of the week, when the diplomatic skies were black. United States Treasury bonds showed irregular rallying tendencies but in the corporate list the move was fairly emphatic. Foreign dollar bonds joined the upswing. Trading in all issues was $5,000,000, or less than half the figure for the preceding session.

TREASURY 2½ per cent bonds due 1952 callable 1950 were issued today and trading started formally at 100 22-32. Other long term Treasury bonds showed losses, to 7-32 point and gains to 11-32 point. Guaranteed issues of the Farm and Home Corporations were moderately better. Good fractional gains were recorded in corporate bonds that are in the money market classification. Utility, rail and industrial issues all participated.

Among speculative carrier bonds sizable advances were noted. Southern Pacific, Southern Railway, New York Central and Nickel Plate bonds led the fields, with borderline rails in general in good request. Local tractions, holding company issues and communications bonds did well. Amusement issues were irregular, while commodity bonds tended to advance.

French bonds were stable in the foreign section, while Belgian and Scandinavian issues regained a good part of their earlier losses. Czechs 8s were up but the gyrations of these bonds have little relation to developments. The defaulted German group continued to ease despite the signs of peace, while other European default bonds attracted little attention. Italians improved and Japanese bonds were uncertain. Latin-American default bonds advanced.

Business Gain Holds Pace, Ayres Says

But Sentiment Is Hopeful Rather Than Confident or Optimistic, Cleveland Banker Finds.

By the Associated Press.

Cleveland, Sept. 15.—Col. Leonard P. Ayers' Monthly Survey, out today, asserted business improvement was continuing into autumn, but added sentiment was "hopeful rather than confident or optimistic." The Cleveland Trust Co. vice president said that iron and steel output likely would continue to increase for the remainder of the year, although "there seems to be no probability that output will increase sufficiently to enable the industry as a whole to operate profitably."

"Despite the recent and continuing upturn it still seems probable that in statistical terms the year 1938 will prove to be the most severe depression year in our history except 1932," he added.

"If the public utilities had enough confidence in the prospects for future profits to impel them to spend next year for capital expenditures at the pre-depression rate their new investment for plants and facilities would not fall far short of $2,000,000. That amount would compare favorably in magnitude with the sum the Federal Government will pay out next year in its pump-priming disbursements. That would be a most potent aid toward real recovery, but there is no present prospect that the utilities will make any such large capital expenditures next year."

Gold Influx Swells Banks' Idle Money

By the Associated Press.

The huge influx of foreign gold boosted the idle funds of American banks $100,000,000 to a total of $3,130,000,000 in the week-ended September 14.

The Federal Reserve Board said the increase in the lendable excess reserves of the banks was due largely to an increase of $184,000,000 in this country's gold stock. The report did not, however, show the effect of the Treasury's $700,000,000 borrowing operation, which will reduce excess reserves by almost an equal amount in the next report.

Clearings 11.6% Under A Year Ago

Total for Week Ended Yesterday Is Higher Than for Previous Week, Which Included Labor Day.

By the Associated Press.

New York, Sept. 15.—Bank clearings in 22 leading cities for the week ended September 14 totaled $5,164,497,000, or 11.6 per cent under $5,839,816,000 in the same 1937 week, Dun & Bradstreet reported today.

The latest period, however, was $1,032,832,000 above the preceding week, which was shortened by the Labor Day holiday.

Turnover in New York amounted to $2,811,904,000, which represented a drop of 8.7 per cent from $3,559,500,000 last year. Clearings in outside cities were $1,912,533,000, or 16.1 per cent under $2,279,626,000 in 1937.

Outstanding percentage declines from a year ago—there were no advances—included: Pittsburgh, 35; Dallas, 29.3; Buffalo, 25.4; Detroit, 21.3; San Francisco, 18; Seattle, 17.8, and St. Louis, 17.2 per cent.

Chicago volume of $276,800,000 was 23.6 per cent below $362,500,000 in 1937.

Washington Volume

The Washington Clearing House reports total clearings of $21,651,-121.86 for the week ended Wednesday which compares with $23,729,-652.97 for the corresponding week a year ago, a decrease of 8.7 per cent. Compared with a total of $18,747,-156.00 for the previous week clearings increased 13.4 per cent.

Q.) downward from 3.25.

Foreign Markets

By the Associated Press.

London, Sept. 15.—Traders in the financial district here expressed relief as Prime Minister Chamberlain departed on his trip to Germany for peace talks with Adolf Hitler. Spirited bidding in the gilt-edged group led to the upward movement in practically all sections. British government bonds closed 2½@3½ above Tuesday and foreign bonds were up as much as 3. Industrials moved sharply higher, especially tobacco, rubber, distilling and metal shares. Transatlantic securities finished 1 point lower to 3 higher. Considerable support came into the market from Amsterdam and continental sources.

Paris—The bourse closed with a firm tone, and large gains were registered in all departments. French 4½ per cent rentes of 1937 closed up more than 4 francs, Bank of France issue gained 490 francs and Royal Dutch 375. Suez Canal was exceptionally strong, gaining 860 francs on the day.

Liverpool—Continued absence of demand for wheat from millers, coupled with the weakness in North American grain markets today caused wheat futures to decline and close 1¾d to 2¼d net lower. Cotton futures advanced 2 to 5 points on the more cheerful views of European political conditions, which attracted buying, although offerings were limited.

Tobacco Markets

Baltimore, Md., Sept. 15.—Leaf tobacco. Maryland—As usual at this time of the year receipts again declined very gradually. The figures for the past week being 1,157 hogsheads against sales of 1,952 hogsheads. The market was active and prices firm for all kinds excepting common nondescript and green grades.

Ohio—No receipts. Sales, 32 hogsheads. Crop prospects—Maryland. The 1938 crop has now been practically all cut and housed. This crop should prove to be about equal to the 1936 crop in color, quality and number of hogsheads, but as the leaf generally is somewhat thinner, the yield may be smaller.

Maryland 1937 crop, firm leaf, nondescript, 3.00@5.00; common, 5.00@12.00; medium, 13.00@30.00; good to fine red, 31.00@40.00.

Atlantic Rfg. Debentures On Market

$25,000,000 3 Per Cent Issue Due in 15 Years Is Priced at 99 Per Cent.

An issue of $25,000,000 15-year 3 per cent debentures of the Atlantic Refining Co., due September 1, 1953, is being offered today by Smith, Barney & Co., an investment banking house. The debentures are priced at 99 per cent and accrued interest.

According to the registration statement $16,200,000 of the net proceeds from the sale of debentures will be used for the repayment of all present bank loans, the proceeds of which were added to the company's cash fund. The balance of the proceeds will also be added to the cash fund of the company.

The company states that during the year ended June 30, 1938, it expended approximately $31,531,000 to acquire and develop crude oil production and reserves and to improve extend and renew refining, marketing and transportation facilities, both by pipe lines and by tankers.

The company also says that it contemplates a continuance of expenditures for such purposes but the total amount to be expended, its allocation and the sources of additional cash funds, if any, as may from time ot time be required are not now determinable.

Rail Wage Cut Effective Oct. 1

Chicago, Sept. 15 (AP).—More than 900,000 employes of the nation's major railroads were formally advised today their pay checks would become 15 per cent slimmer at 12:01 a. m. Saturday October 1. Announcement of the effective day of the cut originally was made by the carriers joint conference committee September 10. The committee said the action of the individual railroads today in advising representatives of each employe organization of the order was a follow-up.

The railroad workers are taking a strike vote this month, following collapse of efforts to mediate the wage dispute. If a strike is voted, the National Railway Labor Act permits President Roosevelt to postpone a walkout until after a fact finding commission reviews the controversy. Intervention by the President also would postpone the effective date of the wage cut, originally set for July 1.

Nickel Plate Deposit Time Extended

New York, Sept. 15 (AP).—Deadline for deposit of Nickel Plate Railroad 6 per cent notes maturing October 1, under the line's proposed three-year extension plan today was advanced from this day to the last day of the month, George D. Brooke, president, announced.

He also said 85 per cent of the noteholders have deposited their notes under the plan, 10 per cent during the last fortnight.

G. M. Brown Dies; Descendant of Madison's Brother

Glenn Madison Brown, artist and etcher and great-grandson of Gen. William Madison, brother of President James Madison, died yesterday at Washington Sanitarium. He lived in Washington at 2020 I street northwest.

GLENN BROWN

Son of the late Glenn and Mary Ella Chapman Brown, he was born in Hartford, Conn., in 1876. He spent the greater part of his life in Washington and in Alexandria, Va. He was an alumnus of Washington and Lee University and studied in New York and Paris.

At the time of his death, Mr. Brown was preparing a translation in English verse of the works of Francois Villon. It was to have been illustrated with woodcuts.

He is survived by a brother, Bedford Brown 4th, of Arlington, Va.

15 Years Dead, Soldier Finally to Rest at Arlington

A soldier will come to his final resting place in Arlington Cemetery tomorrow, 15 years after his death.

Francis A. King, retired Land Office employe and a veteran of the Spanish-American War, who died in 1923 at the age of 75, will be buried in the national shrine tomorrow, with military honors and homage from Pettit Camp of United Spanish War Veterans. For the past 15 years his remains have rested in Glenwood Cemetery.

At the age of 50, King served with the Fourth Volunteer Infantry in the war with Spain. He had been in the Regular Army for years before that.

Survivors of King who will be present include his wife, Mrs. Laura King; two daughters, Mrs. Grace J. K. Byrne and Mrs. Marian Moran, and his son, Charles F. King.

John C. Kramer Rites Tomorrow

Funeral services for John C. Kramer, Washington attorney, will be held at the Gawler undertaking establishment, 1756 Pennsylvania avenue northwest, at 2:30 p. m. tomorrow.

Mr. Kramer died in Emergency Hospital Wednesday a short time after he had suffered a heart attack while at lunch. He was 49 years old and lived at 1801 Sixteenth street northwest.

Coming to Washington in 1910 to work for the Census Bureau, Mr. Kramer studied law at National University and was graduated in 1921. He was admitted to the bar here the same year.

After serving as associate counsel for the Veterans' Bureau, Mr. Kramer entered private practice here in 1925. He was a member of the District Bar Association.

Surviving are his wife, the former Fannie Allison, of Cumberland, Ohio, and four sisters.

Arlington Grave For C. H Bullock

Funeral services for Charles H. Bullock, Chesapeake & Potomac Telephone Co. engineer, will be held at the Church of the Blessed Sacrament at 10 a. m. tomorrow. Burial, with military honors, will be in Arlington Cemetery.

Mr. Bullock, who was 48, died Wednesday at Walter Reed Hospital. He lived at 3347 Quesada street northwest.

An employe of the telephone company for more than 35 years, Mr. Bullock enlisted with the Signal Corps during the World War and saw overseas service. He was a member of Alexander Graham Bell Chapter of the Telephone Pioneers of America and was a past president of the Columbia Park Citizens' Association.

Surviving are his wife, Mrs. Maie Olivia Bullock, and three daughters, Betty, Anne and Barbara Bullock.

Kept From Suicide, Dies in Hospital

Leslie B. Stewart, a member of the District Fire Department for 15 years and a lifelong resident of Washington, died last night at Gallinger Hospital.

Mr. Stewart, who was 37, was found hanging from a rafter in the cellar of his home at 3611 Seventeenth street northeast, Wednesday night. Cut down and revived by police officers, he was taken to Gallinger Hospital for treatment.

Born in Washington, Mr. Stewart entered the service of the Fire Department 15 years ago. He was believed despondent because of poor health and had been on a week's leave from his work with No. 26 Engine Co.

Surviving are his wife, Mrs. Esther Stewart, his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Bertram Stewart, and a daughter, Barbara Stewart. Funeral services had not been arranged last night.

Rep. Bacon Burial In Arlington Today

Garden City, N. Y., Sept. 15 (AP).—Funeral services were held today in the Episcopal Cathedral of the Incarnation for Representative Robert Low Bacon (Republican), New York, who died Tuesday.

Floral tributes were heaped about as the very Rev. Arthur B. Kinsolving 2d, dean of the Cathedral, conducted the service with the assistance of the Rev. Richard D. Pope, rector of Representative Bacon's home church in Westbury.

Burial will be at 10 a. m. tomorrow in Arlington Cemetery.

De Berriz, School Executive, Dies

Felippe T. De Berriz, head of the foreign language department at McKinley High School, died of a heart ailment yesterday at his home, 2121 New York avenue northwest. He was 45.

Born in Barcelona, Spain, Mr. De Berriz was educated at universities in that country and in Germany. He came to the United States about 25 years ago and had taught at McKinley High School for the past 12 years.

Surviving are an aunt, Rina S. Chiaventoni, of Washington, and a sister who lives in Spain.

Funeral services will be held at Hysong's undertaking establishment, 1300 N street northwest, at 2:30 p. m. tomorrow.

Author's Rites Set for Sunday At Asheville

Baltimore, Sept. 15 (AP).—The body of Thomas Wolfe will be returned tonight to Asheville, N. C., where he drew inspiration for his novel "Look Homeward, Angel," which brought him fame and a reputation as a brilliant young author.

Funeral services for the 38-year-old author will be conducted Sunday afternoon at the First Presbyterian Church.

Death came to the former English instructor at New York University at Johns Hopkins Hospital today, after an illness which began last July in Vancouver, B. C., with a cold.

Bondholders Sue To Invalidate Old Trolley Merger

Asserting they were bondholders of the old City & Suburban Railway Co., later amalgamated with the Washington Railway & Electric Co., which in turn became affiliated with the Capital Transit Co., David Fisher and Emma C. Dwight yesterday asked District Court to declare a "constructive" trust on $1,676,000 of the 5 per cent bonds of the Suburban Co.

They asked that transfer of the assets of the Suburban Co. to the Washington Railway Co., more than 25 years ago, be declared unlawful and sought an injunction restraining W. R. & E. Co. from transferring any of its assets pending final settlement of the suit.

The bonds purchased in 1893 have never been funded, they said. The complainants asked an award in the amount of their bonds or as an alternative, a lien on the company's assets to insure payment of the interest and principal.

Bay Oyster Beds Opened to Tongers All Over Maryland

Crisfield, Md., Sept. 15 (AP).—Chesapeake Bay oyster beds were thrown open to oyster tongers today, with restrictions lifted in all State waters until next April 15, when the tonging season closes.

When the oyster season opened September 1, only tongers from Kent, Queen Annes, Talbot, Dorchester and Calvert counties could operate under State law, with rest of the bay counties restricted until September 14. A few county bays and rivers will remain closed until October 1.

Capt. Amos Creighton, commander of the State Conservation Patrol Fleet, predicted a good season for watermen, citing both quantity and quality of the current catch as an improvement over those of this time last year.

THOS. J. OWEN & SON, Auctioneers,
1431 Eye Street, Northwest.

TRUSTEE'S SALE OF VALUABLE THREE-STORY AND BASEMENT BRICK APARTMENT BUILDING CONTAINING 20 APARTMENTS KNOWN AS PREMISES NO. 1447 CHAPIN STREET, NORTHWEST.

By virtue of a certain deed of trust duly recorded in Liber No. 5543, Folio 309 et seq. of the land records of the District of Columbia, and at the request of the party secured thereby, the undersigned trustee will sell, at public auction, in front of the premises, on MONDAY, THE TWENTY-SIXTH DAY OF SEPTEMBER A. D. 1938, AT FOUR O'CLOCK P. M., the following-described land and premises, situate in the District of Columbia, and designated as and being lots 116 to 119 inclusive in Delbert E. Decker's Subdivision of part of the South Grounds of Columbian University, as per plat recorded in Liber County 7, Folio 199 of the Records of the Office of the Surveyor of the District of Columbia, subject to the covenants that said lots or any building erected thereon shall not be used for the purpose of selling spirituous or malt liquors or for the purpose of any trade or traffic which may be offensive or injurious to others; the above described property is known for purposes of assessment and taxation as lots 116 to 119 in Square 2062.

TERMS OF SALE—One-fourth of the purchase-money to be paid in cash, balance in three equal installments, payable in one, two and three years with interest at 6 per centum per annum, payable semi-annually, from day of sale, secured by first deed of trust upon the property sold, or all cash, at the option of the purchaser. A deposit of $5,000.00 will be required at time of sale in cash or certified check. All conveyancing, recording, revenue stamps, etc., at cost of purchaser. Terms of sale to be complied with within thirty days from day of sale, otherwise the trustee reserves the right to resell the property at the risk and cost of defaulting purchaser, after five days' advertisement of such resale in some newspaper published in Washington, D. C.

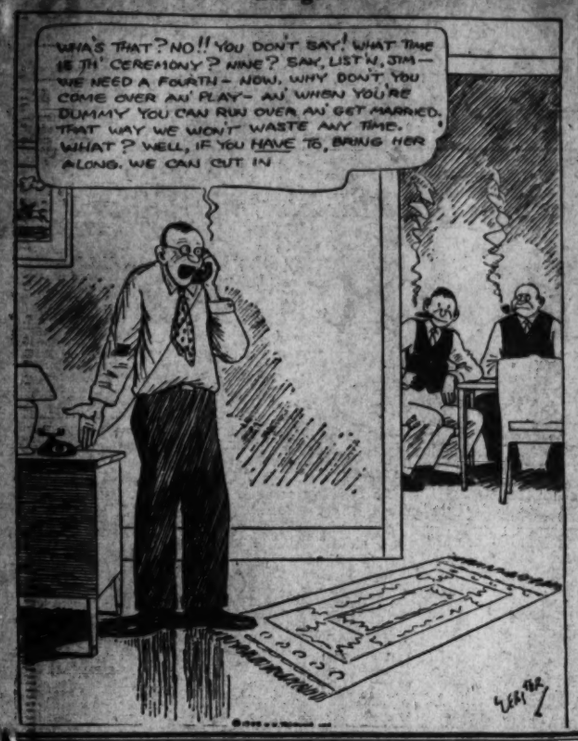
Bridge



WHA'S THAT? NO!! YOU DON'T SAY! WHAT TIME IS TH' CEREMONY? NINE? SAY, LISTEN, JIM— WE NEED A FOURTH— NOW. WHY DON'T YOU COME OVER AN' PLAY— AN' WHEN YOU'RE DUMMY YOU CAN RUN OVER AN' GET MARRIED. THAT WAY WE WON'T WASTE ANY TIME. WHAT? WELL, IF YOU HAVE TO, BRING HER ALONG. WE CAN CUT IN

Bob Burns Says—

There are two types of chiselers—the seller who tries to make too much on his product and the buyer who tries to get too much for his money. I've often wondered what would happen if those two ever got together. I found out last summer at my Uncle Skinny Flint's boardin' house. There was one boarder who kept eatin' and eatin' after everybody else had got up from the table. Uncle Skinny watched him nervously for about a week and then he went up to the fella and says, "I'm sorry, brother, but I'm gonna have 'ta charge you $5.00 a week for board from now on."

The fella looked wild-eyed and says, "For goodness sakes, don't do that—I've been half killin' myself tryin' to eat up $4.00 worth a week!"

"Guaran-Tweed"

SUITS

For Younger Men

In the New Single-Breasted 3-Button Lounge Model

Exclusive with The Hecht Co. In Washington

Say, Young Fellow! Here's a suit that will give you as much of a thrill as Max Krause's 71 and 48 yard broken field runs for the Redskins last Sunday. It takes stamina to make those kinds of runs and that's just what these Guaran-Tweed suits have plenty of. If any part of this exclusive suit should wear out within one year you will receive A NEW SUIT WITHOUT CHARGE.

Not only will it wear well but see how smart it looks in our artist's accurate portrayal . . . It's the popular single-breasted 3-button Lounge coat with slightly broader shoulders, a fuller chest and tapered waistline for a more athletic build. You'll like, too, the new sport backs. In Herringbones, Diagonals, plaids, stripes and mixtures. Ages 17 to 22; chests 33 to 38.
